RUSSIAN SPY SHOT STOLYPIN

Bogroff, Police Secret Agent, Admitted to Kieff Theatre to Guard Czar and Premier.

WAS ACTIVE REVOLUTIONIST

Played Azeff's Part and Betrayed Comrades When Named for Previous Attempt.

STOLYPIN MAY RECOVER

Would-Be Assassin's Connection with Police Traced by Card of Admission to the Performance.

KIEFF, Russia, Sept. 15.—Dmitry Bogroff, would-be assassin of Premier P. A. Stolypin, who was shot down in the Municipal Theatre here last night in the Czar's presence, and who, it is officially announced, may recover, was a secret police spy brought to Kieff to assist in protecting the Emperor, and was admitted to the theatre especially to aid in guarding the Premier. Such, at least, is the official information given out to-night.

Prompt and searching inquiry, it is said, revealed the fact that Bogroff was a member of the Social-Revolutionary Party known to the "protective police" and employed by them as a "secret agent."

It is declared that the attempt at a revival of terrorism, of which he was the active arm, was planned by the Executive Committee of the Jewish band of Social Revolutionists and Finnish Revolutionists who, according to police information, recently federated. The rapid progress of the inquiry was due, it is asserted, to the eagerness of the municipality to clear itself of a charge of reckless distribution of admission cards to the theatre.

Admission Card No. 406, entitling its holder to a seat in the eighteenth row of the theatre, was found on Bogroff, the would-be assassin. It was issued by the municipality upon a personal request signed by Inspector of Political Police Kuliabko, and by him handed over to the agent of Bogroff. The municipality had taken the precaution to photograph Kuliabko's receipt, and in the face of this overwhelming evidence the protective police headquarters was obliged to admit the facts of Bogroff's past.

Played Role Like Azeff's.

Dmitry Bogroff is an orthodox Jew. He was graduated from Kieff University in 1906. During his course there he joined the Social Revolutionary group, which intrusted to him in 1907 several serious commissions. He was selected for the second attempt on M. Stolypin's life, but did not carry out his orders. Instead, he informed the police and betrayed a large number of his comrades, using the tactics of Eugene Azeff, who in 1909 played the double rôle of leader of the Revolutionary Socialist Party and political spy to gain the confidence of the police chiefs.

Like Azeff, Bogroff in this double rôle was tolerated by the police as their sole means to maintain a permanent spy in the revolutionists' camp through whom they could secure information concerning the consecutive steps of the revolutionists.

As a member of the Central Committee of the Social Revolutionary Party Bogroff visited St. Petersburg last Spring on business of his party, and returned to Kieff Sept. 8 to assist in the protection of the Czar and the members of the imperial family at the manoeuvres.

At the inquiry to-day Bogroff declared that he intended to attempt the life of a higher personage than Mr. Stolypin, but feared this would precipitate an anti-Jewish outbreak. Bogroff's brother Vladimir was arrested here to-day.

The surgeons attending upon Premier Stolypin after a consultation to-night announced that the Premier's condition was satisfactory. They declared that no complications were feared, and that there were good hopes for the recovery of the wounded man.

The following bulletin was posted at the hospital this evening:

> During the day there was little change in M. Stolypin's condition. His temperature was 98.6, pulse 82 to 90, and respiration 22 to 24. Despite intermittent intestinal pains the patient had several periods of peaceful sleep.

The Czar visited M. Stolypin at the hospital at 7:30 o'clock this morning and later in the day reviewed 90,000 troops on the manoeuvre field at Kopylow.

M. Stolypin, who has been Premier of Russia since July, 1906, and is acknowledged one of the strongest officials that the Government of the empire has developed in recent years, has been twice before attacked by would-be assassins and has recovered.

Fired upon at close range as he sat in his chair at the Municipal Theatre last night, the Premier received two wounds, one of which was at first thought to be fatal. However, a dispatch sent to the Premier's brother, Alexander Stolypin, at St. Petersburg in the early morning stated that the patient's condition was "very satisfactory," and revealed the fact that the surgeons had not deemed an operation necessary. Their tentative judgment then was that the bullets had wounded the pleura and grazed the liver. A pulse of 70 was recorded. After his removal from the playhouse the wounded man slept for four hours, after which the first consultation was held.

The Scene of the Attempt.

The assassination was attempted in dramatic circumstances. The would-be murderer, who described himself as a junior member of a firm of lawyers and the son of a well-known attorney and wealthy houseowner, M. Bogroff, chose for his attempt a moment when attention had been withdrawn from the stage. The curtain had fallen on the second act, and there was a buzz of conversation throughout the audience.

The day had been one of festivities in which the Czar and others of the imperial family had personally taken part and promised to end most happily. In the afternoon the Emperor with M. Stolypin and others of the Cabinet had looked on at the army manoeuvres in the vicinity of Kopylow. Then returning to the city the party visited the Petchora Hippodrome and watched a review of 4,000 Boy Scouts who had been drafted from the Kieff Grammar School. This was at 5:30 o'clock, and meanwhile the populace had

ENJOIN PENROSE CANDIDATE.

Petitioner Says Earle Is Not Resident of Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—By the filing of an injunction to restrain the Commissioners from printing the name of George H. Earle, Jr., on the primary ballot by Dimner Beeber, another Republican Mayoralty candidate, and several of the latter's supporters, to-day, the question as to the eligibility of the Penrose candidate will probably be legally settled early next week.

The petition was brought in the Common Pleas Court and the injunction will be argued probably Monday, so as to permit the City Commissioners to proceed with the printing of the Republican ballot. John G. Johnson, Joseph De F. Junkin, and George S. Graham will represent Mr. Earle, and William A. Glasgow will be the counsel in chief of the petitioners.

The petition sets fort the qualifications of a Mayor, namely, that he shall be five years a citizen of the State and an inhabitant of the city five years prior to his election. Continuing, it declares that George H. Earle, Jr., has not been an inhabitant of the City of Philadelphia prior to Nov. 7, 1911, or of the first Monday of December, 1911, and if elected to the office of Mayor he will not be eligible to assume the office and to exercise its powers.

"That during the period of five years last past and of the five years preceding the Mayoralty election he has had no actual or bona fide residence or habitation in the City of Philadelphia, and has not been an inhabitant of the city, but has during that period resided continuously outside the limits of the city, having his actual residence, habitation, and place of abode in Delaware County, where he has resided with his family, visiting and remaining overnight in Philadelphia only at infrequent intervals.

"That on or about Sept. 23, 1910, he abandoned and ceased to maintain even a temporary place of sojourn in this city, publicly announcing that he had six years theretofore permanently taken up his abode in Radnor Township, Delaware County."

UPSET IN RACE FOR TRAIN.

Dr. Leroy Broun's Wife in Auto Crash Near Port Jervis.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., Sept. 15.—While going at forty miles an hour in order that Mrs. Broun, wife of Dr. Leroy Broun of New York City and her two sons might catch a train at this station, the touring automobile of L. Vallue of the Hartwood Park Club, crashed into the car of Dr. Swartwout of this city, on the State Road on the outskirts of Port Jervis, last evening, badly damaging both cars and injuring Dr. Swartwout, his wife, and Miss Minnie B. Wade, State Inspector of Associated Charities of New York City, who is examining local institutions.

The party in the Swartwout machine had just witnessed the flight of Aviator James Ward over this place and were turning around to go home when the Vallue automobile came down the road at great speed. The machines came together and Dr. and Mrs. Swartwout and Miss Wade were thrown into the road. They landed on their heads and shoulders. They were stunned and cut and bruised to some extent, the other members of the two parties escaped injury.

Dr. and Mrs. Swartwout were taken to their home and Miss Wade was removed to the Hotel Mitchell. The Vallue car, although three times as heavy as the other machine, received the worst damage. An axle was broken, front wheels and frame badly bent, and lamps smashed. The physician's automobile has a broken radiator.

Mrs. Broun and her sons caught the train.

BRIDE SUES FOR $35,000.

Mrs. E. J. Chaisty, Jr., Charges Mother-in-Law with Alienation.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 15.—Mrs. E. J. Chaisty, Jr., has brought two suits in the Superior Court, claiming an aggregate of $35,000 damages against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Sarah Chaisty. One of the actions, according to Attorney Harry B. Wolf, young Mrs. Chaisty's attorney, is for alleged alienation of affections of her husband, Edward J. Chaisty, Jr., and the other is for alleged slanderous statements.

Young Mrs. Chaisty was a show girl from Pittsburgh, and she has appeared in many of the musical attractions that have come out on Broadway, New York. She was Miss Evelyn Mitchell until she met the young Baltimorean at Palm Beach last Winter. They were together but a few days when they decided to wed, and none of young Chaisty's friends in this city was aware of his intentions until he arrived home with his bride.

Chaisty was just out of college at the time, having been graduated but a few months before from Mount St. Mary's College, Emmittsburg, Md., where he took an active part in all of the athletic events.

A few weeks ago a coldness between the bride and her husband arose. This the mother of young Chaisty is accused of bringing about.

BETTING FAVORS LAURIER.

Government Expects to Gain Five Seats in the Reciprocity Election.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 15.—The Government expects to sweep the entire belt of counties along Lake Ontario at the coming elections, which would mean a net gain of five seats to the Liberals from the Conservatives, as a result of the strong feeling among farmers in that section over the barley provision in the reciprocity argument. The American duty on barley is removed, and the barley growers along the lakes are looking forward to shipments to the United States under the new arrangements.

The betting still favors the return of the Laurier Government. A local broker received a telegram to-day from a Montreal speculator asking him to wager $2,000, or any part thereof, at odds of 2 to 1 that the Liberals would carry the country. He was unable to place any of the money.

A peculiar feature of the campaign is that Sir George W. Ross and Hugh Blain, two Directors of The Globe newspaper, the chief supporter of reciprocity, are out with signed letters protesting against the ratification of the agreement.

KATE CLAXTON FIGHTS BACK.

Sues to Set Aside Divorce of Her Husband, Charles A. Stevenson.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 15.—Mrs. Kate Stevenson, who achieved fame as an actress under the name of Kate Claxton, will appear in the East St. Louis City Court to-morrow to prosecute her suit to set aside a divorce obtained by her husband, Charles A. Stevenson, in 1901.

Kate Claxton was the star of the "Two Orphans," and her name was a household word throughout the country years ago. She is now almost 70 years old. She charges that her husband went secretly to East St. Louis and obtained a divorce on the ground of desertion and then returned to Larchmont, N. Y., where he continued to live with her for several years. She alleges that she knew nothing of the divorce until April, 1910, when he was married at Larchmont to Frances Riley.

BLUE POINT ELOPERS TELL ALL ABOUT IT

They Are Living Here as "Mr. and Mrs. Fred Noble," and Waiting to Determine Their Course.

HAPPY DESPITE ESPIONAGE

An "Understanding" with the Husband and a Family Conference Preceded Elopement—Hint at Divorce.

Mrs. Walter Lispenard Suydam, Jr., wife of the wealthy fisherman of Blue Point, L. I., and Fred Noble, son of H. M. Noble, plumber of Blue Point and Decatur Street, Brooklyn, are living together as Mr. and Mrs. Fred Noble in the Regina apartments at 82 West Twelfth Street. They have lived there ever since their elopment from Blue Point on Sept. 5, and their departure followed an "understanding" which Mrs. Suydam had with her husband.

This statement is made on the authority of the couple themselves. Young Noble came to THE TIMES office last evening and made it, as he said, in the hope of ending the public interest in and the newspaper investigation of their private affairs and of their being left alone to adjust matters for themselves. He was accompanied by Mrs. Suydam, who corroborated his statement in every detail. The two admitted that they had had a hard day of it dodging reporters and photographers.

"So much has been said against Mrs. Suydam, Jr., and myself," said Noble, a tall, fair-haired youth of 21, who looks more like 25, "that I think it is about time to make our position clear. Then I hope they will let us alone."

It should be said here, that this was after a small army of reporters and photographers had camped in front of 82 West Twelfth Street all day. All the shades in the six-story building were raised except two in the front apartment on the second floor. A third shade in that apartment was half drawn and after 11 A. M., when a woman's hand quickly drew it all the way down, the reporters planted themselves in all parts of the block, preventing escape from that house through any possible exit.

At the apartment house, meantime, it was emphatically denied that either Noble or Mrs. Suydam were hidden inside. The superintendent said that no new family had moved in for months. The reporters stayed on watch just the same.

At 6:30 o'clock in the evening a tall, light-haired man who looked very much like young Noble left the building by the front door. He held an umbrella close over his head and warded off the photographers who tried to take his picture. To reporters he finally admitted that he was Noble. He told them that he lived at 82 West Twelfth Street with friends—was just temporarily boarding there—and didn't know where Mrs. Suydam was. He hadn't seen her since Sept. 7. He escaped by the Hudson Tube at Thirty-third Street, and was not seen again until with Mrs. Suydam he came to THE TIMES office and inquired for the editor.

Mrs. Suydam is tall and blonde. She looked wistfully at "Billy" (her pet name for young Noble) whenever he said a word. Often she started ecstatically to tell her "story" herself, only to stop suddenly and say:

"I think I'd better let Billy tell it."

"We've decided to tell all the facts," began Fred Noble. "It is true that Mrs. Suydam and I are living together at 82 West Twelfth Street. We have lived there since Sept. 6, and for one whole week we weren't bothered at all. My family, as well as Mr. Suydam, Jr., and Mrs. Suydam's parents knew where we were, and we had no idea that anybody else cared.

"We have known each other for several years—two years, to be exact—and we have learned to care for each other, that is all. We were often seen together in Blue Point, and it was generally known that there was something 'between us.' Then on Friday, Sept. 1, Mr. and Mrs. Suydam, Jr., had an understanding, and we decided to elope."

"Now, I want you to understand," interjected Mrs. Suydam at this point, "that I have nothing against my husband. He did everything he could for me. In all our eight years of married life we never had a single quarrel. He gave me everything I wanted; he tried to please. He was really good to me. But, you see, we could not get along together. I mean that we were not meant for each other. That is unfortunately the truth, and he was well aware of it, as I was myself. Naturally, what did happen was bound to happen eventually."

"Go ahead and tell the rest of it, Louise," said Noble. "You can tell it better than I can. Besides, I wasn't there when you fixed it up with your husband."

"Well, we had an understanding," Mrs. Suydam resumed, "and following that my mother arrived at Blue Point on Monday, Sept. 4, having been telegraphed for by my husband. My father arrived the next day. We had a family conference on the piazza of our lodge. My husband was there for a part of it; so was my lawyer. That conference settled it so far as I was concerned. I told my parents that I was in love with Billy, and they tried to make me forget him. But I won out and then they decided to let me alone. I told them that I would go to New York and live with Billy. I left on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 5, on the 4:15 train for Bayport, and Billy met me at the Pennsylvania station. Now, Billy, you tell the rest."

Young Noble told how they planned their life from the seat of a taxicab in which they rode around, regardless of the meter or the world outside.

"We registered at a Fifth Avenue Hotel as Mr. and Mrs. Fred Noble that night," he said, "and the next day went out home hunting. We had plenty of references, and they let us in at 82 West Twelfth. We rented a four-room furnished apartment. Mrs. Suydam only had brought a steamer trunk and a few hand bags, and she immediately sent for five trunks and six boxes of things. I don't know who packed them, but Mr. Suydam sent them in my name to the Twelfth Street house."

"Oh," interrupted Mrs. Suydam, joyously, "you ought to see our little apartment. We moved most of my own furniture into the rooms, and we are using all of our own silver. It's simply fine. I'm terribly happy."

"Who does the housework?" the reporter inquired.

"A woman comes in every day to help a little, but I do most of it myself," said Mrs. Suydam. "I like to do it. Especially now when I can't go out for fear those horrid photographers will take my picture. At our very first dinner in our little home Billy's younger brother, Wallace, came over to eat with us. We are very fond of him, but that didn't excuse him from wiping the dishes. Oh, but he'll be furious when he knows I told this."

"What are your plans for the future?" inquired the reporter.

"That's hard to tell," said young Noble, "It depends somewhat on how things shape themselves. Our people have become reconciled to our way of thinking now, and we don't expect any interference from anyone else.

"I am in business with my brother at 475 Broadway and I have not been absent from the office except this afternoon. Then, from where I sat playing checkers with Louise, it didn't look safe to venture out. I expect to be strictly on the job in the future and of course we intend to live in Twelfth Street indefinitely. It was a case of incompatibility of temper with Louise and her husband. That isn't the case with Louise and Fred Noble, however."

"I should say not!" exclaimed Mrs. Suydam, her eyes sparkling with apparent assent. "I only wish I were free, absolutely free to do what I wished. I know what I'd do."

POPE MAY ANNUL EAMES MARRIAGE

Paris Archbishop's Deputy Learns That Gorgoza Had Been Married Before.

WILL REPORT TO ROME

If the Ceremony Was a Religious One His Union with Singer Will Be Set Aside, Say Paris Churchmen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 15.—It is quite possible that the marriage of Mme. Emma Eames and Emilio de Gorgoza may be declared null by the Catholic Church, is the statement made to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent this afternoon by the Archdeacon representing Mgr. Amette, Archbishop of Paris, during the latter's absence.

"So far as Mme. Eames is concerned," continued the Archdeacon, "everything is perfectly regular. She was authorized to remarry by the Holy Office, which considered her case as falling under what is technically known as the privilege of the Apostle Paul, of which the following is the explanation:

"When a couple marries, neither having been baptized at the time into the Church, and if one party subsequently becomes a convert and finds it impossible to continue living with his or her infidel spouse, the Church may, upon a special application, declare the marriage null. The parties having been infidels, their union is not recognized as at all Christian. The applicant is then free to marry again.

"This, no longer than a month ago, I explained personally to the Bishop of Brooklyn when the latter called on me.

"When the Eames-Gorgoza marriage was solemnized here at St. Pierre-de-Chaillot, we were given to understand that M. Gorgoza had never been legally married before. We have now, however, received information to the effect that he went through a marriage ceremony, and if this is correct, the question is whether it was a civil or a religious marriage.

"If the ceremony was a religious one, his marriage with Mme. Eames would at once be annulled; if civil, it will be a matter for the careful decision of the Holy Office.

"We are now investigating the case, in which the Archbishop of Paris is personally interested, and will report to Rome soon. But as yet no decision of any kind has been come to."

LION MANGLES CHILD.

Reaches Through the Bars and Claws Seven-Year-Old Laura Burns.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Clawed and bitten by a lion in a sideshow at the State Fair this afternoon, Laura Burns, 7 years old, of Morrisville, is hovering between life and death to-night at a Syracuse hospital. The girl was frightfully mangled and may not recover.

Cages of lions were roped off with clothesline so that spectators were not supposed to get nearer than four or five feet from the cage. The little girl climbed under the rope barrier. A lion reached out its paw and fastened its claws in her head. He drew the child to the cage, while her screams rang through the tent. With his other paw he clawed at the child's face and tried to draw her through the bars. Attendants ran to the child's aid but the animal had her fast in his grip.

The child's screams of terror attracted throngs to the tent. People crowded through the entrance and jammed against the cage. Attendants beat the lion with bars and prodded the infuriated animal until the child was released.

It was found that the lion had torn out one of her eyes, torn off an ear, and lacerated her face and the upper part of her body.

The great throng and the shouts of the crowd and attendants frightened the rest of the beasts confined in the tent. Keepers moved among them with loaded weapons, fearing that they might attempt to escape.

A strong guard was placed about the show tent after the girl had been taken to the hospital, and the crowds were kept at a distance.

WOMAN PURSUES BURGLAR.

Springing from Bed, Miss Spalding Causes His Arrest in the Street.

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Sept. 15.—An exciting experience with an unknown burglar, which Miss Jennie Spalding had early to-day was followed by the capture of the man shortly afterward, and the police hope to identify him with other cases in this and adjoining towns.

Miss Spalding was awakened by a slight noise and saw a man in her room. She quietly picked up a pocket flashlight from a table beside her bed and turned the light on the intruder. The man, who already had taken her gold watch and chain, ran from the room downstairs and outdoors. Miss Spalding, not stopping to dress, pursued him. She proved the better runner and overtook him on a street in the neighborhood. She grabbed the man by the leg and a struggle followed.

The burglar finally, after handling her roughly, released himself from her grasp and ran off. He had not gone far before he ran into a policeman, who arrested him. Miss Spalding was not seriously hurt.

SINGS HIS WAY HOME TO LAND IN JAIL

William Percy Denton-Cardew, Actor, Sent to Ludlow Street by Wife He Left 12 Years Ago.

GOES IN A JOLLY MOOD

Has Been in Australia and Crossed Continent Without Funds on a Wager—Wife Now Sues.

William Percy Denton-Cardew, florid of complexion and big of girth, his blue eyes twinkling with merriment as he explained the astounding unexpectedness of his predicament, sat in the Sheriff's office yesterday and declared that he didn't mind at all going to Ludlow Street Jail, where his wife has had him sent pending her suit for separation.

"I'm the best little pinochle player in the Middle West and the Pacific Coast," chuckled the jovial prisoner, "and I've got a pack of cards, a pipe, and plenty of tobacco right here in my grip. I don't mind at all staying in Ludlow Street Jail for a while, at least until I win the pinochle championship there. I understand they've got a lot of good players."

Then Mr. Denton-Cardew chuckled again.

"And the worst of it is," he laughed, "I came home here expecting a happy reunion. Why, I've been corresponding with my wife all the time that I've been crossing the continent. I tell you this is a surprise."

Mr. Denton-Cardew had plenty of time for a voluminous correspondence with his wife while he was on his travels here from San Francisco, for he sang his way here, and it took him ever since last April 15. Mr. Denton-Cardew was very ready to explain how he came to make the strange trip; there were even photographs of himself close at hand in the top of his grip. He was no more reticent about his wife's suit, which he declared he couldn't understand, especially the arrest part of it, though he admitted that for eleven years he had lived in Australia while his family lived here, and for nine of those years he hadn't even been in communication with them.

The trip, Mr. Denton-Cardew explained, was undertaken some time after his return from Australia on a bet of $2,500 that he couldn't perform the feat of starting from San Francisco penniless and, without begging, borrowing or stealing, or even soliciting a theatrical engagement, work his way across the continent simply by singing for a living. Incidentally he acted as a courier of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, which San Francisco has won for 1915, in celebration of the Panama Canal opening, advertising and arousing interest in the event as he went along. He carried a letter from Gov. Johnson of California asking a helping hand for him, and yesterday it bore the indorsements of the Governors of the States through which he had passed.

His arrest was a fittingly spectacular end to his long jaunt, for it occurred on the steps of the City Hall while Mr. Denton-Cardew was beaming on a crowd of reporters and attachés of the Hall. He had been to deliver a letter from Mayor McCarthy of San Francisco to Mayor Gaynor inviting that official to attend the Panama-Pacific Exposition as the guest of San Francisco, and not finding the Mayor within, had left the epistle with the Mayor's secretary.

He had triumphantly reached the steps where he was holding an impromptu reception when a stocky man a little more than medium height addressed him.

"Are you William Percy Denton-Cardew?" demanded he.

"I am. I have just finished the longest—"

"I thought so. I'm Deputy Sheriff McDonnell. Here are some papers for you, and will you come along with me?"

Mr. Denton-Cardew may have been astounded, as he said, but he was in no way put out. He accompanied McDonnell to the Sheriff's office at 299 Broadway, and sat down in front of the big desk while arrangements were being completed to take him to Ludlow Street Jail or to accept $1,000 bail if he could obtain it. It was at the desk that Mr. Denton-Cardew talked.

He had been married, he said, on March 14, 1885, in Flatbush, Brooklyn, to Miss Annie F. Hill, a daughter of the late Commodore J. J. Hill, once State Senator in New Jersey and again Police Commissioner of Newark. He was a singer and vaudeville actor, made a good income, and had a nice home in Yonkers.

In 1890, he said, he started with the "Belle of New York" company for a sixteen weeks' theatrical tour of Australia. The sixteen weeks' absence was extended to eleven years. Mr. Denton-Cardew said that all had not been happy at his home, though it had hurt him to leave a little daughter, Dorothy, then 12 years old. She is now married. It was not until years later that he learned he had a second daughter, Rosalind. The baby was born after his departure. The father was affected as he spoke of her, for he still is to see her for the first time.

In Australia, however, he continued, he had found work easily obtained and well paid. Then he had met with an accident which laid him up for a while. Meantime his letters home had been unanswered, and slowly the home ties dropped away and he remained in Australia, intending all the time to come home but never getting around to taking the ship.

Then in December, 1907, he got a letter from his daughter, Dorothy. It told of the birth of the little sister, of the elder daughter's longing for her father, and he answered it in a long, rambling letter, which told of his career in Australia, of his trials and successes there, of his good intentions, and of the letters, unanswered, which he had sent to his distant home. He told how he had heard from a friend that his wife was dead, how he believed now that he purposely had been deceived, and finally he sent his love to the unknown daughter.

"I knew nothing about her," he wrote, "till I received your letter. Will you give her my love and say soon I hope to see her?"

It was this letter of his daughter's and his own desire once more to be home which drove him on shipboard for the voyage to San Francsco, where he landed in December, 1909. He had expected to find a friend there who would pass him on to New York, and so he worked through California in vaudeville and concert work till last April, when one evening found him seated in the Continental Hotel, discouraged with business conditions and homesick for New York.

"Hanged if I don't walk back there!" he exclaimed.

There were a group of friends about him, among them the proprietor, Frank Shanley. It was he who spoke next.

"I've got $2,500 that says you can't sing your way there."

And then the wager was made, Lew Dockstader, the minstrel, backing Denton-Carew.

"It's that wager that's responsible for my predicament now," said Mr. Denton-Cardew, ruefully, as he sat in the Sheriff's office. "I see it all now. My wife thinks I've won the $2,500 and she wants to get it, but she'll be fooled. I'll bet Lew Dockstader gets that."

Mrs. Denton-Cardew says that after her husband replied to their daughter's letter she wrote asking him to return home and care for his family, but that none of her letters was answered. Mr. Denton-Cardew says that he answered promptly and that he even telegraphed from Albany Thursday afternoon, saying that he would reach New York at 6 o'clock that night.

Richard Downs, Denton-Cardew's son-in-law, hustled about yesterday afternoon trying to get bail. He and his father-in-law had never met till Thursday night.

Newburg Makers Threaten to Retaliate Against New York Workers.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 15.—One hundred and fifty brickmakers, members of the Greater New York Brick Manufacturers' Association, which represents nearly all the brickyards along the Hudson Valley, took action to-night on what they allege is discrimination against their product by the longshoremen and brickhandlers in New York City.

The association agreed that if the discrimination did not cease it would try as a retaliatory measure the management of their brick barges themselves. If this move is ineffective, as a final remedy they voted to close their yards, and refuse to ship brick to the New York market.

IN PERIL ON MT. TACOMA.

Exploring Party Exposed to Storms—One Man Turns Back, One Is Overcome.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 15.—Fears for the safety of an exploring party exposed for eight days to terrific thunder and snow storms in the foothills of Mount Tacoma are felt here. The members of the party, including the State Engineer and assistants and Commissioners from Yakima and Pierce Counties, experienced great hardships, according to a story brought here by Assistant Engineer Jameson, who was forced to turn back.

Jameson said they were compelled to go two days without food, most of the time on the glaciers, which they were attempting to cross. Commissioner Peterson of Pierce County succumbed to the cold, and it was necessary to procure a horse to carry him. Peterson expected to return yesterday, but he has not put in an appearance.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 15.—The value of the estate of the late David H. Moffat is fixed at $14,550,304.33 in a supplemental inventory filed to-day, which adds almost $5,000,000 to the value as before reported to the court. Most of the amounts now listed represent the par value of mining stocks, which the executors believe are really worth far more.

The value of the estate as first reported to the court was estimated at $9,767,114.13, "exclusive of mining stocks and mining property." The inventory cites names of properties long familiar in the mining history of Colorado.

The estimate is conservative, and may be one or two millions below the actual value.

OWES $1,397,175, NO ASSETS.

Bankruptcy in Los Angeles of C. R. Woodruff, in Kansas City Ventures.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15.—C. R. Woodruff, said to be a clerk, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday, giving his liabilities as $1,397,175 and his assets as three suits of clothes, six shirts, a dozen collars, a dozen neckties, twelve pairs of socks, and six suits of underwear, all of which he says are exempt.

Among his liabilities is an item of $100,000 due under contract to buy a certain preferred stock in the Swafford Brothers Dry Goods Company, Kansas City, and $500,000 on 200 notes, indorsed by Woodruff & Given to J. J. Swafford of Kansas City. In addition there are a series of notes and judgments representing business ventures in Kansas City and St. Louis.

BONUSES IF THEY MARRY.

Col. Butler's Will Offers Inducements for Seven Relatives to Wed.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 15.—The will of Col. Edward Butler, former Democratic leader of this city, who, beginning his business career as a blacksmith, amassed a fortune of approximately $5,000,000, provides bonuses in addition to other bequests for seven persons if they marry.

Each of his four granddaughters shall receive $10,000 additional to other sums willed them if they marry. Two widowed daughters-in-law each shall receive $2,400 annually for life if they remarry. The husband of a deceased daughter of Butler's is to receive a like annuity if he remarries. The remainder of the estate is to be divided between the widow of Col. Butler and their children.

The will contains no bequests to charity.

MORE TOADSTOOL DEATHS.

Four Die at Fishkill—Are All Fungi Poisonous This Year? Doctors Ask.

Special to The New York Times.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Michael Lyons died this afternoon at his home at Timoneyville, just below here, from eating toadstools. His wife died yesterday. Lyons is the fourth toadstool victim at Timoneyville. The other two, who succumbed are Mrs. Muchool and her daughter, Nora, aged nine.

Coroner Haight will hold inquests on the four deaths next week.

The fatalities have produced a discussion among medical men here as to whether or not, because of some unusual natural conditions this year, all fungi, mushrooms as well as toadstools, are impregnated with the deadly alkaloid, and are equally dangerous to the human system. Heavy rains the past fortnight have caused an unusual growth of mushrooms and toadstools. They have been picked in great quantities, especially by foreigners.

William Stafford, a policeman of Fishkill Landing, has just recovered from a severe illness caused by eating toadstools.

DIVORCED, HE QUICKLY WEDS

Wm. T. Stokes Gets Decree at Reno and Marries Miss Van Arsdale.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 15.—Hardly had the ink upon his divorce decree become dry when William T. Stokes, connected with the J. P. Morgan Banking Company of New York as fourth clerk, appeared at the County Clerk's office here and applied for a marriage license. He said he was a resident of Reno and was 32 years old.

He gave the name of his proposed new wife as Miss Elizabeth S. Van Arsdale, 23 years of age, of Plainfield, N. J. Less than forty-eight hours after he became free from Gertrude M. Stokes, whom he had married in 1902, and by whom he had a daughter, Stokes made another trial of matrimony. This noon, at the parsonage of the Presbyterian Church, he was married by the Rev. Joseph Byers to Miss Van Arsdale, who came across the continent to have their wedding take place in the State which granted his divorce.

Stokes says they will make their future home in Reno, but other informants say the couple will leave for New York City.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR J. D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.

Five Men Cut Down at His Side by Falling Steel Beams at Pocantico Hills.

SAVES HIMSELF BY A JUMP

Garage Turned Into a Hospital and Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller Help Doctors and Nurses in Attending the Injured.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 15.—As the result of an accident at the Rockefeller home to-day, in which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., barely escaped being among the victims, one man will die. Four others were terribly injured. The accident occurred in Mr. Rockefeller, Sr.'s, house at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., hastened to give first aid to the men while he dispatched messengers for doctors and nurses. The garage was turned into a temporary hospital, and three doctors and five nurses are working there with young Mr. Rockefeller to-night to save the lives of the injured.

Mr. Rockefeller, with his family, returned from Seal Harbor, Me., only to-day, and after a hasty lunch he went up to the hill to see how the addition of ten rooms to his father's house was progressing.

Mr. Rockefeller was watching the work and had passed around to the west side of the building as some men were hoisting a bundle of steel to the roof. The steel was at the second story when one end caught on the cornice. The tie rope broke and the steel tipped upon end and slipped through the noose. Mr. Rockefeller saw what had happened and instantly realized the danger. He yelled to the men to jump for their lives, and sprang back himself as the bundle of steel came crashing to the ground.

A large number of Italian laborers were at work on the ground helping the stone masons. They failed to take warning. The bundle of steel broke and the beams scattered, and as they struck the ground they mowed the five men down like a scythe. Mr. Rockefeller and others who saw the accident turned their heads, believing every man would be cut to pieces.

After the crash Mr. Rockefeller rushed in to extricate the injured men from under the pile, all the while calling other workmen to his aid. His hands and clothing were bathed in blood as he helped the work of relief.

Dr. A. C. Chace was soon on his way in his automobile, and others quickly followed. The Tarrytown Hospital was called up and asked for aid, but word came back that it was filled up and could not take the men. Mr. Rockefeller then ordered the garage made ready as a hospital, and cots were rushed there. An automobile was sent out speedily for bandages and medicine.

Five trained nurses were telephoned for and hurried to Pocantico Hills in automobiles, ready to take charge. Mr. Rockefeller helped tie bandages and gave the men all relief possible until Dr. Chace arrived and assumed charge.

Stretchers were made out of boards, and the men were carried to the garage.

Dr. Chace found that one man had a fractured skull and could not recover. Another was paralyzed; the other three had bad cuts on the head, but their injuries were not mortal.

Mrs. Rockefeller, upon learning of the accident, hastened to the garage. Mr. Rockefeller tried to lead her away, telling her everything was being done to help the poor men that could be done. She would not go, however, and stood by his side, eager to help.

When Mr. Rockefeller had completed his handsome home on the hill at a cost of about $2,000,000, he found that he had made a serious mistake in not providing enough bedrooms. This was made evident when his daughter, Mrs. Harold McCormick visited him with her children. There was no place for them to sleep without taking the servants' rooms on the top floor, and these were very small.

Mr. Rockefeller then got plans to add ten bedrooms by raising the roof and extending the gables. He lived in the house this Spring, and after he departed for Cleveland and his Summer home contractors took charge. The tile roof and its heavy steel work were ripped off, and the building was practically torn down to the first story, and all the furniture in the house was removed.

The steel work was subcontracted to the Goodwin Company, and the men who were injured were employed by Joseph Verandi, an Italian mason.

Mr. Rockefeller has been unfortunate in his homes at Pocantico Hills. Two of them were destroyed by fire, and after the last fire, which burned his home on Kykuil Mountain, he decided to rebuild and make the house absolutely fireproof.

NEW ROCKEFELLER HOME.

Plans Filed for a $200,000 Eight-Story House in West 54th Street.

Plans for John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s, new city home, at 10 West Fifty-fourth Street, were filed yesterday by the architect, William Wells Bosworth, at the Building Bureau. The new house, which will be separated from the elder Rockefeller's home by a garden, will have a frontage of 40 feet, occupying part of several lots recently bought by Mr. Rockefeller, among them that occupied by the Col. John L. McCook residence, which has just been torn down.

The estimated cost of the younger Rockefeller's home is given by the architect as $200,000. It will be an eight-story building in simple Colonial style, with a façade of limestone, and the simplicity of the exterior is to be carried out inside. The only special features provided are an infirmary partly inclosed in glass and a playground surrounded by wire netting, both on the roof.

ROCKEFELLER TAXES UP.

Valuation of Forest Hill Estate Is 400 Per Cent. Higher Than Last Year.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 15.—John D. Rockefeller's protest that the tax appraisal on his Forest Hill estate is too high was ignored to-day when his legal representative appeared before the County Commissioners to argue the protest. As a result the Oil King will have to pay on a valuation of $1,052,108, an increase of over 400 per cent. over last year's valuation.

Mr. Rockefeller's counsel said that the figures placed on the land were too high, but refused to accept a proposition by the Commissioners that they be allowed to take an option on the estate at the appraised price.

Took $14,000 in Small Change.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 15.—William W. Barker, former paying teller of the Diamond National Bank of this city, pleaded guilty to-day in the Federal Court to taking $14,000 of the bank's money, and he was sentenced to five years in Leavenworth Prison. Barker took the money in small amounts from the bags of quarters and dimes.

CHINA REALIZES REVOLT IS SERIOUS

Edict Orders Tsen Chun-Suan, a Ruthless Suppressor of Rebellion, to Sze-Chuen.

2,000 TROOPS WON'T FIGHT

Refuse to Join Either the Besieged or Besiegers of Cheng-Tu—American Missionaries Safe.

PEKING, Sept. 15.—An imperial edict issued to-day admits that the situation in the Province of Sze-Chuen is very dangerous, and orders Tsen Chun-Suan to proceed thither immediately. Tsen Chun-Suan, who is now in Shanghai, was formerly Viceroy of Sze-Chuen and Kwang-Tung, and has the reputation of being a ruthless suppressor of rebellion. He crushed the Mohammedan rebellion in Yunnan, where his father was Viceroy at that time, and in 1903-4 personally led an army to put down the Kwang-Si rebels.

Tuan Fang, the Director General of the Hankow-Canton & Hankow-Sze-Chuen Railway, is instructed to devise measures for raising the siege of Cheng-Tu, the capital of Sze-Chuen, at once. According to Chinese reports 2,000 modern troops, who are outside Cheng-Tu, refuse to join either side. The British river gunboat Widgeon starts for Kiating to-day from Sui-Fu, the highest point at which the Yangtse-Kiang is normally navigable. Troops from Hupeh and Shensi have been ordered to Sze-Chuen.

The Foreign Office states that the besiegers of Cheng-Tu search all messengers and will not permit any one to enter or leave the city. It is feared that Gen. Chao Erh-Feng may not be able to comply with the demand of the besiegers. He cannot restore to them the ringleaders of the railway league, as these men have been decapitated. It is not doubted that the missions will be looted if the city falls, but it is expected that the missionaries may be spared, the rebels fearing the penalties of violence toward the foreigners and having before had a severe lesson.

The 2,000 loyal troops under Gen. Chao Erh-Feng are veterans of his recent expedition into Tibet. They returned with him, but the modern army, which is 18,000 strong in Sze-Chuen, is made up of residents of that province, and, accordingly, may prove rebellious. The American and British missionaries in Sze-Chuen number about 500. The Catholics, chiefly French, number 250. Altogether about fifty missionaries have reached Chung-King.

CHUNG-KING, China, Sept. 15.—A number of American families from Kiating and elsewhere have arrived here safely.

Two thousand modern troops outside Cheng-Tu have not yet joined the besiegers, but have moved from their barracks, which are outside the walls, into a camp five miles distant. They refuse to obey the Viceroy or to join in the siege. It is reported that the students of the military college have joined these non-combatants.

Authorities outside fear to attempt the relief of Cheng-Tu lest the neutral soldiers join the rebels. The besiegers are armed only with antique weapons. They demand the release of the ringleaders of the railway league as a condition upon which they will raise the siege of the provincial capital. The rebellious agitation was begun by the league in protest against the Government's programme of building the Hankow-Sze-Chuen Railroad extension with the aid of foreign capital.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—A message received at the headquarters of the China Inland Mission here to-day states that all the missionaries of that body and its buildings in the Province of Sze-Chuan, China, are safe, according to the best information obtainable by telegraph at Shanghai.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 15.—A cablegram has been received by the Rev. T. E. E. Shore of this city, Secretary of Foreign Missions, from the American Baptist Missionary Society at Chung-King, stating that the American Baptist Missionary Society at Sui-Fu had reached Chung-King safely and well. Sui-Fu is the first point to which the people from Kiating would come on their way to Chung-King.

The message also stated that the Kiating missionaries were en route and that telegraphic communication with Yachow and Ning-Yuen-Fu was cut off. Those places are in the American Baptist territory, but not in that of the Canadian Methodist missions. The Canadian Methodists will be included in the Kiating party of missionaries.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—State Department cable advices from Chargé d'Affaires Wiliams at Peking to-day stated that the Government troops were confronted not by an unorganized mob of civilians, but by trained soldiers, who hold the approaches to the City of Cheng-Tu, and, Mr. Williams believes, have possession of the arsenal and magazine at the city's south gate. The cablegram reported fighting at Kiating, 200 miles from Cheng-Tu.

Mr. Williams says that while the situation was critical, no lives of foreigners were known to have been lost. He said the disaffected soldiers were part of the force of 5,000 troops who garrisoned the Province of Sze-Chuen, whose loyalty was now called into question, and who generally were natives of the province. The loyal garrison of the City of Cheng-Tu, he said, comprises 2,000 troops, who are not natives of the province.

Kiating is 200 miles from Cheng-Tu and directly on the route from that city to Suifu, the town on the Yang-tse River where the British missionaries from Cheng-Tu found refuge, and are awaiting the arrival of foreign gunboats. From this port the Fu Kiang or Min River, tributary to the Yangtse-Kiang, extends northward to Cheng-Tu, and it is believed that it was down this the missionaries found their way in light draught junks.

So far, Mr. Williams says, there has been no fighting at Chung-King, although this important city is only about fifty miles distant from Cheng-Tu, but a disturbing rumor has reached Peking that the anti-foreign agitation has manifested itself as far down the Yangtse-Kiang as Wan-Hsien, which is 500 miles below Sui-fu, and very near the eastern boundary of the province of Sze-Chuen.

Mr. Williams, in reporting the arrest of the President and Vice President of the Provincial Assembly of Sze-Chuen, said the latter was found with revolutionary documents in his possession. While all of the eighty or more Americans and the British in Sze-Chuen Province have been asked to leave for places of safety, the Viceroy has detained those in Cheng-Tu because of danger outside of the city.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—William J. Calhoun, United States Minister to China, in an interview here to-day discussed the present crisis in China and the reasons for the disturbances against the Chinese Government in the Sze-Chuen province, which are threatening Christian missionaries and the peace of the empire.

"Important changes and reforms," said Mr. Calhoun, "have been planned and are being worked out by the Chinese Government which, when completed, will awaken the dormant forces and resources of the great Chinese country.

"The Government is seeking to bring about a closer relationship, greater solidarity, and better intercourse between the many millions of the various people of the vast empire, and it also is working out plans to adapt itself to the financial, commercial, and business conditions of other great powers of the world with which it has relations.

"The province of Sze-Chuen has a population of more than 70,000,000. It covers a large area of mountainous country reported to be rich in mineral wealth and having highly cultivated plains. Its people are industrious, but with little or no identity with the rest of the empire at present, owing to difficulties in travel and communications. The trouble there is being caused by reactionaries, who are seeking to check the plans of the Government for development and progress, and who desire to keep the country at a standstill."

Mr. Calhoun left to-day for the East, where he will visit his daughters. He will start for China by way of Europe and Siberia some time within the next two weeks.

Higher Atlantic Freights Sept. 30.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 15.—The steamship companies engaged in the Atlantic trade to-day decided that the increase of 10 per cent. in the freight rates agreed upon last week shall become effective Sept. 30.

PROGRESS OVER MOROCCO.

Agreement Between France and Germany Seems Assured.

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—Considerable progress is believed to have been made to-night toward a settlement of the controversy. It is learned from an authoritative source that an agreement between the two powers seems assured. Several questions, however, yet remain open to further discussion, but both sides are showing good-will, and no difficulty to a settlement is anticipated. It is considered that no further communication on the Moroccan question, direct or indirect, shall be published until the negotiations between M. Cambon and Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter have been completed.

The semi-official Cologne Gazette says that France's reply to the German propositions indicates compliance on various points and in several other instances necessitates only simple changes to accord with Germany's views.

The French Ambassador, M. Cambon, called upon the German Minister of Foreign Affairs, Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter, late this afternoon and presented the French note which, it is understood, will lead to German counter-proposals in a few days.

The withdrawal of French balances here continues, causing a further sharp advance in the Paris sight exchange rate, which reached 81.375 to-day, after the make-up of the official quotation, but the Imperial Bank of Germany sold heavily at 81.25 in order to keep the rate within the fold of the export limit.

An advance in the private discount rate was also due to French withdrawals. The tendency of the market foreshadows the early advance of the Imperial Bank's rate.

Prince Henry of the Netherlands, who arrived in Berlin to-day, gave the press a statement denying the recent rumors about Holland's military preparations to maintain her neutrality in the event of hostilities growing out of the Franco-German dispute in Morocco.

SPANISH STRIKE GROWS.

Disturbance in Bilbao Spreading—Canalejas Holds Army Ready.

MADRID, Sept. 15.—The strike situation in Bilbao and throughout the Province of Biscaya grows more alarming with each day's developments, in spite of the vigorous measures resorted to by the Government. Matters have now been aggravated by the depletion of the food supply and the tie-up of the transportation system.

The situation here continues exceedingly grave. Street fighting between troops and the strikers continued throughout to-day and the strikers blew up with dynamite the Amoralla Railroad Bridge.

To add to the difficulties in the city, heavy storms have caused floods in the lower regions, and food is becoming scarce.

The Government is resolved to combat all these disorders energetically, particularly because of the revolutionary aspect given to the situation by the agitation of the Socialists and Republicans. Premier Canalejas is credited with saying that he will send the whole army to repress the troubles if circumstances seem to demand it. There are at present 74,000 men serving with the colors and available if the situation requires wholesale measure of repression. At the same time, Canalejas declares that there is no intention to extend the suspension of constitutional guarantees to any other cities or provinces.

ETNA STILL VIOLENT.

Property Loss Estimated at $20,000,000—Looting Begins.

CATANIA, Sicily, Sept. 15.—Clouds of smoke from Mount Etna hid the sun and made the atmosphere in the vicinity intolerable to-day. The volcano continued to throw out lava, cinders, and ashes from the craters and a hundred new fissures.

The earthquakes and volcanic explosions were, however, less frequent to-day, and the hope is entertained that the eruption of Mount Etna is beginning to subside.

The river of lava flowing to the north has separated into four main streams, the largest of which is moving toward Alcantara and is two miles from Francavilla. The railway station of Solicchiata is in danger.

It is estimated that the present eruption has caused so far a property loss of $20,000,000.

Marauders from the neighborhood of Catania took advantage of the excitement of the people in the vicinity of the volcano and looted abandoned houses and destroyed vineyards and plantations before the lava reached them.

KAISER'S HEIR A COLONEL.

Crown Prince Installed as Commander of Regiment of Hussars.

DANTZIG, Germany, Sept. 15.—Crown Prince Frederick William was to-day installed as Colonel of a regiment of Death's Head Hussars on the Langfuhr Parage Ground. The Emperor was present and made a brief speech, to which the Crown Prince responded, calling for three cheers for his Majesty.

The Crown Princess will arrive soon, when the royal pair will take up their residence here.

JOHNSON FIGHT OPPOSED.

Matching White Man Against Black Said to be Cause.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—A communication made public to-day by the National Free Church Council explaining that the Council is "not attacking generally the art of self-defense" but only a specific contest, is taken as confirmation of the suggestion that the intervention against the Johnson-Wells battle is largely due to opposition to a fight between a colored man and a white man, which may lead to racial bitterness.

The Council appeals to all ministers to start an anti-fight campaign in the churches Sunday and so arouse the conscience of the nation.

SAYS POLICE BEAT MERCHANT

Lawyer Writes to the Mayor to Complain of an Unprovoked Assault.

Samuel Marion, a lawyer of 32 Nassau Street, wrote a letter to Mayor Gaynor yesterday complaining that two policemen assaulted his client, David Kleinberg, a dealer in crockery and housefurnishings at 22 Rutgers Street, Manhattan. He says that about 6 o'clock Thursday night Patrolman Obermeyer and Sergt. Minogue, both of the Madison Street Station, passed Mr. Kleinberg's store and saw a window shade and some crockery displayed on a platform in front of the store, but within the building line. Without giving the proprietor any warning, says the lawyer, the policemen began to tear down the shade and to break the crockery with their clubs. When Mr. Kleinberg objected, he said, one of the policemen shoved him down a flight of steps leading to the store, and a large amount of crockery was broken.

According to the lawyer Kleinberg was arrested and taken to the station without a chance to close his store or leave any one in charge. Later he was released in $500 bail, and the next morning he was discharged in the Police Court.

Apples Now Only 8 Cents a Bushel.

WESTFIELD, N. J., Sept. 15.—Apples are so abundant in this section of New Jersey that the price has dropped to 8 cents a bushel. This price is now being paid by the cider mills. The retail price of a quart of apples in New York City is said here to exceed the price per bushel the cider-mill men are paying, and it does not pay the farmers to carry the apples to the mills.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 15.—At to-day's session it was decided to hold the next International Congress Against Alcoholism at Milan, Italy. Edwin C. Dinwiddie of Washington invited the congress to meet in the United States in 1915, the year set for the opening of the Panama Canal.

TOKIO, Sept. 15.—David Starr Jordan, President of the Leland Stanford, Jr., University, will be received in audience by the Emperor to-morrow morning. The Emperor will decorate his visitor.

REGINALD WARD NOT YET BANKRUPT

Affairs of Once Prominent Society Figure Involved, but Creditors Must Decide Fate.

HIS OLD HAUNTS FORSAKEN

Society in London Has Seen Little of "Count Ward" Since the Days of His Prosperity.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—No notice has yet appeared in The London Gazette that a receiving order in bankruptcy has been made out against Reginald Ward, formerly of Boston, once known here as a "copper king," and generally described by the tile of "Count Ward." This indicates that if a petition in bankruptcy has been filed with the official receiver, an appeal was promptly lodged against it, and the decision whether or not the procedure is to be continued remains in the hands of the creditors convened in public meeting.

From investigations made this evening it appears that this is exactly what has happened in Mr. Ward's case. It consequently is technically inexact to describe him as a bankrupt, pending the submission of his appeal to the creditors. The authority who explained the law in the circumstances cited the case of a well-known Earl against whom in the last ten years at least a dozen petitions in bankruptcy have been lodged, owing to debts contracted by his Countess, a woman well known for Socialist theories and at one time a famous beauty.

The fact that Mr. Ward is in financial difficulties is no news to those who knew him. For some years past his old-time friends have wondered how he managed to keep his head above water. He has maintained an office in the City, but it was run on a very different scale from the palatial quarters he occupied in the days when he was a lion in London society.

For several years past Mr. Ward has lived with his sister, Mrs. Blackburne Tewe, who married an officer in the British Army who some time ago, finding promotion slow, exchanged from the regular service into the territorial forces, and thereby obtained his majority. Mrs. Tewe's residence, which once belonged to Mr. Ward, but which he was understood to have made over to his sister before his financial reverses came, is a handsome place at Twickenham on the Thames named Fulwell Park. A visit there to-night showed the place to be empty, with "To Let" signs displayed at the lodge gates and on the wall of the surrounding grounds, which are several acres in extent.

Mr. Ward of late years has rarely been seen at fashionable resorts about town where he was a habitué in the days of his success, and society where he once shone resplendent with several orders in brilliants on his chest—orders obtained chiefly from the Bulgarian Court, of which he was Consular representative in London—had passed him by. Even houses such as that of a well-known American woman resident of London, whose fortune rumor said he had made in return for her good offices in introducing him to English people whom he interested in his promotions, saw him very infrequently.

His absence, it is believed, however, has been due not so much to any coldness on the part of his former friends as to his own reluctance to appear with his broken fortunes in places where he was once one of the most sought after men in those sets of London society which have a keen eye and a warm welcome for the moneymaker.

MAYOR TO A LITTLE GIRL.

Assures Her She Shouldn't Be Chased When She Plays in Street.

Helen Roth, a little girl living at 59 West 105th Street, wrote Mayor Gaynor the other day that she and other little girls had no place to play after school, and that they were "chased" if they played in the streets. The Mayor sent her this letter yesterday in reply:

> Sept. 15, 1911.
> Dear Miss Roth: I have received your letter of Sept. 11, telling me that you and the little girls in your neighborhood have no place to play after school, and that wherever you go to play you are chased. I am very sorry about it, and I will see if I can do something for you. Some people think you ought to stay in the house all the time. But you must go out, and you must play somewhere, and we must let you play in the streets until there is some other place provided. Do you know, I receive letters daily from men and women who hate to see the children play in the streets at all, but on inquiry I always find out that they are people who have no children of their own. You say you want to skate on roller skates. Maybe I can get the police up that way to wink hard with both eyes that they won't see you when you go by on your roller skates. But be careful not to run into anybody, or bump into an automobile. But there are very few accidents of that kind. When one such accident happens a lot of people write to me as though it were the rule instead of the exception.
>
> Sincerely yours,
> (Signed) W. J. GAYNOR,
> Mayor.
> Miss Helen Roth, 59 West 105th Street.

Only a few weeks ago the Mayor wrote a similar letter to a boy who complained that he was not allowed to play ball in the streets. On that occasion the Mayor said he thought the policeman would "wink both eyes" when they saw him playing.

CAVALIERI HOLDS ON TO CHANLER FORTUNE

Singer Says She Won't Give Up What Marriage Settlement Declares Is Her Own.

NOT EAGER FOR DIVORCE

Says All Advantages of Proposed Compromise Lie with Family of Her Husband, R. Winthrop Chanler.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 15.—The question of divorce between Robert Winthrop Chanler and Lina Cavalieri is now at a deadlock. All efforts on the part of Mr. Chanler's family to induce the singer to consent to a divorce have been so far fruitless. Mme. Cavalieri is absolutely firm in her resolution not to give up a fraction of the monetary privileges which she conceives to have been conferred upon her by her marriage settlement.

Sidney Harris, Mr. Chanler's lawyer, who left New York Aug. 23, is said to be now on his way here with the purpose of making a final offer of $70,000 cash in exchange for full renunciation of the marriage settlement on the part of Cavalieri and her consent to a divorce. The affair seems, however, to trouble Mme. Cavalieri very little.

"There is absolutely no hope for them to make me back down," she said to the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES, who saw her this afternoon at her house in Paris. "My lawyer has not heard Mr. Harris's proposal on Mr. Chanler's behalf yet, but I see no reason why I should bargain for a thing which is absolutely legally mine. The advantages of the proposed transaction are all on their side, and I have already gone through enough trouble about this without adding to it a monetary loss.

"As for a divorce, I am in no hurry to get it, as I do not contemplate remarrying. My first experience was unpleasant enough."

Mme. Cavalieri, who was billed for the Hammerstein opening in "Quo Vadis," has given up that part and will not appear until the middle of December, when she will sing "Thais" and other operas in her French répertoire. She is now busy working hard at her voice, and has lately been studying "Aïda."

"Of course, I want to go back to America," she said. "I have already a contract to sing in Mexico City in February, and as I shall be going by way of Boston will take the opportunity to fulfill a long-delayed promise to Henry Russell to sing ten times for him at the Boston Opera House."

MRS. DE RIVERA'S OWN CLUB.

Incorporates It, Never Looks for Unpleasant Things, and Has Good Wishes for All.

Supreme Court Justice Gavegan approved yesterday the certificate of incorporation of the "New York Theatre Club," thus by judicial action adding another chapter to the strange and exciting story of how there came to be at one time within this city two theatre clubs, or two parts of one theatre club, or one theatre club and one impostor, just as one happened to feel about it. The newly incorporated society should be marked for identification as Mrs. Belle de Rivera's club.

It was this way: Mrs. J. Christopher Marks wanted to see the drama studied and encouraged as an art, so she founded the Theatre Club of New York. This organization was in the throes of choosing a constitution, when it became apparent that Mrs. de Rivera, the President, had different ideas on the subject from Mrs. Marks, and in the midst of the strained feeling Mrs. Marks invited as guest of honor to one of the meetings last Spring a woman who was no friend of a friend of Mrs. de Rivera.

So, of course, Mrs. de Rivera and her following stayed away from the meeting, and the first thing they knew Mrs. Marks and her following had incorporated as the Theatre Club. She didn't want the meetings interrupted by "business and political work," she explained, meaningly.

Great was the apprehension as to what would happen at the next meeting day. Which element in the original Theatre Club of New York would give place to the other? That was the question. Every one rushed to the Hotel Astor to learn the answer. The answer was, neither. There were to be two meetings. On the eighth floor Mrs. de Rivera presided over the Theatre Club of New York. On the ground floor Mrs. Marks was on the verge of presiding over the Theatre Club, Inc., when she and her friends were served with a temporary injunction.

The legal papers informed them that they must not meet or refer to themselves as the Theatre Club, so they met and referred to themselves as friends of Mrs. Marks, and everybody had a very pleasant time. Later Mrs. de Rivera withdrew her suit, and she appears as an incorporator of the New York Theatre Club, along with Mamie Graham Destamps, Ella Hastings, Ellen Bendel, Sarah A. Rosenfeld, Mary W. Bancher, Alphonsine R. Hamilton, Ella T. Hall, Rosell Schendel, and Cathryn Mills. The incorporators were represented by Miss Eva Radke, attorney.

Miss Radke flatly refused to talk about it. Her refusal was given in apprehensive tones, as though she feared attack or perhaps a second schism before the papers were safely lodged with the Secretary of State.

"Do you expect any opposition?" Mrs. de Rivera was asked.

"I never look for unpleasant things," was her reply, spoken very gently; "I always look for pleasant things. We called ourselves the New York Theatre Club to be distinctive from—well, from other theatre clubs. That is all. We do not want any row, and we wish other theatre clubs every success in the world. The more clubs the better, I say."

Take Good Babies at Cut Rates.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 15.—Because is a good deal more trouble to take care of some babies than it is of others, the Union Presbyterian Church Society, conducting "the nursery" at the State Fair, has established a sliding scale of prices. A real good baby can be left two hours at the creche for 25 cents, while those which fret must be paid for at twice that rate. So far the society has been able to get along with the two classifications only.

RUSSIAN SPY SHOT STOLYPIN

been entertained with trotting races and other public exhibitions.

The day's programme was to close with a gala performance of the opera and ballet "Tsar Soltan" by Rimsky-Korsakoff, the late composer and professor at the St. Petersburg Conservatory. Admission to the Municipal Theatre was by card, and these permits had been issued with great discrimination to leading citizens of the city.

At 9 o'clock the curtain rose before a brilliant gathering of royalty, high Government officials, important personages from civil life, with many beautifully gowned women. In the imperial box were the Czar, the heir apparent, Grand Duke Alexis, a youth of 7 years, and the Czar's daughters, the Grand Duchesses Olga, Tatiana, Marie, and Anastasia. In the front row of the pit, directly at the rear of the orchestra, were seated Premier Stolypin and his associates in the Ministry.

The opera progressed amid frequent applause that swelled to a chorus of approval as the curtain fell on the second act.

The Attack on Stolypin.

In the intermission that followed the spectators chatted gayly in suppressed tones, as befitted the occasion dignified by the presence of the Czar. Premier Stolypin, leaning his left arm upon the orchestra fence, had turned his face to the right toward the centre aisle, and was conversing with the Minister of War, Gen. Sukhomlinoff, and Count Potocky.

The clock in the auditorium pointed to 11:30 when a young man in evening dress moved down the centre aisle quietly, and attracting attention only because he approached the row of Ministers and appeared to accost M. Stolypin. There was a momentary hush in the immediate vicinity, as curious eyes were turned toward the intruder. Suddenly the young man drew a revolver from his coat and emptied it seemingly point blank at M. Stolypin. As the reports of the shots crashed through the house there was a wild cry from the spectators, who rose to their feet simultaneously. Many of the women immediately sank again into their chairs, fainting. The vast crowd seemed panic-stricken. The Czar, at the sound of the first shot, sprang from his chair, and, stepping to the front of the imperial box, gazed in the direction of the wounded Premier. With a quick realization of what had occurred his Majesty, evidently controlling his emotions with difficulty, turned to the orchestra and commanded that the national anthem be played.

The coolest man present was the wounded Stolypin. He had received two of the fusillade of bullets. One had entered the right breast and the other the right wrist, probably as he had raised his arm in a natural gesture of defense. He summoned his waning strength, and, rising, faced the imperial box and gazing steadily upon the Czar, lifted his wounded arm and made the sign of the cross toward his Majesty, invoking the divine protection. Then he dropped into his seat, and before Gen. Soukhomlinoff could assist him, the Premier removed his uniform coat and attempted to examine his injuries.

Meantime there was the wildest confusion. The cries of hysterical women filled the place and the men, hardly less composed, pushed and stumbled here and there, struggling to reach the front of the pit, their minds occupied with the double purpose of succoring the victim and wreaking vengeance upon his assailant.

Bogroff Trampled On.

Bogroff sought to benefit by the tumult and slipped toward an exit, but his pursuers were too quick for him and he was seized, thrown to the floor and trampled under foot. For a time it looked as though he would be slain on the spot, despite the Czar's presence, but the police succeeded in controlling the situation and gave Bogroff protection.

The Premier's strength was ebbing fast, and Prof. Rein, who happened to be in the audience, gave first aid to him. Then the senses of his friends returning, the Premier was tenderly lifted from his chair and borne from the theatre. As he was carried down the aisle the orchestra, obeying the Czar's command, was playing the National anthem. The curtain rose and the artists still in the costumes of the opera fell on their knees and sang the anthem five times. This did much to restore order and presently the audience, which had not been permitted to leave the place, joined in a chorus of "God Save Thy People." Still standing in the front of the imperial box the Czar acknowledged the outburst of loyalty by repeated bows. Then, with his children, he left the theatre and proceeded to the palace.

The performance was not resumed, and with the departure of the royal family the police took possession of the place and closed all exits. The audience was allowed to leave only one by one, after identification. Even the Cabinet Ministers, who wished to accompany Stolypin, were stopped at the doors and compelled to wait until the lengthy procedure of their personal identification was concluded. It was discovered that the bullet that passed through the wrist of the [illegible] and struck the foot of one of the violinists in the orchestra. The wounded musician is M. Bergler.

Stolypin's Message to Czar.

M. Stolypin was removed to the Makosky Surgical Sanitarium, to which several eminent surgeons were immediately summoned. A dispatch was sent to Dr. Zeidler of St. Petersburg, who forthwith started for this city on a special train. A hurried examination satisfied the physicians that the wounds were probably not fatal, though they were cautious in their expressions. The Premier bore up well, and arriving at the hospital asked his colleagues to convey a message to the Czar expressing his devotion.

"Tell him," whispered the wounded man, "I am ready to die for him."

M. Stolypin then requested those at the bedside to reassure his wife. Next, he asked that a priest be brought to him.

At noon a bulletin was issued, signed by Academician Rein, Profs. Volkovich, Malkoff, Janovsky, and Dietrichs, and Dr. Afanassieff, all of whom were in consultation. It read:

> There were two wounds, one in the right breast and the other in the wrist of the right hand. A bullet entered under the sixth rib inside the line of the papillae. No exit was found. The bullet was felt under the twelfth rib near the vertebrae. During the first hours there was a considerable loss of strength and great pain, which the Minister bore stoically. The first half of the night was disquieting. Toward morning there was an improvement. Temperature, 98.6, pulse 92.

Another report embodied in a telegram sent to the Premier's brother, Alexander Stolypin, in St. Petersburg, read:

> At the first consultation the physicians conjecture that the bullets wounded the pleura and grazed the liver. Condition very satisfactory. Pulse 70. Physicians decided operation unnecessary.

The Czar, it is declared, will carry out uninterruptedly his programme of celebrations and visits. He departed to-night by rail for Korosten. Thence he will go by motor car to Ovrutch in Volhynia. He is scheduled to make three stops and receive peasant deputations.

On Sunday the Czar will return to Kieff and unveil a monument to St. Olga. He will depart the same day on a 132-mile steamboat journey to Tchernigov, there to visit the churches and monasteries. On Sept. 19 the Imperial party will depart for Sebastopol to take up for three months their residence in the newly built palace at Yalta, in the Crimea.

POLICE FORESTALL DISORDER.

Arrest Students Who Denounce Jews in Kieff Streets.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 16.—A dispatch received by the Rech from Kieff early this morning says that a group of students appeared in the yard of the St. Sofia Cathedral late last evening and held a meeting at which inflammatory anti-Jewish speeches were made. A crowd gathered but the police quickly surrounded the manifestants and arrested several of the leaders, among them M. Golubeff, President of the University Union of Student Monarchists.

Meantime, though the temper of the populations in the southern cities, where hostility to the Jews is most acute, is very disquieting, no hint of an actual outbreak against the Jews as a result of the attempt has yet reached St. Petersburg in definite form. The Rech, which has close relations with Jewish circles throughout Russia, has no other reports of even minor disorders, but it is reported from other sources that a group of students from Kieff University to-day made a hostile demonstration in front of the residence and office of Attorney Bogroff, the father of M. Stolypin's assailant, situated in Bibikoff Boulevard, the central thoroughfare of the city.

The greatest anxiety has been and still is entertained here respecting the effect of the attempted assassination upon the masses in South Russia. Reports have been expected momentarily of anti-Jewish outbreaks, particularly in Bessarabia.

It is unofficially hinted that the condition of Premier Stolypin is hopeless and that his injuries, while apparently small, are exceedingly dangerous. This complicates the situation very greatly. The population in the South of Russia have for months been anticipating the imperial visit, and have been worked up to such a degree of patriotic fervor that if anti-Jewish outbreaks occur at this time it is not easy to see how far they will go or how they can be controlled.

Much astonishment is expressed that a crime of this nature could have been committed at Kieff, where Gov. Giers, who is a relative of M. Stolypin, and Inspector Kuliabko of the police, are reputed to be especially efficient. Inspector Kuliabko has previously succeeded in imprisoning a great number of revolutionaries and Ancharists, and three years ago forestalled an attempt upon the life of Governor General Sukhomlinoff, who now is Minister of War. He was also in charge of the precautionary police measures at a preceding visit of the Czar to Kieff.

A special train was sent from here today to the Stolypin estate in Kovno Province to convey the Premier's family to Kieff.

ARRAIGNS PREMIER STOLYPIN.

Cincinnati Professor Points Out Rigor of His Restrictive Programme.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 16.—In the opinion of Dr. Gotthard Deutsch, a well-known student of European politics, who occupies the Chair of Philosophy and History at the Hebrew Union College, the attempted assassination of Premier Stolypin has a deep political significance. He said to-day:

"The real significance of the attempt will not be known until we have definite information concerning the personality of the would-be assassin. This much, however, may be said with certainty: Stolypin's policy, which is no more than a repetition of the autocratic policy of Czar Nicholas I., is proved to be an absolute failure.

"The best way to gauge Stolypin's policy is his treatment of the Jews. All the restrictions on their right of residence, occupation, and attendance at schools are enforced with unrelenting vigor, and new limitations are constantly introduced.

"Stolypin himself is responsible for the restriction of the so-called "Externs." Up to his time the law passed under Alexander III., in 1887, restricting the number of Jewish students in secondary and academic schools to no more than 10 per cent. was enforced. But Jewish students who could find no room in the public schools could at least pass an examination before the Board of Examiners. Stolypin utilized a recess of the Duma to pass a measure which restricted even this privilege to a percentage.

"The Czar signed this law, although the leading constitutional lawyers declared it was unconstitutional without the consent of the Duma. A most important measure is the announcement of proposed legislation intended to restrict the commercial activities of the Jews in such a way that the banks should limit the business of the Jews to a certain percentage of their capital. The whole Cabinet, including the Minister of Finance, Kokovzoff, a noted Reactionary, was opposed to this measure, but the Czar favored it.

"This clearly indicates that Stolypin was the man who enjoyed the utmost confidence of the Czar in spite of the many rumors of his retirement. Whether his attempted assassination will make the Czar realize that he is driving the country into a civil war remains to be seen. There are still many people in Russia willing to sacrifice their lives in order to win liberty for their country."

SYMPATHY FOR STOLYPIN.

Washington Expresses Its Sorrow—Berlin Condemns Attack.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The official report of the attempt to assassinate Premier Stolypin reached the State Department to-day from the American Embassy at St. Petersburg. It said the assassin had been arrested, but had not been identified. The acting Minister of Foreign Affairs received word from Kieff at 5 o'clock this morning, the dispatch said, stating that the Premier's condition was very serious, but that the surgeons felt hopeful of his recovery.

The Department of State instructed the Embassy at St. Petersburg to express to the Russian Government the sorrow with which it had learned of this attempt upon the life of the distinguished Russian statesman, and its earnest hope for his recovery.

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—All the papers condemn the attack upon Premier Stolypin severely, although The Tageblatt and other Liberal sheets sharply criticises the Premier's policy. The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says that the crime must excite horror everywhere.

Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and Foreign Minister von Kiderlen-Waechter called at the Russian Embassy and expressed their sympathy.

SLEW 3,000 RUSSIANS.

Charge of Menschikoff, Russian Revolutionist, Against Stolypin.

Leonid Menschikoff, the Russian revolutionist who wormed his way for twenty years into the secrets of the Russian political police in order, as he says, finally to expose Azeff and other secret agents of the police among the revolutionist ranks, and who came to this city on Monday, declared yesterday that he was not at all surprised at the attempt on the life of Premier Stolypin in Kieff.

"Stolypin is merely eating the bread that Plehve and he himself baked," he said; "for Stolypin, despite his former offers of supposed constitutional concessions, was at heart and in his actions and policy as reactionary as any of his predecessors."

M. Menschikoff declared that he had and would make public in this country scores of police circulars and secret orders of Stolypin, sent to Menschikoff and other Police Chiefs when Stolypin first entered the Ministry, which will show that he was even then absolutely reactionary and opposed to all liberalism, while he was outwardly making a name for himself as a man of liberal views, by offering apparent constitutional concessions.

M. Menschikoff declared that he himself knew of no man in the revolutionist party named Bogroff and of no family of the name given by the would-be assassin of Stolypin in Kieff.

"He is probably a member of the Socialist-Revolutionary Party, rather than of the Social-Democratic Party," he said, "for the former favors and urges the use of terroristic methods, while the latter is opposed to terrorism and favors instead the use of strikes and industrial disturbances to achieve its ends. In the former party, as a rule, the official who is to be removed is designated by the organization itself; a man is selected to do the deed, and this man removes the official in question."

M. Menschikoff would not tell whether he suspected any particular revolutionist of the present attempt to kill Stolypin. He implied that he could not divulge such a man's identity, even if he did for any reason suspect him. He himself, said M. Menschikoff, had received no telegram or other notification from Russia telling of the attempt on the life of Premier Stolypin. Several telegrams lay on M. Menschikoff's table at the time.

"The attempt on the life of Stolypin," said M. Menschikoff, "is but another instance of the Red Terror fighting the White Terror. Stolypin, even at the time that he was most persistently pretending to offer constitutional privileges of one sort and another, was secretly carrying on his work of spreading the White Terror. It is called the White Terror because people grow white and die without bloodshed by poison and hanging," explained the former Police Chief, graphically drawing with his finger a rope-like circle around his neck as he spoke, "and Stolypin managed to put to death in the villages, country districts, and prisons more than 3,000 of the Russian people while he was Minister of the Interior.

"After 1906, when he had had a chance to see the revolutionary spirit at its zenith, he began to promise constitutional privileges and concessions in order to bring about more tranquillity in the public affairs. Later, when he saw the revolutionary fever somewhat subside, he revoked all his concessions. The Duma remained, but the Duma was only his tool, to do what he wished or be closed or dissolved at his order. Its sole usefulness was to lend an illusory appearance of popular legislation to the laws and policies that represented in reality Stolypin's will and that of the reactionaries about him.

"Unlike the other reactionaries, Stolypin preferred to keep up this illusion while carrying out his reactionary policies, but at heart he was bent on serving solely and ever his Czar. I have brought with me to this country many police documents and secret circulars of Stolypin showing his rigid suppression of all freedom, even in those days when he tried outwardly to seem most tolerant. He never let his right hand know what his left hand was doing.

"Learning his lessons from Plehve and the man who had gone before, it was but natural that he should expect to meet their fate some day. But he profited by their example, and arranged his guards and police much more carefully. Apparently he was not safe even so, however, and it may be that I, who have read so many of his secret oppressive orders, may now read his obituary."

M. Stolypin, said M. Menschikoff, had for some time been unmasked as to his real intentions, and the revolutionary party has been on his trail. The party, he said, is to-day much stronger than before, owing to the purging from it of Azeff and many other secret agents—"agents provacateurs"—who for many years succeeded in posing as ardent revolutionists, only to betray the revolution plans to the police.

Owing to the unmasking of Stolypin in this way, he said, it would probably become necessary, in case Stolypin should die, to put in his place some man whose policies and leanings are not yet clearly known to the people, a man without any pronounced "political physiognomy," but who is reactionary at heart. This would probably make impossible for some time to come, he thought the appointment of the out-and-out reactionary, Kokovstoff, the present Minister of Finance, who has long been hungering for Stolypin's place, but whose anti-constitutional tendencies are too well known.

TO ARREST FIVE FOR HAWKINS MURDER

LEFT A NOTE TO MOTHER

No Suggestion of Suicide in It—Witness Tells of Strange Happenings on Night She Disappeared.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 15.—The second Coroner's inquest into the death of seventeen-year-old Myrtle Hawkins of Hendersonville, whose body was found in Lake Osceola last Sunday morning, was begun this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, and the taking of testimony continued until 8:15 to-night, when adjournment was taken until to-morrow at 10 o'clock. The evidence adduced at the inquest this afternoon was more than sufficient to cause the arrest of five people, warrants for whom have already been issued and are in the hands of the police awaiting word from Solicitor Hall Johnston to make the arrests.

The persons for whom the warrants have been issued are being closely watched, and will be taken into custody after the inquest. The warrants are for a trained nurse of Penrose, a small station on the Transylvania Railroad; a married man, and former friend of Miss Hawkins; a young married couple, and this married woman's father. First degree murder is charged against the trained nurse, and the others will be charged in the second degree.

Robert Waddell, who lives at the home of Dan McCall, testified that there was much confusion in the house on Wednesday night and all day Thursday, that night, and all day Friday. George Headly and his wife, A. B. McCall, and Dan McCall would frequently engage in earnest conversation. On Saturday night the witness heard men walking cautiously across a bridge leading to that part of the lake where the Hawkins girl was found. The next day he found tow sacking in the loft on which was an imprint as if somebody had been lying down. There were loose sacks which could have been used for covering.

Waddell was absent from the house on Thursday night and attended a religious meeting on Saturday at the urgent request of the other parties. It was after he returned from the meeting that he heard the steps on the bridge, and the body was found close by next morning. Waddell said he also found a torn-up place in the woods near the barn and there were many tracks leading to and fro, one of which was made by a woman's shoe with a sharp half-worn heel.

Homer Hawkins, a brother of the murdered girl, submitted at the inquest a note found by his mother from Myrtle saying she was leaving home, but not giving any indication of suicide.

George Bradley on the witness stand stated emphatically that he knew nothing of the death of Myrtle Hawkins. He admitted that Miss Isabel Grant spent Saturday night with Mrs. Beatrice McCall, but did not know where she came from nor for what purpose.

Dan McCall denied every question of the solicitor, but made a bad blunder when he said that Miss Grant had spent Saturday night at his house, A. D. McCall having testified that she stayed at his home.

TAFT UPHOLDS WILEY, BUT REPROVES AIDS

Ignores Wickersham's Advice That Chemistry Head Be Removed Over Rusby Case.

ATTORNEY GENERAL MISLED

Would Have Ruled Differently Had He the Full Case Before Him—Department Changes Likely.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 15.—The resignation of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry in the Department of Agriculture, and probably the best-known pure food expert in the Government service, will not be asked for by President Taft, despite recommendations that it be requested, made by the Personnel Board of the department and indorsed by Attorney General Wickesham. The "condign punishment" for Dr. Wiley, which Mr. Wickersham held to be necessary, will not be meted out by the Chief Executive.

The President's opinion, carrying no word of criticism for Dr. Wiley, but many a word of praise, was made public here to-day. There is no indication in it that the President feels that he "turned down" Mr. Wickersham by not accepting his recommendations. He explains that the Attorney General's findings in the case were made with less complete data than was before him when he took it up. In the opinion the President admits what has been well known to many persons close to the Administration, that there is trouble in the Department of Agriculture. Speaking of the Congressional inquiry into the department, unfinished at the last session, but to be taken up again next Winter, Mr. Taft says:

"The broader issues raised by the investigation, which have a much weightier relation than this one to the general efficiency of the department, may require much more radical action than the question I have considered and decided."

Department Shake-Up Likely.

That this statement indicates a serious shake-up in the department next Winter was freely predicted here to-day. There have never been any intimations that Secretary Wilson was disposed to retire, and it is not believed here that the President would request him to do so. A general sweep of the affairs in the department, however, could easily be required by the President and carried through when he returns to Washington in November.

The Wiley case arose over the employment by the Bureau of Chemistry of Dr H. H. Rusby of New York, pharmacognosist of the bureau. In effect, Dr. Wiley, Dr. L. F. Kebler, Chief of the drug laboratory, and Dr. W. D. Bigelow, Assistant Chief of the bureau, were charged with having conspired to pay Dr. Rusby a salary of $1,600 a year, with the tacit understanding that he was to do only enough work to secure this amount at the rate of $20 a day. This was held to violate the act of Congress, approved March 15, 1898, which declared that no classified scientific investigator should receive more than $9 a day. In addition to the recommendation that Dr. Wiley be allowed to resign, the Personnel Board held that Dr. Rusby should be dismissed; that Dr. Kebler should be reduced, and that Dr. Bigelow be allowed to quit the service. None of these recommendations is upheld in the President's opinion.

Dr. Kebler is reprimanded for "disingenuous conduct" in his letters to Dr. Rusy. The President says that the letters suggest a "willingness to resort to evasion" that calls for official reproof. Dr. Bigelow is held to have been "overzealous," and a reprimand by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, to whom the opinion, which is in letter form, is directed, is ordered by the President.

Dr. Rusby is held to be as guiltless as Dr. Wiley in this particular matter. A charge against him, however, of effecting the appointment on the common "laborers' rôle" of a physician and expert "whom he could use to do his work at a very small stipend when he himself was called away" the President holds to be "not especially creditable." The case, the President says, has made apparent the "doubtful legislative policy of placing limitations upon bureau Chiefs to exact per diem compensation for experts."

The President's letter, which is directed to the Secretary of Agriculture, reads:

"I return herewith the papers which you have submitted to me in the matter of the report of the Committee on Personnel of the Department of Agriculture, in which, after summarizing the evidence adduced before them, they recommended that Dr. H. H. Rusby, pharmacognosist in the Bureau of Chemistry, be dismissed from the service; that Dr. L. F. Kebler, Chief of the Drug Laboratory in the Bureau of Chemistry, be reduced from his present position, and Dr. H. W. Wiley, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry, and Dr. W. D. Bigelow, Assistant Chief of the bureau, be given an opportunity to resign from the positions which they now hold in the Bureau of Chemistry on account of the irregularities in the appointment of Dr. H. H. Rusby.

"The facts shown by the papers stated shortly are as follows:

"Dr. Rusby lived in New York and was employed as a scientific expert in the Bureau of Chemistry to examine importation of drugs, under an agreement by which he received $20 a day for laboratory work and $50 a day for attendance in court.

"On May 24, 1909, the Attorney General advised the Secretary of Agriculture that, under the act of March 4, 1907, (34, Stat. 1,280,) no classified scientific investigator should receive a salary to exceed $9 a day. On May 29, 1909, an order was issued putting him on the roll at a salary of $9 a day when actually employed. Dr. Rusby objected to this and applied to Dr. Kebler, Chief of the Drug Laboratory, to secure a different arrangement. The matter seems to have been held in abeyance for some time. Finally, as a result of a conference between Dr. Kebler, Dr. Bigelow, and Dr. Wiley, with respect to the request of Dr. Rusby for an increased compensation, Dr. Wiley said he would submit to you for your approval an appointment of Dr. Rusby at a salary at the rate of $2,000 per annum on the miscellaneous roll. Dr. Bigelow then wrote to Dr. Rusby, under date of Jan. 21, 1910, as follows:

Bigelow-Rusby Letters.

Kebler and I took the matter up with Dr. Wiley to-day, and he said he would approve it if we had on record an understanding with you so we could not be held responsible for your receiving an annual salary and not devoting your whole time to the bureau. I told him that if you were given an appointment at the rate of $170 a month, you would agree not to receive more than $20 a day for time actually employed. By that I mean the usual official day of seven and one-half hours. This would be equivalent to eight and one-half days a month on the average. I told him that if it happened that your work for the department amounted on the average to less time than that you would ask for leave of absence for sufficient time to bring it to that basis.

"Dr. Rusby answered this letter and questioned what was meant by it. He said he did not understand Bigelow's letter clearly, and supposed that if he did not earn the entire salary, he would not expect to receive any more than was earned.

"Meantime on Feb. 6, Dr. Wiley submitted to you an appointment of Dr. Rusby at a salary at the rate of $1,000 per annum on the miscellaneous roll. He made the reduction after examining the records and finding the amount of work done by Dr. Rusby during the preceding two years. You approved this appointment.

"After the appointment Dr. Bigelow wrote Dr. Rusby that he thought the present arrangement was better than the former arrangement when he was receiving $20 a day for laboratory work, and $50 a day for court work, because he said: 'You are now assured of getting a certain amount each month, irrespective of the time spent and you can still so plan your work as not to interfere with your regular duties to a minimum extent.'

"This did not satisfy Dr. Rusby and he sought further information in a letter dated March 3, 1911, as follows:

Kindly recall that on my side the basis of compensation is not less than $20 per day. At that rate only eighty days' work per year are provided for, and that is not time enough to satisfactorily perform more than the current port work here, leaving no time for examination of inter-State samples, especially microscopical examinations, or for attendance at court. For every day at court on the average one day of preparation is required.

The above facts lead to the inquiry, Would not the salary named compel me to either do very much more than eighty days' work per year, or otherwise fail to do the necessary amount of work in a satisfactory manner?

"On March 4 Dr. Kebler wrote to Dr. Rusby, stating among other things the following:

Personally I am of the opinion that your new appointment is much better than the old. Under this appointment you can do as little as one day's work per month, and you get your salary. On the other hand, if you work five or ten days your salary would be the same per month. It seems to me that you have the matter largely in your own hands. I am satisfied that if you do not accept the new appointment nothing more can be done, and your services so far as our work is concerned can no longer be utilized materially in the future.

"On March 6, Dr. Rusby wrote to Dr. Kebler, saying that he had decided to accept the appointment.

The Nub of the Charge.

"The nub of the charge by the Personnel Board was that Dr. Wiley, Dr. Kebler, Dr. Bigelow, and Dr. Rusby in effect conspired to put on the record a contract for a general employment of Dr. Rusby's services for $1,600 a year, but actually and secretly made a contract with him by which he was only to do enough work during the year for the $1,600 to secure him a compensation of $20 a day, and that this was done in deliberate and defiant violation of the law as interpreted by the Attorney General in the opinion already referred to, in which he held that Congress had limited the compensation of experts to $9 a day.

"After you submitted to me the report of the Personnel Board, I asked the Attorney General to examine it and give me his opinion in respect to the matter, because it concerned the violation of the law as interpreted by him in one of his opinions. He did so, and advised me that the recommendations of the Personnel Board ought to be caried out. In connection with his recommendations he invited attention to a clause in the act of Congress approved March 15, 1898, still in force, that enjoins upon the head of each department the duty of exacting from the employes in that department, who are under an annual salary, labor amounting to seven hours every day but a holiday.

"An examination of the records satisfied me that the questions had not been presented to the persons involved in such a way as to enable them to make full defense. They had only been called as witnesses and cross-examined without a full understanding that they were under trial, which might involve their dismissal. According, I directed you to submit the whole record, together with the opinion of the Attorney General, to each one of the persons charged, and invite from him an answer. These answers were filed in due course, and are quite full in detail. The answer of Dr. Wiley specifically denies that he ever saw the correspondence between Dr. Kebler and Dr. Rusby, or that he ever consciously entered into an arrangement by which Dr. Rusby was in effect to receive compensation at a rate in excess of that prescribed by the statute as interpreted by the Attorney General.

Precedents for Engaging Rusby.

"The truth is, it appears from the answers of Dr. Wiley, Dr. Kebler, and Dr. Bigelow, that there had been a good many precedents in the department which seemed to justify the employment of Dr. Rusby at an annual salary, when it was not expected that his entire time would be taken up.

"This was the case with respect to the employment of what is known as the Remsen Board. That board was created by order of President Roosevelt for the very important purpose of enabling the Secretary of Agriculture to have reviewed the decisions of the Bureau of Chemistry in cases where those decisions involved disputed technical questions and would, if sustained, have destroyed valuable and profitable business theretofore regarded as lawful. In such cases it was deemed wise not to allow the destruction of what would be otherwise lawful property and business on the decision of only one expert or the head of a bureau. Accordingly, the Remsen Board was created, composed of experts, all of whom were known to be engaged in other professional work than that of the reviewing board. Dr. Remsen, the head of the baord, occupies an important position in Johns Hopkins University, and that is his principal occupation. Another member, Dr. Russell Chittenden of the Sheffield Scientific School, is Dean of that school, and that is his chief vocation. Hence the employment of the Remsen Board at the rate of $2,000 a year for each member necessarily involved the proposition that such an annual salary might lawfully be paid without requiring labor of seven hours a day from each person so employed. This the Attorney General in his opinion intimates is contrary to the statute, but in the Agricultural Department it was not thought to be the case. Solicitor McCabe, to whom I referred the question of precedents made in the case, replied that in the practice of the department the clause in the appropriation act of March 4, 1908, had been held to have no application to the employment of experts outside of Washington.

"It is necessary fully to understand this difference between the attitude of the department toward an employment at an annual salary of this kind and the opinion of the Attorney General in this matter, because if Dr. Wiley and his associates had understood that the sixteen-hundred-dollar annual salary required them to exact from Dr. Rusby seven hours a day for all the workdays of the year then, of course, his employment must have been known by them to be illegal, and under the circumstances to be only a cover for a different contract of employment; but if they understood, as seems to have been the case generally in the Agricultural Department, that such an employment at an annual salary might be entered into with experts of this kind, and only subject the experts to an obligation to work for the department whenever called upon, with the understanding that they had some other vocation to which their chief attention was given, it clearly reconciled the action of Dr. Wiley with a desire to comply with the law.

Wickersham Had Incomplete Case.

"The recommendation of the Attorney General given to me was upon only part of the evidence, and hence his judgment was different, doubtless, from what it would have been if he had had the whole record before him, as I have now. It seems fairly clear that Dr. Wiley, after an examination of the records, concluded that the employment of Dr. Rusby at $9 a day for laboratory work and $50 a day for court work would amount to $1,600 a year if the department called on him whenever they needed him, and that it was this arrangement to which you consented. In Dr. Kebler's anxiety to induce Dr. Rusby to accept the new terms of employment he certainly betrayed a willingness to construe the contract of employment of Dr. Rusby at $1,600 a year in one way to reconcile it with the law, and in another way to satisfy Dr. Rusby in his wish to secure $20 a day, and I think he ought to be reprimanded for his disingenuous conduct in writing such letters as he did. He said that he did not intend to violate the statute as interpreted by the Attorney General, and, indeed, that he did not know exactly what the ruling was; but whether he did or not, the language of his letters does not have a commendable tone and suggests a willingness to resort to evasion that calls for official reproof.

"In respect to Dr. Rusby I do not find that he was advised at all as to the legal difficulty, and that he was only seeking for additional compensation which he thought to be adequate.

"The truth is, the limitations upon bureau chiefs and heads of departments to exact per diem compensations for the employment of experts in such cases as this is a doubtful legislative policy. Here is the Pure Food act, which it is of the highest importance to enforce, and in respect to which the interests opposed to its enforcement are likely to have all the money at their command needed to secure the most effective expert evidence. The Government ought not to be at a disadvantage in this regard, and one cannot withhold one's sympathy with an earnest effort by Dr. Wiley to pay proper compensation and secure expert assistance in the enforcement of so important a statute, certainly in the beginning, when the questions arising under it are of capital importance to the public.

"If this were a knowing, willful, deliberate effort to evade the statute as construed by the Attorney General, accompanied by a scheme to conceal the evasion and violation, I should think the punishment recommended by the Personnel Board, and concurred in by the Attorney General, was none too great, but an examination of the whole case satisfies me that a different construction ought to be put upon what was done; that the evidence does not show that Dr. Wiley was a party to the correspondence or the letters upon which the chief charge is founded, and that his action in the matter was only in accord with previous precedents in the department which justified him in doing what he did.

"With respect to the other persons charged, I find an overzeal in Dr. Kebler and Dr. Bigelow, which prompted a disingenuous method of squaring Dr. Rusby's desire for what he thought was adequate compensation with the contract which you and Dr. Wiley were willing to make with him, and that for this Dr. Kebler and Dr. Bigelow should be reprimanded by you. So far as Dr. Rusby is concerned, with respect to this particular contract, I do not find him at fault. For purposes of punishment or dismissal, I cannot charge him with knowledge of the legal difficulties involved in his employment.

"I examined the record in this case a number of weeks ago and reached the conclusion which I have stated here; but meantime, a committee of the House of Representatives deemed it proper to institute an investigation into the Department of Agriculture, and especially into the Bureau of Chemistry and its relation to the department generally.

"It seemed to me, under these conditions, that perhaps it was wiser for me to delay until the investigation was completed and the report of the committee made. The committee has not made a report, although I believe the evidence has been substantially closed, and will not do so until the next session of Congress. Further consideration satisfies me that there are very much broader questions involved in the investigation, and the evidence there brought out, than in the present charge, which is narrow and definite, and can now be properly disposed of. The broader issues raised by the investigation, which have a much weightier relation than this one to the general efficiency of the department, may require much more radical action than the question I have here considered and decided.

Reproves Rusby.

"There is another charge against Dr. Rusby for securing the appointment, on the common laborers rolls, of a physician and expert whom he could use to do his work at a very small stipend when he himself was called away in other employment. I regret to say that the arrangement which Dr. Rusby thus made is not especially creditable to him, and shakes in some degree one's confidence in his avowed wish to make a personal pecuniary sacrifice in the public interest for the enforcement of the pure food law. But Dr. Rusby's position as an expert of high standing is such that I do not think that any more than this expression of opinion should be imposed as penalty. My information is that the Government needs his services, and that he has already rendered valuable aid. The error referred to, committed by him, does not call for further action or remark.

"You will communicate the result to the Personnel Board, and also to the persons charged.

"Sincerely yours,
"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

WASHINGTON NOT SURPRISED.

Any Other Decision, It Is Said, Would Have Been Too Unpopular.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The announcement from Beverly to-day that the President had decided in favor of Dr. Wiley in the controversy growing out of his effort to employ Dr. H. H. Rusby of New York, pharmocognost of the Bureau of Chemistry in the Department of Agriculture, caused no surprise or excitement. The long delay in deciding the case and the disclosures made in the investigation by the Moss Committee during the recent session of Congress, left little doubt as to what the President's attitude would be. There was little choice from a political point of view, as a decision against Dr. Wiley would have been greeted from one end of the country to the other with a frantic howl of protest.

Dr. Wiley was sixty miles from Washington to-day, being at his farm at Bluemont, Va., when the news of the decision came to the White House from Beverly. He was told the result over the long-distance telephone and in reply said:

"That's fine; of course I am glad to hear it."

When asked if he had any statement to make to the public he said:

"No; without more detailed information of what the President has written, it would be impossible for me to say more than that I am pleased and gratified."

"But anyhow," it was suggested, "the pure-food law will be administered by you, and with a pretty definite understanding that the people expect it to be administered up to the handle."

"The people have acted as if they liked this law, haven't they?" responded Dr. Wiley.

Among prominent officials of the Department of Agriculture not one expressed any view as to the decision except that it was what was expected. Solicitor McCabe is away on vacation. Dr. Dunlap, whose alliance with Mr. McCabe on the Board of Food and Drug Inspection, led to the controversy, was reported this afternoon to have resigned. He was found at the Department and promptly denied that he had or intended to do so. Attorney General Wickersham is in New York.

What effect the President's decision will have on the execution of the pure-food law is a matter difficult to predict. Dr. Wiley has always claimed that President Taft has blocked the enforcement of the law more than any other one agency.

DECISION WISE, SAYS WILSON.

Will Give General Satisfaction, Agriculture Secretary Thinks.

TRAER, Iowa, Sept. 15.—"I think President Taft has considered the so-called Dr. Wiley case carefully, decided it wisely, and that his decision will give general satisfaction throughout the country."

Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture, who is at his home here, so stated this afternoon. He said he would have no further comment to make until the full text of President Taft's letter had received his attention.

Mr. Wilson expressed surprise that President Taft had rendered his decision in the Wiley case to-day. He said he had not expected the decision for several days. The Secretary added he had had no previous intimation of what the decision of the President was to be.

CHEMISTS GRATIFIED.

New York Physicians Indorse Decision—Rusby's Action Explained.

The news that Dr. Wiley had been upheld by President Taft was received in New York yesterday with satisfaction, particularly among physicians and chemists.

"Of course, we are all pleased at the outcome," said Dr. John Winters Brannan, President of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, a sentiment echoed by many other physicians.

"I am much pleased with the decision," said Dr. H. H. Rusby, Dean of the College of Pharmacy of Columbia University, whose remuneration for services as an expert was made the basis of the charge against Dr. Wiley. "The President's statement that the limitations upon bureau chiefs and heads of departments regarding compensation to experts is a doubtful legislative policy is a source of considerable satisfaction, and his further remarks about the importance of the Pure Food act are an indication, I think, that its administration is to have his full co-operation, which it needs seriously.

Dr. Rusby would not discuss the closing paragraph of the President's letter, which reproves Dr. Rusby for effecting the appointment by the department of a physician and expert to do his work at a small stipend. One of Dr. Rusby's friends, however, took exception to this statement.

"The President seems to have a wrong idea of what happened," he said. "Dr. Rusby did not secure the appointment. He simply wrote asking if it were proper that Dr. Mansfield should be appointed in such a manner, and, as a matter of fact, the appointment was never made. It was not to do his own work at the college, but his work at the Appraiser's Stores, his Government work, for which he wanted some one appointed, and he supposed that the laborer's fee was the only one that could be given. Dr. Rusby was called to Chattanooga in March to do Government service, and he did not want the work at the Appraiser's Stores to be held up in his absence."

Dr. Charles Baskerville, Professor of Chemistry at the City College, said:

"I am glad that Dr. Wiley is to be retained, and don't very well see how the decision could have been otherwise.

"The power and the right of the Government to summon and employ an expert's services should be limited in some way, else there would be serious dangers. The Government should be sure that its laws are thoroughly just before calling an expert to support the prosecution of them."

Dr. William M. Polk, President of the American Academy of Medicine and Dean of the Cornell Medical College, remarked:

"I have not followed the ins and outs of the matter, but it seems to me that Dr. Wiley was doing the work he was put there to do, and that he ought not to be taken away from it."

"Good enough," was Health Commissioner Lederle's comment, and he added his conviction that the Government should be at liberty to summon experts at experts' prices, just as it employs legal talent at a cost comparable to that of legal talent employed in private business.

BURGLARS PUT FIRE OUT WITH CHAMPAGNE

In a Trap They Made for Themselves, with Water Turned Off, and Something Had to be Done.

TOOK $5,000 IN SILVER THEN

Edward Mayer's Apartment in the Stratford Robbed While the Family Was in Europe and Servants Away.

When Edward Mayer, a cotton merchant, returned with his family from Europe the other day, he was informed that in his absence thieves had made their way into his apartment at 1,070 Madison Avenue and stolen all of the household silverware. Although a complete list of the articles taken is yet to be made out, it is known that the amount of the robbery will be about $5,000, probably a little more than that. For more than a week detectives from the police force and detectives from a private agency have been quietly at work on the case, but so far they have uncovered no trace of the missing silver and no clue as to who stole it.

The Mayers sailed from New York on June 8, and at their departure their apartment was closed for the Summer. It is on the eighth floor of The Stratford, a nine-story apartment house at the southwest corner of Madison Avenue and Eighty-first Street. The rooms were supposed to remain closed until Sept. 6, when one of the maids returned to town to open the apartment and prepare it for the home-coming of the family. She found the sideboard doors wide open and the drawers on the floor, upside down and empty. The room showed no other confusion, but here and there she saw drops of candle grease.

The maid hurried to the shelves set in the wall of the bathroom, where she knew that the family had put away what silver was not left in the sideboard. The door to the closet was thrown wide and the silver was gone. Without stopping to look further she went downstairs to interview the Superintendent, Mr. Schramek. He followed her to the apartment, gave one look at the sideboard and closet, and decided there was work for the police. So he reported the robbery to the East Eighty-eighth Street Station, and Detectives White and Lynch dropped around to have a look at the place. Before they had worked very long they saw that they had taken hold of a knotty problem and one presenting some features new to their experience.

In the first place, it was evident that while at their job the burglars had accidentally set the apartment on fire and were trapped there with the silver in their possession, with every reason to avoid taking refuge in other parts of the building, and without a drop of water at their command, for with the Mayor's going the water supply was turned off from the apartment. The burglars were resourceful, however. They had no water, but they had champagne, and they recklessly extinguished the flames with that.

The condition of the closet indicated that there had been a fire, for the paper coverings of the shelves were in ashes and the shelves themselves were charred. Some table linen was burned and the whole closet was blackened with smoke. From the presence of the candle grease in the dining room and around the floor in front of the closet it is probable that the burglars burned one to test the ware before taking the trouble to carry it off. The quality seems to have suited them, for they left none behind. Probably it was the candle that started the blaze, and the open spigots of the tub in the bathroom testified to an effort to use a more economical extinguisher than what was used. But the water was turned off, and the burglars ran for the basket of champagne, which they had noted, doubtless with appreciation, in the dining room. The basket was dragged to the bathroom and a dozen bottles were forfeited to the flames. The amount that fell flooded a floor of tiling.

The police have not found any one who could explain, with any certainty, how the burglars got into the apartment or how they got out with their rather bulky plunder. The $5,000 worth of silver was in large quantity and heavy. The police think they are safe in assuming that the job required at least two men, and they believe that a wagon must have been used if the silver was carried away in one trip. The difficulty and daring were increased by the fact that under Commissioner Waldo's system Eighty-first Street and Madison Avenue is one of the fixed posts where you can find a policeman any time you want him.

There was no sign of forced entry to the apartment, and it is supposed that the men who took the silver either entered from another apartment by the fire escape or had a pass key to the front door, with the probabilities largely in favor of the latter method. The detectives have been unable to fix the time of the robbery.

The detectives examined with interest the empty champagne bottles that strewed the floor, and on several of these they found distinct finger prints to reward their inspection.

Mr. Mayer is stopping for the present at the Netherland Hotel. Supt. Schramek of the Stratford seemed loath to discuss the robbery. In fact, he declined to say anything about it.

CRISIS IN HARRIMAN STRIKE.

J. W. Kline to Demand Recognition of Federation in Chicago To-day.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—F. G. Athearn, head of the Bureau of Economies of the Southern Pacific Railroad, said today that important developments in the present disagreement between the officials of the Harriman lines and the shopmen's federation are expected to-morrow. He refused to give details, but left the impression that the situation has become more serious than at the time of the departure of J. W. Kline for Chicago.

Kline, the President of the International Blacksmiths' Union and spokesman for the shopmen, is expected to arrive in Chicago to-morrow. His mission, according to local labor leaders, is to serve an ultimatum on Julius Kruttschnitt, Vice President of the Harriman lines, demanding the recognition of the federation of shop employes.

"The Harriman lines are doing nothing to disturb the present arrangement with the men," said Mr. Athearn. "No hostile action will begin with us. But the company's position has been made plain during the recent conferences. Something is likely to develop to-morrow, but it will not come from us."

PLACES FOR TWO DEMOCRATS

T. H. Guy and C. H. Jackson Deputy Conservation Commissioners.

ALBANY, Sept. 15.—The Conservation Commission to-night announced the appointment of Thomas H. Guy of Troy as Deputy Conservation Commissioner for the Division of Fish and Game to succeed John B. Burnham of Essex, resigned, and Charles H. Jackson of Albany as Deputy Commissioner for the Division of Lands and Forests. Each place pays $3,500 a year.

Mr. Guy is a native of Troy, a lawyer, a graduate of Yale, class of 1891, and of the Albany Law School, class of 1892. He is a Democrat, and was recommended by the Rensselaer County Democratic organization.

Mr. Jackson was born in New York City in 1861, and was graduated from the Columbia Law School in 1884. He has been actively interested in irrigation and water power projects in Idaho. He is a Democrat.

KIDNAPPED, THEY SAY.

Boy Runaways' Story to Escape a Licking for Truancy.

John Bauer, 12 years old, of 303 East 146th Street, and Edward Carroll, 10 years old, of 178 Lincoln Avenue, the Bronx, who had been missing from their homes since Wednesday and whose parents had notified the police of their disappearance, were found in a vacant lot behind some billboards at Mott Avenue and 144th Street, yesterday.

A grimy urchin called at the Bauer home yesterday afternoon and offered to guide Mrs. Bauer to her boy if he were given 50 cents. Mrs. Bauer communicated with the Carroll family and sent Mary Carroll with the volunteer guide. The youngsters told a story of having been kidnapped to explain their truancy. It is believed they ran away to escape going to school after the vacation, which ended last week.

SHOT FRIEND TO WED WIDOW.

Manufacturer Arrested After F. H. Bezek Was Slain Confesses.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 15.—Charged with having murdered Frank H. Bezek, a prosperous German of this city, Frank Mali, supposed to have been Bezek's trusted friend, was arrested late to-night and confessed the crime. The murdered man's wife, Mary, a handsome woman, 29 years old, was arrested as an accessory to the crime. Both admitted they were desperately in love and wanted to get rid of Bezek so they could get married.

Bezek, who was Superintendent of the compressing department of the Moon Run Coal Company, was on his way to his home in Moon Run from his office a week ago, when some one jumped from behind a clump of bushes and shot him five times through the heart. The murderer then cut his pockets away, taking all the money he had. This caused detectives to believe he was murdered by highwaymen.

Mrs. Bezek, standing on the porch of her home with her three children, witnessed the crime, and ran to her husband's assistance when she heard the shots. The detectives finally abandoned the highwayman theory, and decided it was some one close to the Bezek family who committed the crime.

They found that Mali, a manufacturer of fancy baskets, who lived near by, had disappeared. They watched the Bezek home, and yesterday saw Mrs. Bezek receiving a letter from Mali. They tore the letter from the woman. She confessed that Mali had killed her husband, and that she was an accessory to the crime.

Mali, hiding at a little town twenty miles away, was arrested through a decoy letter. He was also brought to Pittsburgh to-night with Mrs. Bezek and locked in the county jail.

Mali says he committed the murder with Bezek's own gun, which he took from his trunk in his absence.

The police are exercising great precaution, as threats of lynching the couple are rife.

MILL GIRL SHOT BY FATHER.

Schahte Says He Intended to Kill His Entire Family.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—Mae Schahte, 22 years old, of 1,502 Palmer Street, was shot to-night by her father, George Schahte, as she was leaving her place of employment and probably will die before morning.

Schahte, after his arrest, avowed that it had been his intention to kill his entire family, consisting of his wife, three daughters, and three sons. He was foiled in his attempt to shoot Mrs. Shahte and the smaller children when he called at her home because she barricaded the door.

This afternoon Schahte went to see his wife, and when he could not get in he went to a hosiery mill, where [illegible] two of his daughters worked. He waited nearly an hour until the employes began to leave the factory.

Mae and her sister came out arm in arm. As they reached the door Schahte drew back, pulled the revolver from his pocket, and aimed at the girls.

Gertrude jumped back into the doorway, and her sister Mae started to run down the street. Schahte fired five times, one of the bullets hitting the girl in the back, penetrating a lung.

She continued down the street and fell unconscious as she sought refuge in a house where she found the door open. She was placed in a patrol wagon and sent to a hospital.

Schahte was surrounded by hundreds of men and boys, shouting "Lynch him," but he waved his revolver and none dared approach. A policeman came running up, and Schahte sprang forward rapidly pulling the trigger, but he had exhausted all his ammunition, and the revolver was sent flying from his hand by a blow from the policeman's club.

The patrolman was forced to draw his revolver to defend his prisoner from the crowd until help arrived.

MUST LEAVE THE NAVY.

Lieut. Smith's Only Alternative to Resigning Is a Court-Martial.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Lieut. Roy C. Smith, recently attached to the Saratoga, flagship of Rear Admiral Murdock of the Asiatic station, against whom serious charges have been preferred, is expected to reach San Francisco to-morrow. The vessel on which he is returning from the Orient will be boarded in the harbor by an officer sent by the Navy Department to inform Lieut. Smith that if he attempts to withdraw his promise to tender immediately his resignation he will be ordered back to Asia to face a court-martial.

Court-martial proceedings would have been ordered immediately after the court of inquiry reported, if the authorities had been entirely satisfied that the necessary evidence would be forthcoming to insure a conviction. Navy Department officials refrained from making public any information regarding the charges.

Lieut. Smith is in no way related to Capt. Roy C. Smith nor to Midshipman Roy C. Smith.

ARMY SIX-SHOOTER TO GO.

Ten-Shot Automatic Pistol of Larger Calibre in Its Place.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The time-honored army six-shooter will become obsolete next August, giving way to the march of improvement as embodied in the ten-shot automatic pistol.

This weapon has finally demonstrated its great superiority over the old-fashioned revolver, and has already been extensively adopted in the regular army. An order issued from militia headquarters to-day provides for the exchange of all .38 calibre army revolvers now in the hands of the militia for the .45 calibre automatic pistol next August.

The exchange will be made without cost to the States and Territories. The heavy ball of the automatic is believed to have twice the power of the .38 revolver, and is capable of killing a man or a horse at about twice the range.

Lauterbach Sues a Note Broker.

Edward Lauterbach has begun suit against John M. Darrah, a broker of 53 Exchange Place, for $1,475, which he alleges Darrah owes him on a note he negotiated. Mr. Lauterbach says that he made a note for $3,500 payable to himself in August, 1909, and gave it to Darrah to sell. Subsequently, he says, Darragh informed him that he had sold the note at par, and that his commission would be $525. Mr. Lauterbach says he has received $1,500 only from Darrah, and that there is still due $1,475.

MAILS BY AEROPLANE WILL BE TRIED HERE

Hitchcock Orders Air Service Between the City and Nassau Boulevard, L. I.

SPECIAL FIELD POST OFFICE

Trips to be Made Daily at the Aviation Meet There Late This Month.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Not to be outdone by the British postal authorities in the carrying of mails through the air, the latest method of letter transportation, Postmaster General Hitchcock to-night gave his consent to the establishment of an experimental aeroplane mail route between one of the outlying branches of the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Post Office and the aerodrome at Nassau Boulevard, L. I., during the international aviation meet which will be held there from Sept. 23 to Oct. 1. Aviators and their employes who will be stationed on the field throughout the meet will be able thereby to receive their mail almost as quickly as though they were in one of the large cities.

It is probable that a special postal station will be established at the aviation field and a temporary Postmaster appointed by the department to conduct the business of receiving and dispatching mails and selling postage stamps. During the time in which the meet is held officers of the Post Office Department will watch with close interest the experiment of carrying mail by aeroplanes.

This will not be the first instance in which United States mails have been officially authorized to be carried by aeroplanes. In November of last year Postmaster General Hitchcock formally approved arrangements for the carrying of a pouch of mail from the transatlantic steamer Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, outbound to Europe, back to New York while the vessel was off the Long Island Coast. Aviator J. A. McCurdy was to have attempted this first official aerial transmission of mails, but because of stormy weather the attempt was not made.

The first sucessful official aeroplane letter route was that opened last Saturday by the British postal administration, which began a series of experiments in the carrying of mails by aeroplanes from Hendon, England, to Windsor Castle, a distance of almost twenty miles. Four aviators, with two biplanes and two monoplanes, were engaged in the work, and about 100,000 letters constituted the first delivery. These experiments have been watched with considerable interest by the United States postal authorities, who are of the opinion that the day when letters will be forwarded from city to city by airships is not far distant.

AVIATOR RODGERS HERE.

Will Start Flight to Pacific Coast To-morrow from Sheepshead Bay.

Col. P. Rodgers, who will try the coast-to-coast flight, arrived in New York last night from Dayton, Ohio. Mr. Rodgers will leave the Sheepshead Bay race track to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, weather permitting, flying his Vin-Fiz Flyer from New York to Los Angeles. His hangar car was shipped by express from Dayton yesterday morning, and will arrive in Jersey City at 11 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Rodgers will be the second entrant in the transcontinental flight to leave New York. Since the Wright Company met with disappointment at Grant Park they have been working on a racing machine of lesser dimensions and greater engine power, and the result of their experiments and Mr. Rodgers's flying has been the development of the new Wright biplane, known as the E. X. This machine is thirty-two feet from tip to tip of plane and has a four-cylinder, 40 horse power engine, capable of developing a speed of seventy-five miles an hour with the wind and from forty-eight to fifty-four against it.

Effort is now being made to have his Cousin, Lieut. John Rodgers of the navy, and Thomas Sopwith, the famous English aviator, escort him from the field on Sunday afternoon and guide him over the network of railway tracks in Jersey City, so that Mr. Rodgers will not be lost, as was Mr. Ward. The special hangar car will accompany Mr. Rodgers from New York to Los Angeles, and arrangements are also being made for a combination buffet sleeper to make the trip.

Mr. Rodgers is the tallest aviator in the world. He stands 6 feet 4 inches and weighs 142 pounds. He is a member of the New York Yacht Club, played on the Columbia and Virginia University football teams, made a motor cycle trip from Buffalo to New York in a day, and is a grandson of Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry, who opened up the treaty ports of Japan and laid the foundation of making the empire of the Mikado a world power.

RAIN HALTS WARD'S FLIGHT.

Unable to Get Away from Callicoon, N. Y., Where He Landed Thursday.

ARMY AVIATOR HURT.

Nieuport, a Frenchman, Flung from Capsized Machine.

VERDUN, France, Sept. 15.—The machine of Edouard Nieuport, a French aviator, who has been serving as a sapper with the Sixth Corps in the French Army manoeuvres, was caught in a gust of wind as the airman rose for a flight this afternoon and was capsized.

The aeroplane struck the ground violently and was smashed to pieces. M. Nieuport was unconscious when taken out of the wreckage. A surgical examination showed that the pilot had suffered no broken bones, but it is feared that he is injured internally. On being carried to the hospital the injured man regained his senses.

The Minister of War on learning of the accident to M. Nieuport conferred upon him the decoration of the Legion of Honor.

Edouard Nieuport is the inventor of the monoplane which bears his name and which is to-day considered the fastest aeroplane in the world. It was in a machine of Nieuport manufacture that Hellen, the young Greek assistant, who has been with Nieuport since the latter started in aviation two years ago, recently made the world's duration record of 13 hours 45 minutes and the distance record of 1,245 kilometers, (746 miles.)

When Nieuport started in aviation he was very poor. He had been an automobile designer and mechanician, but had not been oversuccessful in developing his motor for automobile use. It was a two-cylinder type, developing 30 horsepower. Later, after the plucky Frenchman had perfected his peculiar type of monoplane, it was with an engine of his automobile days that the Nieuport monoplane established new speed aeroplane records for one hour, up to 60 miles, and with and without passengers other than the pilot.

HARMON AND WILSON BOOMED FOR 1912

Hoke Smith, at Close of Governors' Conference, Says That Ticket Would Win.

OHIOAN NOT SAYING MUCH

Admits That "No Man Would Run Away from Presidency"—Explains Plan of Rate Case Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., Sept. 15.—Gov. Harmon of Ohio left for New York this afternoon after the adjournment of the conference of Governors. He was asked if he was a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

"No man would run away from the Presidency of the United States," he answered.

He had not come to the conference as a candidate for office, he said, but to meet his collegues, and it would be bad taste to refer at length to political matters upon his departure.

Gov. Hoke Smith of Georgia did not hesitate to say that he is in favor of Harmon for President and Wilson for Vice President in 1912.

"Wouldn't that be a ticket that would sweep the country?" he observed to-day before leaving the conference for home. "Harmon is a strong man, and he is in line with the best and most progressive, not the most radical, thought. I suppose now we will hear less about this conference being a do-nothing body, and also somewhat less about the meeting being a sort of sublimated Wilson boom."

"Do you believe the radical element of the Democratic Party could be reconciled to Harmon?" was asked.

"I served two years in Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet with Mr. Harmon," answered Gov. Smith, "and I am prepared to say, advisedly, that far from being an ultra-conservative, Judson Harmon is in line with the most progressive thought, and that he responds to sane public opinion as readily as any man. I will go further and say that if Mr. Cleveland were alive to-day he would approve of this effort of the country to readjust itself. I have been accused myself of being a radical, and again I have been accused of being a conservative. I am seeking reform legislation in my State, radical legislation, if you will, by conservative methods. Did you ever stop to think that a successful Executive must be rather conservative, a balance wheel between two extremes?"

"Do you believe Mr. Wilson would accept the nomination for Vice President?"

"Yes. I know of no reason why he should not."

Gov. Harmon to-day held the first meeting of his committee which is to appear before the United States Supreme Court in the rate case, the other members of which are Gov. Aldrich of Nebraska and Gov. Hadley of Missouri. Gov. Harmon said before leaving that the first thing to be done was for the committee to inform itself in detail as to the status of the rate cases. Missouri and Kansas have cases pending in the Supreme Court which were argued some time ago. After the decision of Judge Sanborn, which has created the storm of disapproval voiced in yesterday's session, the Supreme Court of its own motion ordered a rehearing of these cases because of the new question involved in the Sanborn decision as to whether the States have power to fix intra-State rates which may interfere with inter-State rates. Oklahoma and Minnesota also have cases which have more recently been appealed to the Supreme Court. Still pending in the lower courts are the cases of Nebraska, Alabama, South Dakota, Colorado, and Wyoming.

"Each of these cases," said Gov. Harmon, "probably involves points that do not arise in the others. Of course it is not the function of the committee to go into these. We cannot argue the fairness or unfairness of the particular rates involved. What we are interested in is the threatened removal of the power of the State to fix rates on commerce within its borders. The Sanborn decision seems to threaten that, and the appointment of the committee is a precaution to prevent, if possible, such an outcome."

This afternoon Gov. Hadley gave out a formal statement authorized by the committee which said:

"In view of an apparent misunderstanding by some of the action of the conference yesterday it is deemed advisable that a statement should be made as to its exact nature and purpose.

"As the decision of the United States Circuit Court in what are known as the Minnesota rate cases to the effect that the State of Minnesota had no authority to regulate railroad rates within its own borders because inter-State commerce was thereby affected and as other cases involving the same question in other States would soon come before the Supreme Court of the United States for decision, the conference considered it advisable that a committee should be appointed to see that the State's side of this controversy is properly prepared and presented to the Supreme Court.

"The committee expects to deal only with the legal side of this controversy, and the action taken yesterday was one of only ordinary precaution. Every State in the Union is equally and vitally interested in the decision of this question, as the right of each State to regulate its own international commerce would be destroyed by an adverse decision. We expect to ascertain as to what cases will first be considered by the Supreme Court in which this question will be decided, and if it is deemed advisable we will ask leave to present to the court a brief and argument in support of the right of the States to regulate commerce wholly within their borders."

Gov. Dix, who was not here yesterday when the Harmon committee was named, was asked to-night what his attitude would have been in regard to that question. He said:

"I am old fashioned enough to believe in the rights which the States reserved to themselves, and believe that unless the Constitution of the United States is changed each State is clothed with the power and authority to control commerce which it creates. I will not deny, however, that corporations of magnitude that are within the jurisdiction of several States can be regulated by the Federal Government. Home rule for States is just as potent a factor in our form of Government as home rule for cities. Legislation in any State should seek to give the greatest good to the greatest number. Corporations should be regulated by the States from which they obtain their charters."

DIX TALKS TO GOVERNORS.

Conference Then Adjourns to Meet in Richmond, Va., Next Year.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., Sept. 15.—The Governors, after listening to an address by Gov. Dix on the inheritance tax and holding an "experience meeting," in the course of which several of them told of reform laws that had been passed in their States in the last year, took a final adjournment this evening. Most of the Governors have gone to New York or will leave in the morning.

To-day was put in largely waiting for Gov. Dix, who was at first expected to arrive this morning. A message came saying that he could not get here until 2:30 o'clock, and the conference adjourned to that time. When it came to order Gov. Dix's paper was the only one left on the programme, and he was not here. Then the experience meeting was begun to kill time until he should get here. It was the suggestion of Gov. Stubbs of Kansas, at whose instance it had been decided at the executive session that in future conferences one day should be devoted to this purpose.

Most of the discussion centred about the subject of prison labor. Gov. Stubbs and Gov. Vessey of South Dakota both argued that it is a crime for a State to profit by the labor of convicts, while the families of the convicts are in destitution.

Gov. Shafroth of Colorado told of the new laws in his State under which convicts for less than life terms are put to work building State roads instead of being locked up in prison.

Gov. Stubbs said the Kansas penitentiary was a large industrial establishment where profits of $3,000 to $5,000 a month were made by the State. Wives and children had come to him in rags without money for food, while the head of the family was doing this profitable work, and he intended to urge some change in the law to correct this condition.

Gov. Stubbs also told of conditions in the Legislature when he entered it eight years ago, and as they had been corrected.

"The number of legislative employes aroused my curiosity, and on investigation I found that more than 100 appeared on the payroll as Assistant Superintendents of Ventilation."

Gov. Stubbs was enthusiastic over the reforms wrought in Kansas, and told what a pleasure it had become to work for the people under these improved conditions.

"It isn't the money we get that appeals to any of us," he said. "My salary is $5,000 a year, and I turn that over to Mrs. Stubbs. I wanted her to give me $10 a month out of it, but she hasn't done it yet."

Gov. O'Neal of Alabama described the prison labor law and conditions in his State, and Gov. Gilchrist those in Florida.

While this was going on word came that Gov. Dix would not arrive until 5:30 o'clock. The cause of the delay was not definitely known, and some of the Governors became impatient and it was decided to adjourn without waiting any longer. The conference was right on the point of final adjournment at 4 o'clock when Gov. Dix walked in, accompanied by Mrs. Dix. Without stopping even to register the party hurried to the meeting room and Gov. Dix was immediately introduced. He had been on the road since 11 o'clock last night when he started from Syracuse. His train was delayed so long by a wreck near Albany that he did not reach New York until 1 o'clock and hurried to take a train 20 minutes later for Spring Lake. The result was that the Governor had nothing to eat since last night and got nothing to eat until dinner time to-night. This was after he had read his paper, listened to the concluding addresses of thanks for hospitality, and so forth, and patiently met a number of people who wanted to be introduced to him after adjournment. In his address Gov. Dix said:

"New York has taken some important steps this year in the matter of State comity in taxation. We have made a radical change in our inheritance tax law, and will no longer tax the intangible property of residents of other States which may happen to be within our borders or over which we may have technical jurisdiction. Under our new law, enacted in July, estates of our citizens will be taxable on real estate and chattels within the State, and upon the value of intangible property, such as shares of stock, money, and securities wherever located. The estates of non-residents will be taxable only on real estate and chattels actually within our borders.

"I am glad that the Legislature of the Empire State has corrected the injustice of double taxation, even though this will involve the loss of some revenue which we have been collecting from non-resident investors. And New York, now having done her share, looks with confidence to her sister States who may still be offending to do theirs, and I trust the Governors here assembled may take some action to bring about complete State comity on this important subject."

At the executive session this morning it was decided that the next conference shall be held on Dec. 3, 1912, at Richmond, Va.

There has been a good deal of discussion during the week of the plan of William George Jordan, Secretary of the conference, who suggested a House of Governors even before President Roosevelt called the first conference in 1908, that a permanent central office be established with a paid Secretary to collate facts concerning legislation in all the States and make a sort of clearing house for the conference. It was generally supposed that if this plan was adopted Mr. Jordan would be the Secretary selected. The Governors took the view that Mr. Jordan's plan was too elaborate and just what they did not want. What they did want was to continue the conferences just as they have been heretofore. When the Jordan plan went by the board he did, too. It was voted not to retain him as Secretary, only two Governors voting in his favor. It was then decided to have a paid Secretary, who is to be appointed later by the Executive Committee, consisting of Govs. McGovern of Wisconsin, Bass of New Hampshire, and O'Neal of Alabama. His salary is not to exceed $3,000 a year and he may be either permanent or temporary as the committee shall decide.

It was also decided that ex-Governors shall have the privilege of the floor at all future conferences.

CONDEMN GOVERNORS' ACTION.

Railroad Men Declare Harmon Has Made a Mistake.

The action of the Governors' conference at Spring Lake, N. J., in appointing a committee of three to appear before the United States Supreme Court when the Minnesota rate case comes up on appeal, was generally condemned in the financial district yesterday. The decision of the Circuit Court overthrowing Minnesota's 2-cent fare law was heralded by railroad men at the time as a guarantee on the part of the Federal Government that capital engaged in the transportation business would be protected against unfair laws by the State Legislatures, and the market enjoyed a sudden impetus on the announcement of the decision. The verdict of the Circuit Court was regarded as the most far-reaching in importance of any of the recent railroad decisions.

"It looks to me," said one railroad President yesterday, "that Gov. Harmon threw away a very good chance of becoming the next President of the United States when he consented to head that committee. He had a rare chance to become a popular candidate by defending the integrity of the courts. Instead of that he allowed himself to be made spokesman for a delegation directed to appeal to the Supreme Court to 'check the autocracy of inferior Federal courts.' If we cannot depend upon the highest tribunal in the country to see that justice is done to the States as well as the railroads without the intervention of a committee of Governors, we are indeed in a bad way."

NAMES 15 CO-RESPONDENTS.

Elmore Kitzinger Submits Many Affidavits in Suing for Divorce.

Fifteen co-respondents are named by Elmore Kitzinger, a cloak manufacturer, in a suit for divorce which he has brought against Mrs. Helen Kitzinger, and yesterday he submitted to Supreme Court Justice Gavegan a large number of affidavits incorporating his charges in reply to his wife's effort, through a writ of habeas corpus, to get her four-year-old son Morris, who is now with his father. Justice Gavegan, at the conclusion of the hearing, gave Mrs. Kitzinger's lawyers until Monday to file affidavits in opposition to her husband. Meantime Morris will stay with his father.

Mrs. Kitzinger, it appeared from the affidavits, was a model prior to her marriage in 1907, when the ceremony was performed by a Justice of the Peace in Westchester County. They went to live on Washington Heights, though Kitzinger spent most of his time on the road for his firm.

Kitzinger followed his wife about a month since and found her in a hotel with another woman and two men. He also accuses her of neglecting her baby and threatening to kill the nurse if she ever disclosed family secrets.

BANK ROBBERS GET MORE THAN $320,000

Blow Open Vault in Bank of Montreal at New Westminster, B.C., and Take All They Can Carry.

HAD TO LEAVE $100,000

Watchman Was on Vacation—Chinese Caretaker Was Gagged and Tied to a Post by the Thieves.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Sept. 15.—Three hundred and twenty thousand dollars in cash was stolen from the Bank of Montreal early to-day. The robbers escaped.

Three men entered the bank by an unprotected little window in the rear, dug through the brick wall into the vault, wrecked the cage door, and blew open the safe. They took $320,000 in gold and bills, left $20,000 in gold on the bed where they had piled their loot, and about $80,000 more unmolested in the safe.

The first known of the robbery was when a Chinese caretaker appeared at the police station at 5:30 o'clock and gave the alarm. He had managed to work loose from the bonds with which he had been tied after the robbers departed. Chief of Police Bradshaw hurried to the scene and all of the available officers were pressed into service, but the only obtainable clew was that given by the Chinaman.

Judging from the thoroughness of the job and the tools with which the work was done, the local officers believe the same gang which has been at work in Vancouver committed the robbery here.

It is impossible to say just when the men effected their entrance to the bank. When the Chinese janitor arrived, shortly after 4 o'clock, to clean up he was sandbagged and gagged and tied to a chair. Then the robbers proceeded to collect the gold and bills in the vault, and left the building some time before 5 o'clock.

The robbers are still in the vicinity probably, as a powerful automobile stolen from T. J. Trapp's garage was found broken down in front of the Y. M. C. A. building. It is thought the robbers started to get away in the machine and had to abandon it.

It was about 6 o'clock when Chong Koh, the Chinese caretaker, came running to the police station, which is less than 25 yards from the bank, crying that the bank had been robbed. He said he had entered the bank at 4:10 o'clock this morning. This statement is corroborated by a policeman, who remembers that he saw the Chinaman going toward the bank at that hour.

The Chinaman says he opened the door of the front office on Columbia Street, using the pass key. He had no sooner set foot inside than he was seized by a large man, and two others came a moment later.

"If you make a noise I will kill you," said the largest man, and the frightened Chinaman did not make a sound. The two smaller men gagged the Chinaman with his own handkerchief. They tied his hands and feet and took him to the basement, where they tied him to a post. It was not until two hours later that he managed to free himself and get out.

The Chinaman says he saw only the three men, but he believes at least two others were engaged in the robbery. This theory is accepted by the police, who think at least two men acted as lookouts during the time the robbery was taking place. It is certain that the vault had already been blown before the Chinaman's arrival, so that the robbers must have got in shortly after midnight, for the whole affair was carried out with great care and precision.

From the front door the robbers evidently crossed the main office of the bank and ascended a stairway which led to the room of one of the clerks, who usually slept in the bank. This young man, however, was on his vacation.

By means of a pick the robbers tore a hole through the bricks that compose the sides of the general vault, and the same instrument was used to break through the thin cast iron lining of the vault. The latter was not heavy, and it could not have been more than twenty minutes' work before the burglars had got into the vault in front of the great steel door. The corners and cracks were evidently filled with nitro-glycerine, and it is doubtful whether more than one charge was used in smashing the front of the safe. The hole they had made through which to crawl into the vault was plugged with bedding from the clerk's room. A policeman during a good deal of this time was in the next building not more than ten yards away and heard nothing. More than $400,000, all in neat piles of gold and silver and banknotes, was in view when the inner door was opened. The money was carried into the sleeping room of the absent clerk and there prepared to be taken away. Evidently the robbers took the pick of all they could carry. There must have been $200,000 in bills of denominations of $500 and $1,000. Then there were many thousands in gold, all of which was taken. The silver was left. Many packages of one, two, and five dollars were disdained by the robbers. Halves and smaller pieces were lying around the floor. The two parts of one five-hundred-dollar bill were found by the police.

It was a rainy, windy night, and few persons were on the streets. About 3 A. M. an automobile was seen near the front of the bank. The Chinaman who was caught and gagged by the robbers has been working as a janitor for the bank for ten years. The last clerk left the main office of the bank at 10 o'clock last night. After that hour there was no one around until the Chinaman came, and the robbers were probably pretty well through their job by that time.

The police have not a single good clue. The robbers may have gone to Vancouver by automobile, or crossed the Frazier River Bridge and started for the boundary line, or they may have had a launch ready and dropped down the Frazier among the scores of boats of the fishing fleet.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—At the Bank of Montreal to-day Mr. H. Vincent Meredith stated that it was quite true that the vaults of the branch at New Westminster had been blown to pieces and a very large sum of money was carried off by the burglars. The question as to whether or not the bank at New Westminster carried a large amount was answered as follows:

"It is quite possible."

Detectives of two prominent services will be sent immediately to the West, and the bank will spend, if necessary, another quarter of a million in tracking the burglars and prosecuting them.

MARDI GRAS ROWDIES FINED.

Night's "Fun" Costs 80 of Them $10 Each—Only 12 of 132 Go Free.

The arraignment of 132 persons, all charged with disorderly conduct, before Magistrate Voorhees in the Coney Island court yesterday marked the high water mark of Mardi Gras rowdyism. The previous record for arrests on one day was 99, in 1908. The new record was a result of the appearance at the island on Thursday evening of the largest and roughest crowd which ever gathered at a Coney Island fête, though the old record was nearly equaled on Tuesday evening, when 96 were arrested.

Magistrate Voorhees assessed $10 fines against 80 prisoners, who pleaded guilty to rushing in the crowds, blowing horns, and throwing confetti at women, climbing over gates, and other acts of rowdyism. The charges against 12 were dismissed, and sentence was suspended on 20. Twenty others charged with flagrant acts of rowdyism pleaded not guilty and their cases were adjourned.

Most of the prisoners were taken before 11 o'clock, and from the speed they were made it seemed that 200 or more would be arrested before the evening was over. But the firmness of the strong-arm men, who in groups of two or three did not hesitate to corral six or seven rowdies at a time, and the sight of gangs being rushed to the station served to sober some of the less boisterous.

Rain and the scenes which prevailed at the island on Thursday kept the crowds away last night.

MUST PICK HIS OWN WIFE.

Mayor Gaynor Tells Inquiring Kansan to Seek One Nearer Home.

Mayor Gaynor sent a reply yesterday to one William H. Mummey, who wrote from Arkansas City, Kan., asking the Mayor to select a wife for him in New York City. The man said that he would be satisfied with the Mayor's selection, but he told in detail just the kind of a woman he wanted. This is what the Mayor wrote:

> Sept. 15, 1911.
>
> Dear Sir—Your letter asking me to find a wife for you is at hand. How is this? Why do you send way up here to New York for a wife? Do you not know the proverb that he who goes far from home for a wife is apt to be fooled? And then, again, how could I recommend any good girl here to you? You may not be so attractive as you think you are.
>
> From my way of thinking, most any woman a man happens to meet is altogether too good for him. But it seems you are unable to find a wife among all the women of your locality. Do you not think that you are altogether too particular? I am very certain that there are many there who would make good wives.
>
> Very truly yours, W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.
>
> William W. Mummy, Esq., Arkansas City, Kan.

In his letter to the Mayor Mr. Mummey said the wife he wanted must be "true and virtuous, of noble character, a good cook and housekeeper, between eighteen and twenty-five years of age, not over 5 feet 7 inches in height and not over 145 pounds in weight." He said he had "no objection to a girl of forign birth or parentage," but "she must have brown hair, good health, a perfect form, and be what you would call good-looking."

Help for Prisoner's Family.

A young man who is looking forward to his release from prison has asked the Prison Association to help his mother and six younger brothers and sisters, who are in destitute circumstances. Investigation shows the circumstances of this family justifies this appeal. The mother, a widow, although badly crippled with rheumatism, earns what she can by washing for others. Contributions may be sent to J. Seely Ward, Treasurer, 135 East Fifteenth Street.

TO DEMAND BETTER ELEVATED SERVICE

Eight-Car Trains, Longer Platforms, and Strengthened Structure Suggested.

COST WOULD BE GREAT

Commission Orders a Hearing on the Plan, Which Follows Refusal of the Interborough to Extend.

The Public Service Commission issued an order yesterday for a hearing on the afternoon of Sept. 26 to determine whether the Interborough Rapid Transit Company should not be ordered to operate eight-car trains on the Manhattan elevated roads during rush hours and also to see whether any additions to or changes in the Manhattan elevated roads should be required as necessary to the convenience and safe operation of such eight-car trains.

Coming within a few days of the refusal of the Interborough to consider the third-tracking and extension proposals of the commission, this order was taken yesterday as a counter-move. The Commissioners feel that as there is no prospect of any extension of the present facilities of the Interborough to accommodate its elevated line clients, it was clearly the duty of the commission to see that the present plant is used to its fullest capacity.

The sting of the eight-car requirement lies in the considerable expense to which it may put the Interborough. At present the commission is satisfied with the number of trains run on the elevated and believes that they could not be increased with safety. But they are made up of only seven cars on the Second, Third, and Sixth Avenue locals and on the expresses, and of six cars on the Ninth Avenue locals.

There will probably be some extra equipment to be bought to provide the extra cars, but still more expensive will be the alterations that may be necessary in the elevated structure. Many platforms will have to be lengthened, crossovers may have to be changed, and the question of the sufficiency of the stairways now in existence will come up. To lengthen the platforms is sure to involve the obtaining of the consents of the abutting property holders, and these are likely to be withheld except on payment of compensation.

Then it is possible that the engineers of the Public Service Commission may raise the question of the adequacy of the present structures to bear in certain places the additional weight of the trains, and reinforcement will be costly. In the case of the elevated railways the Interborough cannot look for financial assistance from the city. It leases the tracks, and is obliged to maintain them in proper condition in order to serve the public according to the terms of the franchise. Consequently if the commission is satisfied that longer trains are necessary to handle the increasing population, and that these require the lengthening of the platforms and other improvements, the Interborough may find itself facing a very large expenditure.

The questions involved in the improvement of the elevated roads were expected by the Public Service Commission to be brought up as part of its agreement with the Interborough with reference to the third tracking and the Webster Avenue and Jerome Avenue extensions. When the Interborough first proposed these improvements last year negotiations on a number of points at issue between the company and the commission went smoothly till the beginning of Winter, when the third-tracking and extension proposals were combined with those for the new subway. All details were after that held in abeyance pending the reaching of an agreement on the main question.

When the Interborough was eliminated from the subway situation, it expressed the desire that the third-tracking and extension questions should again be taken up, and now that the commission's proposals on these points are refused, it intends to press a number of points in which it believes the public is not getting all it should.

The city is the debtor of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for $2,230,000, but Controller Prendergast explained that it was so merely as the result of an ordinary business transaction. The money was loaned on short term bonds, which are regularly raised in anticipation of the collection of taxes, and in this case it was the Interborough that provided the money instead of one of the large banking institutions which generally buy these special revenue bonds.

The first sum borrowed was $1,500,000 at 3 3-16 per cent., and will be repaid on Oct. 30. The Rapid Transit Construction Company has loaned $500,000 at 3¼ per cent., the bonds maturing on Nov. 28, and the Subway Realty Company $225,000 at the same rate of interest on bonds redeemable on Jan. 2, 1912.

TELLS OF KILLING INVALID.

Consumptive, Woman Shaker Says, Had Entreated Her Aid.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISON, Ohio, Sept. 15.—Elder Andrew Barrett and Eldress Mary Gass, heads of the Whitewater Shaker colony, located seven miles from here, related today the prologue to the circumstances attending the killing of Sister Sadie Marchant at Kissimee, Fla., to end her sufferings from consumption.

The heads of the Whitewater colony came North in the Winter of 1909. At that time, they say, Sister Sadie was doomed, and even then was begging her friends to help her "pass out of the body."

A letter received by members of the Harrison colony from Sister Elizabeth Sears, who is being held with her brother, Egbert Gillette, for her murder, reads in part:

"You have probably seen in the papers that Elder Egbert and myself were arrested for giving quieting medicine to our Sister Sadie during the last three days of her life.

"Whatever was done was to alleviate her sufferings and to make it easy for her to pass out of the body without severe pain—not to take life. As Elder E. had cared for her so much he felt great sympathy for her, desiring to make it easy to the last, but made the mistake of giving her chloroform himself instead of getting a physician to do so.

"Since the occurrence we have been told doctors and nurses are doing these same things constantly, but they have the authority, which we have not. We all regret the step, but it cannot be undone.

"Now we can only depend on the good spirits to help us through, as they have done in other cases. We are almost certain that somebody complained to the officers of the law, for no one knew anything about it out of the house.

"The first Saturday evening after the death the Judge and Sheriff came and questioned us, and we thought that was the end of it. Elder E. and I were arrested and kept in jail two days, when the Judge said we could be released on bail until Nov. 2, when the case would be tried by the Grand Jury."

WRECKS STOLEN AUTO.

Thief Mistakes the Road and Crashes Into a Stone Entrance.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 15.—An automobile thief, bound from Hartford to New York with an automobile owned by Frank N. Prior, a tobacco grower of South Windsor, came to grief in Greenwich last night when he mistook the road which goes through the northern part of this town and ran the car into a vine-covered stone entrance to the Seymour cottage, occupied by Stanley Cohen of New York, next to the H. O. Havemeyer estate. Not stopping to shut off the power or release the clutch or extinguish a light, the driver of the car ran away. The mail man this morning found the disabled car, and he telephoned to Sheriff Finnegan. The car has the front axle sprained, and a wheel, the lights, and springs broken.

Mr. Prior came here to-night and said he had left his car in front of the Hartford Theatre at 7:30 o'clock last evening, and it was almost immediately stolen. The car when found contained Mr. Prior's laundry and overcoat. A piece of flannel had been placed inside the rear light, which should show the auto number, and the front number was bent down. It is believed that the thief intended to strip the car and leave it in the Bronx, as is being done so much of late.

Another auto, stolen here last month, was returned to its owners, Larsen brothers, by the New York police yesterday. It had been stripped of tires, magneto, wind shield, and top and left in the Bronx.

WRECK DELAYS DIX'S TRAIN.

Express Ahead Hits a Freight—Fireman Dies of Injuries.

ALBANY, Sept. 15.—Gov. Dix, en route from Syracuse to Spring Lake, N. J., to attend the conference of Governors, was delayed about five hours this morning by a wreck on the New York Central Railroad on the Van Woert Street viaduct in this city. The Governor's train was behind the wreck and did not get away until 8:20 A. M.

Frank Hitchcock of Syracuse, fireman on an express train which crashed into a freight train, leaped from the engine and received injuries from which he died later in the day. Moses T Powers of Syracuse, the express engineer, and Earl B. Vincent of Albany, fireman on the freight train, were injured, but not fatally.

REPORT ON MILK DEPOTS.

National Committee Says Uniformity of Methods Is Needed.

Three physicians, Dr. J. W. Kerr, Dr. Henry L. Coit, and Dr. Roland G. Freeman, constituting a committee of the American Association of Milk Commissions, have made a report concerning the operation of infants' milk depots in the United States in 1910. One result of the compilation of data is to urge the necessity of conducting these institutions by uniform methods. It was shown that the mortality rate for children under 1 year who were fed on dispensary milk varied from nothing to 20 per cent. in the different institutions.

"The results," says the Journal of the American Medical Association, "while interesting, are not conclusive as to the exact value of these depots, the principal and important reason being the lack of accurate vital statistics in many of the States and cities where this work is carried on.

"Data were received from forty-three institutions located in thirty cities, and while the general object of all the depots is the protection of infant life, on account of the lack of uniformity of specific objects and of methods and incompleteness of statistics the results in the different cities are not comparable in such a way as to bring out the true value of this work. There was difficulty in determining in every instance whether it is the endeavor of the institution to accomplish good by meeting the purely hygienic needs of infants or simply to relieve the distress brought about by poverty.

"The data compiled, however, cover, among other things, the following points: Object of institution, method of operation and manner of maintenance, instruction to mothers in infant hygiene, given by physicians or nurses, in the home or in central consultations; distribution of the milk by agencies, free or otherwise; proportions of infants who were ill and well, number fed, average age, quality and preparation of milk, modifications, &c., and, chief among the objects of inquiry, the mortality rate of infants under one year of age and among children fed on dispensary milk one month or over during the year.

"The tabulations of this report show that the mortality rate for infants under one year varied from 12 to 30 per cent., and in children fed on dispensary milk for one month or over during the year, from no deaths to 20 per cent.

"These figures may or may not prove much, but the information obtained is of interest and emphasizes the importance and necessity of uniformity of methods in conducting these institutions, and the supreme importance of accurate and uniform reports on births and deaths. On this latter point the report says:

"'The correct infant mortality rate is the ratio of deaths of infants under one year of age to the number of children born alive during the year. In the absence of registration of births in many cities, therefore, no such rate can be determined, and since registration of births in the great majority of cities is very incomplete, any ratio based on the returns would be misleading. The data presented indicate how desirable it would be to know the correct infant mortality rate, and emphasize in some measure the importance of the accurate regisration of both births and deaths.'

"It might also be added that until these two objects are attained and the various agencies for infant welfare are better coordinated, much effort and expenditure in this direction will be wasted."

GOVERNORS BEFORE THE COURT.

It is well that JUDSON HARMON, Governor of Ohio, experienced lawyer, a man sane in his views, of well-balanced mind, and of statesmanlike breadth, was named by the Conference of Governors as Chairman of the committee of Governors of States commissioned to proceed to Washington upon the singular errand of representing to the Supreme Court that the rights of the States are in jeopardy, and of appealing to that great tribunal to protect them. Having been Attorney General of the United States, Gov. HARMON is perfectly familiar with Supreme Court practice. He will know how to get his committee into the courtroom. Had these Governors asked permission to appear as friends of the court, the Chief Justice might have replied by thanking them cordially, and intimating that, if the court needed friends, it would send for them. As it is in contemplation that these Governors shall make arguments before the court, we presume steps will be taken to have them named as special counsel. The cases in question, known as the Minnesota Rate cases, were brought by stockholders of the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, and Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway Companies against these companies and against the Attorney General of Minnesota and the members of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, asking that freight rates fixed by the commission and passenger rates fixed by the Legislature of Minnesota be set aside. The three Governors can, of course, ask to be employed as special counsel by the Attorney General, and then they will have a standing in court.

It is our opinion that Gov. HADLEY of Missouri and Gov. ALDRICH of Nebraska are unduly excited about the invasion of the rights of the States which they profess to fear as a consequence of Judge SANBORN's decision annulling the railroad rates complained of. Gov. HARMON has given no evidence of excitement. Nevertheless the questions involved are of undoubted interest and importance, and the court will doubtless lend a polite and attentive ear to the arguments of these distinguished defenders of State rights.

The Minnesota law reduced the passenger rates of Minnesota from 3 cents to 2 cents a mile, and the Commission orders reduced merchandise rates from 20 to 25 per cent., and the rates on bulky commodities something over 7 per cent. After the Special Master appointed by the court had reported his findings and recommendations, Judge SANBORN of the United States Circuit Court rendered an opinion affirming the report of the Master. Judge SANBORN found that the rates imposed were confiscatory, inasmuch as they did not permit the earning of a fair return upon that part of the railway companies' capital invested in the State of Minnesota; under the rates enacted and ordered, that income upon this capital was found by the Master to range between 2½ and 3.35 per cent., while it was the opinion of the court that a 7 per cent. return would have been no more than fair. The rates, therefore, were fixed in violation of that provision of the Federal Constitution which forbids the taking of property without due process of law.

This was enough to justify the annulment of the rates complained of, but the court, again following the findings of the Master as to fact, declared that these Minnesota rates, though they were in terms applicable only to intra-State commerce, really operated as a burden upon and a regulation of inter-State commerce, which is the exclusive concern of the Federal Government. It is on this point that the Conference of Governors has sounded the alarm about the invasion of State rights. They insist, with ample justification from the Constitution and the law, that intra-State commerce is exclusively a matter of State concern. The Federal act to regulate commerce, indeed, declares that its provisions are not applicable to the transportation of persons or properties wholly within one State. The point at issue is whether these Minnesota regulations, though in terms applying only to intra-State traffic, really transcended the jurisdiction and fell upon inter-State commerce as a burden and regulation. The facts are, as found by the Master, that the rates within Minnesota were fixed so low that they compelled the railroads affected to reduce their lawful inter-State rates, thereby leading to discrimination against other inter-State carriers contrary to the letter and intent of the Federal law. For instance, the intra-State rate fixed by the State of Minnesota between St. Paul and Moorhead, a distance of 250 miles, was 20 per cent. lower than the lawful inter-State rate between St. Paul and Fargo, lying in the State of North Dakota just across the Red River, one mile beyond Moorhead. The Master found that the effect of this was to increase the passenger business of the Northern Pacific Railroad between Moorhead and other points in Minnesota 647 per cent., and practically to destroy through business between St. Paul and Fargo. Counsel of the complainants pointed out that, as a consequence, "a large proportion of all rates for the transportation of merchandise in the district bounded by the Missouri River, the Canadian boundary, the Pacific Ocean, and the Mexican boundary, either have come down or must come down." Here, evidently, the acts of the State of Minnesota did, in fact, affect inter-State commerce business over which Minnesota has no control. Whether this amounted to a burden upon or a regulation of inter-State commerce in a degree quite beyond negligible limits is a question the Supreme Court in the cases now before it on appeal will be called upon to decide; and for its guidance it will have the advice of JUDSON HARMON's committee of Governors.

As a question involving an authoritative delimitation of State and Federal powers we may admit that it is important. Practically it does not strike us as one of serious consequence. It is so probable as to be well-nigh certain that any State-made rate which compelled a lowering of lawful inter-State rates as in this Minnesota case, would be found to be confiscatory, and therefore unlawful, quite apart from any considerations of inter-State traffic. Judge SANBORN's decision that the Minnesota rates were confiscatory would have made an end of the statute and of the Commission's orders had he stopped there, and said nothing about the interference with Federal prerogative. Possibly the Supreme Court may declare that, having affirmed Judge SANBORN's decree on the ground that the rates were confiscatory and in violation of law, it is not necessary to inquire as to their effect upon inter-State traffic. The appearance before the court of the Governors with their argument as to State rights, however, will make such an avoidance of the issue less likely.

If any right of the States is endangered by Judge SANBORN's decision, of course, the matter ought to be determined. From the discussion in the Conference of Governors it is pretty evident that some, at least, who participated in the debate were actuated by that foolish and unfounded resentment that has been aroused by recent decisions of Federal courts setting aside radical, rash, and vicious State laws. A good many "progressives" are utterly unable to get into their heads the idea that a legislative enactment is not a law unless it conforms to the Federal Constitution. Men of that type would be best pleased if the Federal courts were required to keep their hands off, letting radical Legislatures work their savage will on the corporations. Certainly there is not the slightest warrant for such loose talk as that of Gov. HADLEY of Missouri, when he said that if Judge SANBORN were sustained by the Supreme Court, the States would be powerless, and that the railroads would be enabled to levy tribute upon the people "limited only by their own necessities or desire for gain." Nobody has proposed to take away from the States the right to prevent the levying of extortionate traffic rates. It is only when Legislatures have practiced extortion upon the railroads, and have sought to confiscate their property, that the Federal courts have intervened. In such cases the Constitution requires that they should intervene.

The uprising of the Governors in defense of State rights might with wisdom and propriety have been directed into a more promising channel. But it is not a bad thing at all that the subject has been brought up in a way to invite the attention of the people to the lines still existing on the map which define the outlines of the States. Some of our statesmen, progressive in another way, have of late shown a disposition to attempt the effacement of State lines.

SECRETARY WILSON'S POSITION.

Everbody knew that President TAFT could do no less than to exonerate and praise Chief Chemist WILEY. The charges trumped up against him by the Personnel Board of the Department of Agriculture have resulted in a frank and vigorous declaration by the President in Dr. WILEY's favor, in the holding of Dr. RUSBY guiltless, and in a merely formal reprimand of Dr. KEBLER and Dr. BIGELOW for undue zeal in their effort to induce the pharmacognosist to accept doubtful terms of payment. But what of Secretary WILSON? What of the conspirators MCCABE and DUNLAP, who recommended, by the submission of garbled evidence, that the places of Dr. WILEY and his associates be made vacant? This passage of the President's letter is of interest to them and to the public:

> Further consideration satisfies me that there are very much broader questions involved in the investigation and the evidence there brought out than in the present charge, which is narrow and definite and can now be properly disposed of. The broader issues raised by the investigation, which have a much weightier relation than this one to the general efficiency of the department, may require much more radical action than the question I have here considered and decided.

Secretary WILSON will think instantly of the bringing to light of that fatal letter from Chairman REMSEN of his Referee Board of Consulting Scientific Experts, declaring that, inasmuch as the board "is going to be subjected to very severe criticisms for testifying in the Indiana suit, and, in order to protect ourselves, it is our desire that we should have from you a written request that we should give this testimony." President TAFT could never have sanctioned the lending out by Secretary WILSON of Government experts in an attempt by private litigants to overthrow a State's pure food laws. Secretary WILSON is responsible for this work by the Remsen Board, and its Chairman made it very clear at the Congressional hearings that the Secretary, not he, was responsible for the official rulings that kept scores of important cases out of the courts when the Federal pure food law required that these cases be referred to the courts for adjudication. The vain charges by Solicitor MCCABE and Dr. DUNLAP, their holding of prosecutions in abeyance, and their hamstringing of the work of the Bureau of Chemistry in the interests of food manufacturers and druggists, now that they are exposed, leave them nothing to do but to quit the public service. They may then work openly for the interests which may wish to reward them for their past official leniency. Secretary WILSON will have to answer for their bad work, for it was he who placed them in authority over Dr. WILEY, their proper chief.

President TAFT says that he "cannot withhold sympathy" from Dr. WILEY for his "earnest effort to pay proper compensation and secure expert assistance in the enforcement of so important a statute, certainly in the beginning, when the questions arising under it are of capital importance to the public." He deplores the limitations put upon bureau chiefs and heads of departments with respect to the pay allotted to their experts, and his letter implies that, in the coming reorganization of the Department of Agriculture, he will seek to have this difficulty removed. The men who are responsible for the niggardly policy pursued by the department must be removed, too, if it is to be successfully reversed.

The case of Mr. WICKERSHAM, who recommended "condign punishment," must occasion in the President's mind not a little uneasiness as to the upshot of the Congressional investigation. His Attorney General is not blameless. Mr. WICKERSHAM should have been capable of ascertaining whether the facts placed before him were adequate before volunteering his severe counsel. He has been caught, moreover, in the most contradictory rulings upon questions of law, finding in favor of the board appointed to "conserve the interests of the manufacturers" and condemning Dr. WILEY's appointment of an expert to conserve the interests of the people, although the cases of both the board and the expert were upon all fours.

LONDON'S PRIZE RING PROBLEM.

The shame that many New Yorkers feel over the revival of prizefighting in Manhattan Borough may not be relieved by the knowledge that London, too, has a similar problem to meet. The County Council has practically forbidden the advertised encounter between our own distinguished fellow citizen of African descent, Mr. JOHNSON, and Mr. BOMBARDIER WELLS, but preparations are going on in the vast inclosure of Earl's Court, 16,000 seats have already been sold, and the proprietor of the place has asserted his intention to go on with the fight in spite of the prohibition. Defiance of the law is unusual in London, and rarely profitable, as it sometimes is here. Mr. CALVIN BROWN of Earl's Court may be driven to bankruptcy if the County Council revokes his license. His investment there is enormous.

On the other hand, the prejudice against prizefighting is not nearly so strong in England as it still is in this country, among the enlightened and respectable. The "manly art" has its advocates in the nobility and gentry, and the clergy as well. The stricter church members among the Nonconformists, to be sure, oppose the fight strongly. But The Sun's London correspondent quotes Father HERLIHY and Canon HORSELEY as approving it. Meanwhile Mr. BROWN of Earl's Court depends on the traditional British love of fair play to carry him through.

One thing is certain. If the fight is "pulled off" (as the sporting expression is) in spite of the County Council and the police, it will be an almost unprecedented defiance of the authorities, and it will be swiftly and suitably punished.

ASSASSINATION IN RUSSIA.

BOGROFF tried to kill PETER STOLYPIN, presumably, because he was bidden to do so by some secret society or band of conspirators. The specified offense of which the Russian Prime Minister had been adjudged guilty by this secret and irresponsible tribunal does not matter. He was at the head of the Czar's Government, he did his duty as he comprehended it, he was, therefore, an enemy of the people. The incident serves to show that the patriots who are trying to cast off the yoke of despotism in Russia still regard assassination as a fit means to a noble end. Russia has suffered much, and the whole civilized world sympathizes deeply with the true patriots who sacrifice all chance of material gain, liberty, and life in their efforts to lighten the burdens of their millions of oppressed fellow-countrymen. But what benefit has ever accrued to the people of Russia through assassination? That hateful remedy for political ills has been resorted to again and again without avail. Murder has not helped to institute a single one of the small reforms which have made the reign of Czar NICHOLAS less burdensome to the millions than those of his predecessors. On the contrary, assassination or attempted assassination, as in this case, has invariably increased the woes of the revolutionary classes.

Assassination is a cowardly expedient, and its instigators are cowards. BOGROFF, marching down the aisle of the brilliantly lighted opera house toward the victim whom he intends to give no chance for self-defense, seems a somewhat heroic figure. Escape after the murder is practically impossible. His own doom is sealed even if his pistol misses fire. But he has no alternative. If he failed to carry out his orders he would be poisoned or stabbed in the back by his cowardly associates. It is better to die like a theatrical hero, in the limelight, to be remembered as a patriot, than to die like a rat in a cellar.

The world which sympathizes with the oppressed in Russia, which feels, as so many high-minded Russians feel, that STOLYPIN has, indeed, been a reactionary, defying the will of the Duma, does not sympathize with the people who try to gain freedom through assassination. There is no glory in murder, there is no justice in it. Premier STOLYPIN's recovery from his wounds will be hoped for. He had already escaped, miraculously as it seemed, an attempt on his life which surely did not leave him with a better feeling for the discontented. If he recovers, as is now hoped, he will doubtless resort to sterner measures. He has excited admiration by his endurance and self-control since he was shot, and he has undoubtedly won a larger share of the respect and confidence of the governing class. Meanwhile the outcome of the assassin's deed most generally feared is a fresh, unreasoning assault on the poor Jews in South Russia.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Dynamite Comes as Milk.

When the man COSTABILE was arrested on the street with a bomb in his pocket the police so exulted over their capture that the public was disposed to agree with them as to its importance. We all assumed not only that COSTABILE's conviction would be prompt and easy, but that, with him in safe sequestration, the supply of bombs for Black Hand outrages would be cut off, and that, at least temporarily, the long series of tenement house explosions would end.

Neither assumption has proved to be well founded. The slow progress of the case against COSTABILE, and the frequent postponements and adjournments that have marked it, indicate that the police are finding difficulty in connecting their prisoner directly with blackmail operations—that they have encountered the too familiar obstacle of obstinate refusal by Black Hand victims to tell what they know in court. This is discouraging, especially as the bomb outrages have been as numerous as ever, in spite of the supposed termination of their manufacture and distribution.

Now, however, the police have caught, a few seconds after the lighting of a bomb, a man whom they charge, and more than plausibly, with setting fire to the fuse. Incidentally, they have discovered the device, or one of the devices, by which the Black Hand agents have been able to enter tenement houses without exciting the suspicions, or even the curiosity, of the people living in them. The new captive was carrying in each hand a basket of milk bottles, and so had, if seen before his evil task was accomplished, the most innocent of excuses for his presence, and a ready means of escape whether he did or did not carry out his purpose.

This is evidently an important and promising arrest, but expectations as to its results must not be raised too high. The man, according to present reports, was not seen in the very act of firing the bomb, and though the circumstantial evidence against him is enough to create a moral certainty of his guilt, his conviction may turn out to be quite another matter. At best he is only an underling, who did for a few dollars work at once too simple and too risky for the leaders in the blackmailing organization or organizations to perform for themselves.

A Review of the Doty Investigation.

So far as it goes, and perhaps it goes far enough, the brief filed with Commissioner BULGER by Dr. DOTY's counsel is a document equally admirable and convincing. It presents with accuracy and force the distinguished Health Officer's long record of efficiency in guarding the most important of the country's ports, and thereby the whole country, from the infectious diseases which are constantly coming here from all over the world.

Very properly, too, emphasis is given to the contrast between the witnesses who, speaking from unquestionable knowledge, testified as to the professional standing of Dr. DOTY and to the quality and importance of his work, and those other witnesses who, from the depths of their ignorance or their malice, saw murder in the open-air treatment of sick babies and tried to create false impressions as to petty expenditures for decorative shrubs and the tuning of pianos.

The methods of the two lawyers who, from motives that have not yet been made clear, took it upon themselves to act as prosecuting attorneys and to treat Dr. DOTY as if he had been an indicted prisoner, are severely characterized in this brief. No reasons for making the characterization more lenient were brought out at the inquiry, which was, until it neared its end, so amazingly like a trial—a trial with the accused absent and unrepresented, though his professional and official life was involved in its outcome. The two lawyers did, however, only what the Commissioner allowed and apparently encouraged them to do, so the criticism or condemnation of their course is rather a waste of time and would be quite one were the brief to have only the single reader to whom it is addressed.

That the investigation did bring out certain weaknesses in the financial administration of the Quarantine Station is admitted by all who followed the proceedings closely. They are of a kind easily remediable, however, and as easily explicable as due to the original mistake of imposing upon a hard-driven specialist the additional management of matters wholly outside of and irrelevant to his proper task. That he should not always manage them well is what was to have been expected, and the obvious remedy is, not to deprive the country of his certainly most valuable services, but to relieve him of burdens which he should never have borne.

Perplexity Was in Order.

One GEORGE WILL was recently arraigned in the City Court of Buffalo charged with non-support by a wife who appeared with thirteen children, and said that she had three more whom she would also have brought along for the Judge's inspection had they not been too small to be taken out for public exhibition.

WILL, when sternly asked why he did not provide for his interesting family, replied, "I simply can't do it. I work every day of my life as a painter. As fast as I get money it goes. I don't have a nickel or a dime to spend on myself Saturday nights."

The Judge observed that WILL was a man of frail and dejected appearance, and that the pathos of the wife's tale was mitigated by her weight—something in the neighborhood of 250 pounds. According to credible report, "the Judge looked perplexed," and "he thought a while." After the looking and the thinking he said to WILL, "You are up against a hard job, but you will have to keep on working and working hard, for it is an offense in this country to have so many children if you can't support them."

Is it? Against what? Not, so far as memory serves, against any law in any code that the Judge was there to enforce.

The end of the case—if one may so misuse the word "end"—was that the Judge sent the man away "on parole," whatever that may mean. Various comments on the episode will suggest themselves to various people, but the chances that making any of them would do any good are not numerous, so what's the use?

YOUNG FOLKS IN EUROPE.

Says Their Visits Fail to Do Them Much Good.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While there can be no harm to the youth of either sex in a European trip, it seems conjectural value as an educational influence if such is the design. It is an experience to boast of, and much is made of that opportunity, but I have never met one of these young people who realized the value of the privilege and the benefits that should have been derived from a visit to lands of an older civilization and among nations of different habits and characteristics than ours.

The period of instruction in history in our schools is short, and from textbooks contracted in presentation. The investigation of parents will reveal the ignorance of the children of events and individuals which have contributed to the molding of the affairs of the world. The young care only for the present and future, and are regardless of the past as steps to them. The Tower, Westminster Abbey, Warwick Castle, Stratford-on-Avon, and other historic buildings or spots in Great Britain or on the Continent are viewed with a hurried interest without the association of knowledge or stimulus to contemplation of the subjects which to their elders are those of almost solemn and studious survey. The sensations of the young seldom rise to the altitude of sentiment.

After the return from abroad I have always observed that those of matured minds, if of intelligent development, have much to convey of interest to their auditors who have never made the trip. Several years ago, a young man of 22, a graduate of high school, returned from a four months' sojourn in England and Germany. In close contact with him six or seven hours daily, without inviting the narration of his experience or expression of any comment, he made to me but one allusion, that of the inferior railway service in Germany in comparison with that in the United States. I would add that he continuously staggers in loquacity on a multitude of subjects far beyond his capacity of mental carriage, and still has nothing to offer after his novel experience. Another one of about the same age, and about the same time returned after months of a grand tour incorporating all the countries of Europe except Russia, Turkey, and Greece, and was as dumb and stupid as when he started. These are selected from many who I believe derived no benefit from their travels.

NEW COLD STORAGE LAW.

The Warehousemen Are Willing to Obey It Literally.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to express my approval of your editorial in the issue of Sept. 14, 1911, entitled "Cold Stored Foods."

It is refreshing to read a sane statement concerning the function and economic necessity of the public cold storage warehousing business, when many of your contemporaries are giving publicity only to exaggerated statements and erroneous conclusions concerning a legitimate and scientifically developed industry.

The leading cold storage warehouse companies are literally obeying the new cold storage law, and are now awaiting rules and regulations from the Commissioner of Public Health which have not yet been promulgated, in the hope that they will be reasonable and just in their interpretation of the measure.

When the public are better acquainted with the value and quality of our best products which are carried under refrigeration they will find, as you say, "refrigeration does not hurt them," and that when that fact is made known the public mind will be disabused of its prejudice which now seems to exist.

Late Corporation Tax Reports.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The United States Internal Revenue Department requires corporations to file an annual report not later than March 1. The failure to file a report by that date makes a corporation liable to a penalty of not less than $1,000 and not exceeding $10,000. In the case of a corporation that has omitted to file a report before March 1, but that has filed a report after the date prescribed by law, what in your opinion would be the penalty?

The United States Internal Revenue service is sending a circular letter stating that delinquent corporations may compromise their liability and may submit an offer in settlement. Do you think that the United States District Attorney will take any action against a corporation that neglected to file this report by March 1, as required under the law, but that subsequent to that date has filed its report?

BERGER ON TARIFF.

Never Knew What Was Done Behind the High Protection Wall.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I find the following comment in the interview in to-day's NEW YORK TIMES with Victor Berger, the Socialist member of Congress from Milwaukee:

> Mr. Berger said he did not believe the workingmen who are interested in the tariff mainly as consumers would derive much benefit from any downward revision that might be undertaken even by the Democrats.
>
> "Figures will tell the story," he said. "The entire yearly income from tariff duties is about $326,000,000, which means $3.50 per capita. Let us suppose the Democrats reduced this by as much as one-fourth. They can hardly reduce it more, because the country needs the revenue. Then the change would net the consumer about 87½ cents per capita. Suppose they would make a still more radical change and reduce the tariff by one-half, thus cutting down the country's revenue from this source in proportion. That would amount to the princely sum of $1.75 per capita. So in the question over which the Republicans and Democrats have been so bitterly at war for so many years just $1.75 per capita annually is involved. That is, at the most. Probably it would only be 80 cents. And in either case it will endanger the equilibrium of our industries."

The first point of surprise is in the remark that the change (a reduction of excessive tariffs) "will endanger the equilibrium of our industries." What do Socialists think of that from a supposed enemy of our present industrial organization? And why is Mr. Berger so tender about "the equilibrium of our industries"? Perhaps the present kind of "equilibrium" produces the discontent that serves his cause so well. Or is he really concerned about the "equilibrium" and fears to upset it?

But, apart from the "equilibrium" question which so concerns Mr. Berger, his ideas as to the actual cost of the tariff to the consumers of the country is laughable. In the above statement he takes only the amount of duties paid on imported goods in a year and divides this sum up among the population. He figures this tax as $3.50 per capita and then gravely argues that a reduction by the Democrats of one-fourth of this amount would net the consumer a saving of only 87½ cents per capita.

In all this talk Mr. Berger ignores the extra price added to the articles of domestic manufacture and consumption, which extra price is the direct result of the tariff on the imported articles of the same kind. This, as any schoolboy economist knows, is where the "protection" tax levy comes in. In the case of manufactures alone we produced in 1904 to the value of $15,000,000,000. The average rate of duty on manufactures was 47 per cent. If you throw off $5,000,000,000 (too much) for the "free list" manufactures and say that only 40 per cent. advantage was taken of the tariff average, we have a levy, in additional prices on the consumers of the United States, of $4,000,000,000, besides the duties, and profits on duties, levied on imported articles.

Yet this is not the whole story, as such an inflation of the price of manufactures inflates the entire scale of prices and cost of living—food products, freight rates, rents, &c. Moreover, the high tariff system facilities the forming of monopoly and the taking of monopoly prices.

Such a showing, which cannot be successfully contradicted, is quite different from Mr. Berger's $3.50 per capita.

As an alleged "friend of the people," and the workingman in particular, Mr. Berger's talk sounds very strange. Is he ignorant on this subject, or just a concealed defender of an extortionate monopolistic tax upon his fellow-countrymen?

"VACUOUS SPELLING BOARDS."

Lukewarm, They Are Not Ardent for Radical Phonetic Reform.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The amiable and judicious commentary of your correspondent, Mr. Scott, in yesterday's TIMES gives me an opportunity to make a few observations, by your courtesy, upon the same subject. In my judgment your correspondent is quite right in calling both the English and American reform spelling boards "vacuous"; quite right, too, in saying that "English spelling is going to be changed; that it must be changed in accordance with knowledge and reason." He is quite right, also, in intimating that neither board is pursuing the work of reform of English spelling along correct or scientific lines. They have no system of procedure, no basis of a proper system in phonetics upon which to predicate a reform that shall endure for ages. Their policy consists of trimming the language of a few of its incongruous and excrementatious growths, as one trims a hedge or lops off unsightly branches. This procedure has its uses, of course, but, as Mr. Scott intimates, it does not meet the occasion, the great and crying need of the times.

What is this great need? The radical, fundamental need of the great and beautiful English language, the most comprehensive and the grandest system of human speech, is a phonetic alphabet. The alphabet has no proper system of phonetics—of vowelization—such as exists in nature. And until such a system is constructed and applied, the labors of spelling and pronouncing boards must be in vain, or, at least, will fall short of their expectations.

The distinguished Schleyer, the author of Volapuk, nearly half a century since formulated a system of phonetics in his artificial language. The studies in the same direction of Dr. Zamenhof came later in Esperanto, and later still those of Sapwnov, a Bulgarian scholar, who, we make bold to say, has advanced a well-nigh perfect system of vowelization of the English alphabet and pronunciation based upon it. M. Sapwnov's system has not yet reached the public, but it is in course of publication. It has been my privilege to examine the manuscript of his work, which it is a pleasure to commend.

Bohemian Books.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The New York Public Library Circulation Department has recently issued a handsome catalogue of Bohemian books. It is very interesting to note what a great educational institution our Public Library is. The catalogue shows how it tries to Americanize our aliens by educating them, first by giving them good books in their own tongue and so leading them to English books.

The catalogue would prove a useful guide to an American student of Bohemian literature, and especially so to the librarians in other Bohemian settlements. Therefore it is to be regretted that the compilers have not shown more care and understanding for the work they have done. To classify, for instance, juvenile fiction as books on sociology, or essays on ancient Olympic games as travel, and books full of such ridiculous errors are hardly commendable for our library system. It would be perhaps proper, since so much money is spent on these foreign books, that the library also engage competent people to buy the books, to classify them, and to show our newcomers where to find them and what to read.

Carbolic Poisoning and Alcohol.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It would be a pity if any one should act on the impression conveyed in a news item in Tuesday's TIMES that pure, meaning undiluted, alcohol can be swallowed with impunity for poisoning by carbolic acid or for anything else; or that any one can safely drink a glass of alcohol and carbolic acid. Alcohol is recommended for poisoning by carbolic acid because it lessens its harmful action by dissolving and diluting it, but the alcohol must always be given sufficiently diluted not to cause harm itself, and the stomach must be quickly emptied of both poison and antidote.

Not This Louis Cohn.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note in this morning's issue that Attorney Louis Cohn has been directed to refund to Berthold A. Rich a large sum of money retained by him for professional services rendered, and that upon his failure to immediately refund this money he is to be adjudged guilty of a contempt of court. Since his office address does not appear therein I would thank you to note in a subsequent issue that the attorney referred to is not the undersigned.

ROOSEVELT LECTURES BAD BOYS IN COURT

Glares at Plain Offenders, but Smiles on the Adventuresome Though Misguided Ones.

WANTED TO SPANK ONE

Severe Also on Those Who Make Trouble at Home for Good Parents —To Write About Children's Court.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt paid a visit to the Children's Court yesterday morning to lecture the misbehaving young, and at the same time to get local color for a series of editorials dealing with children's courts and delinquency among the young. As concerned the latter aim, the Colonel expressed himself abundantly satisfied before he left the court at noon.

Col. Roosevelt entered the court a little after 10 o'clock, and from then on there was scarcely a child prisoner that escaped an examination by, and in some cases a severe lecture from, the ex-President. Practically all the children recognized the Colonel. A few were mollycoddles enough to grow pale and approach the brink of tears. In a few cases the ex-President turned from the method of moral hypnotism to a method more humanly fatherly.

"I'd like to spank you!" he cried, glaring at one youthful offender.

Judge Franklin Chase Hoyt, the mild-mannered Magistrate of the court, sat quietly at the Colonel's right. But for his position behind the centre of the bench, and the black magisterial robes he wore, he might have seemed the visitor, and the Colonel the doler out of justice in the court. One or two of the boys looked yearningly toward the black-robed Judge, as if they preferred his brand of lecturing to that they were getting.

One of those boys was William Flohe, 15 years of age of 500 East Fifteenth Street, of whom it was sorrowfully chronicled into the court records that he had been spitting off the rear platform of a Second Avenue Elevated train down upon the people on the street at Rivington and Allen Streets.

"I never heard of such a beastly thing for any boy to do," said Col. Roosevelt, gritting his teeth and looking severely at the boy. "You don't look as if you'd do that. You have a good face. Your clothes are neat. You've a good home."

The boy didn't seem to like the lecture a bit.

"I never knew a William to be a bad boy," continued the Colonel. But the boy, being perhaps of a political cast of mind and interpreting this remark as a clean bill of health for the behavior of President Taft, Col. Bryan, and other big Williams, wasn't a bit consoled. The Colonel went at him again:

"What you need is a good spanking, and I'd like to give it to you! I'd like to be your father for a few minutes."

Justice Hoyt then took up the case, and suspended sentence.

John Appelby, 8 years old of 333 South Pearl Street, Albany, who had run away from home on Wednesday night, stowed away aboard a night boat on the Hudson, and been arrested on his discovery here this morning, struck the Colonel as a promising young adventurer immediately.

"Why did you run away?" he asked, his face lighting up with interest.

"I didn't" said the lad, looking up into the ex-President's face, unlike the other boys, without the least fear. "I wanted to see my aunts."

The Colonel lost interest immediately and turned to look for some other and more likely promise of future Presidential timber. Appleby was transferred to the care of the Children's Society until his parents can be communicated with.

Johnny Conlon, who unlike his name, is of Italian extraction, was accused of stealing two ears of corn on Second Avenue on Thursday night.

"You've a good father and mother," said the Colonel to him, as if he had known the Conlons well all his life. "Why don't you keep out of trouble? Why don't you be a good boy? John is a good name, and you've a right to live up to it."

Stanley Wheeler was a bad boy because he threw tomatoes at passersby in East Twelfth Street, and was caught at it.

"About time you did something else," said the ex-President. "Keep off the streets. Why don't you play ball instead of doing that?"

Stanley promised to make Mathewson his ideal for the remainder of his life, and to leave tomatoes to vegetarians. He was held for further examination.

Col. Roosevelt became interested in the case of Andrew Haffaro, a boy who ran away from his home in Mahanoy City, Penn., because, he said, his father threatened dire things if he didn't pick up $1.50 worth of berries each day.

The boy came to New York and looked for his sister in a skyscraper because she had sent him a postcard picture of one. Judge Hoyt glanced at some papers referring to the boy and said:

"I understand from reports that you stand very well in school. You seem modest about telling that."

There was a loud report like a miniature bomb explosion. But it was not the Black Hand. It was only the Colonel's hand, which smote its fellow in loud and emphatic token of approval. The Colonel's face lit up.

"I'll bet he's a good scholar," he cried. "He looks like a boy who could do things!"

As Andy passed in front of the bench the Colonel patted him approvingly on the shoulder, to start him on that path of doing things—other than the picking of berries. He also suggested that the Children's Society investigate the boy's story.

Frank Carlson came in for the other sort of lecturing from the Colonel, and was badly frightened. The boy is 10 years old, and lives at 616 West 104th Street. He was found asleep at 2 o'clock yesterday morning in the entry of a store on West 116th Street. His mother, who was in court, said he had given her trouble at home.

This was what the Colonel didn't like. He turned to the boy and said severely: "Why can't you behave? Why don't you behave like other boys?"

The Colonel leaned forward as if eager to impress the boy. But the young scapegrace shrank back. The case was put over for future investigation.

There was hardly a case in which Col. Roosevelt did not take keen interest and make inquiries. Sometimes he questioned the children, sometimes the court officials. He manifested great pleasure whenever one of the children showed intelligence in replies to his questions.

On leaving the court he had nothing to say, except that he had enjoyed his experience greatly and would probably write something about the work of the Children's Court.

WREATH ON McKINLEY TOMB.

Placed by Cortelyou on Tenth Anniversary of President's Death.

The tenth anniversary of the death of President McKinley, which occurred on Thursday, passed almost unnoticed, no formal services being held in this city. Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou, however, followed his custom of having a wreath of carnations and magnolia leaves placed on the McKinley sarcophagus at Canton, Ohio.

President McKinley was shot by the anarchist Czolgosz while holding a public reception in Buffalo at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo in the afternoon of Sept. 6, 1901. He was removed to the home of John G. Milburn in Delaware Avenue and died there at 2:15 A. M. on Sept. 14.

Mr. Thompson Buchanan's play, "The Rack," is labeled a play of social inquisition. But slow torture would describe it more tersely and directly. So, too, that terse inquiry, Who killed cock-robin? must have been in the minds of many before the final act laboriously closed.

From time to time there have been rumors that in staging "The Rack" the producers were trying to discount the possible effect of "The Butterfly on the Wheel," which was one of the popular successes of the last London season.

In "The Rack," as in that play, the ultimate effect is sought through a scene in which a woman is put through grilling cross-examination in the courtroom. But bald melodrama as it is there is this much to say about the courtroom scene in "The Butterfly on the Wheel." It builds up step by step into a powerful theatrical climax. Mr. Buchanan's scene does not build up, and the sudden ending with an unsuspected person acknowledging the deed for which an innocent man is on trial simply puts a period to a futile effort at suspense.

Mr. Buchanan has done work that justified faith in his future as a playwright. But "The Rack" is poor stuff. It will bring him no credit. And it is very much to be doubted if even that public which wants to be thrilled will find it entertaining.

At the outset one needed a theatrical "Who's Who" to identify the characters. But eventually it became apparent that Jack Freeman was a home-breaker, that he had wrecked two or three pairs of lives, and that if things took their usual course he would be the means of riving asunder at least one other pair. Thomas Gordon and his fool wife, Blanche, are the immediate objects of his attentions, and though Blanche loves her husband, she excepts to the word "must," especially when her husband uses it in an effort to dissuade her from seeing anything of this notorious Lothario. And then Blanche, who can't understand her husband's desire to interfere in her affairs, is readily taken in by the insinuating scoundrel who pretends to a desire to be reunited to his own wife, and to effect that purpose suggests a little party of four at a notorious road house.

The private room in the road house has doors right and doors left and doors in the middle. Some of the doors are useful as things to knock on to make disturbing noises. And there is another door leading to a bedroom, the sight of which occasions smiles of cynicism or gasps of horror depending entirely upon the viewpoint of the character who happens on the scene. Detectives disguised as waiters snoop around, and the host, urbane and smiling, taciturn and brutal, as occasion may demand, gives a momentary uplift to the scene.

Of course the two people needed to make the party proper do not arrive. But the husband warned by a detective comes in, is hoodwinked into believing that his wife is not about, departs, and leaves Lothario and Missis to their luncheon. Then follows the usual effort at passionate love-making, a battering on the door, and the exit of the villain with a revolver in his hand. There are a couple of shots, and he staggers in mortally wounded, while outside is pandemonium. The woman departs through a side door, arrives home, and presently there is a scene between wife and husband, with the former confessing his "horrible suspicions," and asking for forgiveness. His wife says she was at the roadhouse. Then he decides that she shot the man in an effort to protect herself from his advances. She, on her part, believes that he has done the deed. And here for one brief moment there is a suggestion of suspense. For now the husband's doubt is emphasized once more.

The trial scene follows, with a sudden confession from a spectator in the courtroom that he was at the roadhouse, heard Mrs. Gordon's struggle and cries for help; that he knocked on the door, met Freeman in the hall, was shot at in the dark and returned the fire, being only too glad of an opportunity, as his own wife had been lured away from her happy home by the same busy villain. A more clumsily contrived ending could scarcely be imagined.

Miss Katherine Grey played the wife with all of the varying emotionalism that the role required, and with more good, honest work than it was worth. And Mr. Milton Sills, when he was not too strongly moved by his sympathy with the husband's sufferings, was moderately effective. Mr. Conway Tearle visualized the role of the deceiver perfectly and played it with every suggestion of duplicity. The role of the district attorney was vigorously handled by Joseph Green, and that of the roadhouse-keeper made interesting by Wilton Taylor.

The piece was handsomely mounted and well staged.

MISS FARRAR DUE SEPT. 26

Mme. Gadski, Mary Garden, Emmy Destinn, Caruso, Slezak, Jorn, and Jadlowker Will Follow.

The first cold weather is an indication that the opera season is about to begin, and that the singers are already on their way here. Mme. Rita Fornia and Mme. Marguerite Sylva came back last week. This morning on the Lorraine Mme. Emma Eames and her new husband, Emilio de Gorgoza, will come into port. Mme. Eames is not to return to the Metropolitan, but she will be heard in "Otello" and "Tosca" at the Boston Opera. With her husband she will undertake a long concert tour.

Monday on the President Lincoln will be Mikail Mordkin and forty-two of the dancers who will accompany him and Pavlowa, for the latest advices are that the two will dance together, although Pavlowa does not come on this boat. The opening performance of the company will be given on Oct. 17 at Newark, and the Metropolitan Opera House engagement will open on Dec. 18.

Riccardo Martin, with his wife and daughter, will arrive on the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm on Sept. 25. Before singing at the Metropolitan Mr. Martin will make a concert tour of the United States. He will be heard in many cities with Miss Alice Neilsen.

On Sept. 26 on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. come Miss Geraldine Farrar and her mother, if Mrs. Farrar has recovered in time to take this boat. Miss Farrar is to sing in concert before the opera season opens. Antonio Scotti is another passenger. He is to be heard in concert with Mme. de Pasquale before he sings at the opera. Pasquale Amato, who has just made his first appearance in Berlin, will be on board. He is to make his first concert tour with Mme. Longari, a soprano, and the wife of Fernando Tanara, one of the assistant conductors at the Metropolitan. Both Mr. and Mme. Tanara will be on board the Kaiser Wilhelm II. Andreas Dippel and Prof. Stengel are other passengers, although it is not stated whether Prof. Stengel is accompanied by his wife, Marcella Sembrich.

The Barbarossa on Oct. 3 will bring the German chorus to this country. The George Washington on Oct. 8 will bring Mr. and Mrs. Gatti-Casazza, Alfred Hertz, and Marie Rappold. Mrs. Rappold has been singing in Bucharest this Summer. Mme. Aida is to go on another concert tour.

Carl Burrian, the German tenor, who had considerable trouble in Dresden during the Summer, and who has been on his Bohemian estates ever since, will arrive early in November, and so will Herman Jadlowker. Leo Slezak and Carl Jörn are due later in the season. Olive Fremstad, as usual, has not yet made up her mind when she will sail.

WANTS NO ARMORY IN PARK.

Stover Fears Land Given to the Naval Militia for a Dock Will Be So Used.

Park Commissioner Stover scented yesterday what he called a plot of the military authorities to grab a section of Riverside Park on which to erect an armory. The Commissioner pointed out that at a meeting of the Park Board on Aug. 17 a resolution was passed, at the request of the Armory Board, surrendering to the Sinking Fund Commission a piece of property, 225 by 450 feet, north of West Ninety-seventh Street, on the westerly side of Riverside Park, "for the location of suitable, adequate dock, berthing, and mooring facilities for vessels and boats, and for the site of a boat shed and sail loft for the use of the First Battalion, Naval Militia."

It is Commissioner Stover's opinion that if the Naval Militia obtain the property they will erect an armory on it. No mention of this, however, was made in the resolution passed by the Armory Board requesting the Park Department to surrender the property. The Commissioner had a talk with the Mayor on the subject yesterday afternoon. Later he said:

"I have learned on the most unquestioned authority that it is the intention of the Naval Militia to build an armory on the site if they obtain it from the Sinking Fund Commission. They did not intend to say anything about building the armory until they got the site. The naval people wanted to erect the armory to the east of the site, in the park, but I voted against the proposition. Later I learned it was their intention to erect it on the property west of the New York Central Railroad tracks.

"It will be a shame if they are allowed to do this. A high building at this point will interfere with the plans for improving the park water front. It will be an eyesore to the entire neighborhood. Several city officials are members of the Armory Board, but I do not believe that any of them know anything about this attempted grab. When the public is aware of what is going on I do not believe the naval people will get very far."

Capt. O. Russell Raynor, who is in charge of the First Naval Battalion, was out of the city yesterday.

MRS. HUTCHINS SUES.

Wants W. J. Dante Ousted from Management of Aged Husband's Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Mrs. Stilson Hutchins filed an ouster bill against William J. Dante, Trustee of the $3,000,000 estate of her aged and paralytic husband, to-day. A rule was obtained from Justice Gould requiring Mr. Dante to show cause on Sept. 19 why he should not be ousted and Trustees appointed by the court in his place.

The filing of the removal suit followed Justice Gould's refusal this morning to hear Mrs. Hutchins's application for a formal order giving her $2,500 per month, as recommended by Auditor Dent of the District Court. Justice Gould, however, advised Trustee Dante to pay immediate pressing bills of Mrs. Hutchins, but made no formal order.

An offer to take $2,000 per month temporarily was then made to the Trustee by Attorneys Gittings and Chamberlin.

"Not a cent more than $1,000 per month," was the reply of Attorney Brandenburg, counsel for Mr. Dante.

Attorney Chamberlin at once hurried into the clerk's office and filed suit to oust the Trustee.

Gifts of $95,000 by Trustee Dante to Lee Hutchins, a son, are charged in the suit. Failure of the Trustee to give an accounting of his trusteeship and misstatements as to debts of the estate also are charged.

BAR VICE REPORT FROM MAIL.

Chicago Volume Held in Post Office Pending Washington Decision.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—One thousand copies of the report of the Chicago Vice Commission have been seized by the postal authorities pending a decision from Washington whether the much-discussed volume is fit matter to be carried through the mail.

The order barring the report was issued yesterday after a wagonload of the books was delivered at the Post Office by the commission for transportation to sociologists, scientists, physicians, and public officials in other cities. Postmaster Daniel Campbell last night gave out this statement:

"The books were barred from the mails because the law requires that they should be barred. The report, of course, was made by high-grade men, and would be of great value if placed in proper hands, but the law does not allow us to take into consideration either the authorship or the purpose of a book of this kind."

MARY GARDEN HAS PROTEGE.

Sends Blanche Slocum, Chorus Girl, to Paris to Study for Opera.

Thanks to Miss Mary Garden, who has become her protector and advancer, Miss Blanche Slocum, who last season was a chorus girl with the Chicago Opera Company, will sail to-day on the New York for Paris, where she will study to prepare herself for opera. Miss Garden's mother will accompany Miss Slocum to the boat and Miss Garden will meet her in Paris and take her to 4 Rue Marboeuf, where the Scotch soprano herself lived when she was studying in Paris. Miss Slocum will study singing with Trabadello, and her French teacher will also be Miss Garden's.

Miss Garden's protégé comes from Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago. She has studied singing with local teachers for some time, and last year she became a member of the chorus of the Chicago Opera Company. Her vicissitudes in this connection were many. Mr. Dippel objected to having her in the company because she was taller than the other girls, and several times her position was in jeopardy. However, she retained it to the end.

It was not until the end of the season that she succeeded in getting Miss Garden to hear her sing. Before that she had pleaded with Mr. Dippel for a similar chance. Her only hope was that Miss Garden would think well enough of her voice to recommend her for small parts. It was 2 o'clock on an afternoon when Miss Garden was leaving for Baltimore at 3 that Miss Slocum was ushered into the prima donna's apartments in the Bellevue Stratford.

Nevertheless Miss Garden heard her sing. Afterward she expressed herself as amazed at her voice, and said she wanted to hear her again. She asked Miss Slocum to come to New York, and here at the Ritz-Carlton she heard her a second time. Then she made up her mind at once and offered to pay the girl's expenses in Paris up to the time when she would be prepared for opera.

"Mary says that Miss Slocum has a voice like Schalchi," said Mrs. Garden yesterday, "a big, deep contralto organ, but it is also curious that she has a high voice, too, and sings as high as C sharp. She will have every advantage in Paris, and when she has completed her work Mary will find her an opportunity to sing at the Opéra or the Opéra Comique."

"I have never met with such whole-hearted kindness and good-heartedness," said Miss Slocum. "Doubtless many people are charitable, but Miss Garden is more than that. She has, I think, the biggest heart in the world. She is doing everything for me, and doing it in the very nicest way possible. I am as ambitious as I can be, and I shall try hard to make her glad that she sent me to Paris."

CENTURY THEATRE OPENS.

Some Changes in Interior of Playhouse—"The Blue Bird" Revived.

George C. Tyler opened the doors of his newly leased Century Theatre last night with a revival of Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird." Since the playhouse changed its management and name it has undergone some interior transformations as well. The row of "Founders' Boxes" has been made into a shallow balcony, and in the space at the rear of the orchestra seats, where there was once a promenade, there is now a row of open boxes fitted with chairs.

As for "The Blue Bird," the changes in it are mostly in the personelle of the players. There are some of The New Theatre company back in their old rôles, but Tyltyl was played by a boy last night, and very wel lplayed at that, with Burford Hampden, a young English actor, in the character. Mytyl was again done by Claribel Campbell, who has grown considerably during the Summer, and who is a shade taller than Master Burford. Morris Husik is the Fire, W. H. Denny plays the Dog, Alice Butler the Fairy Berylune, Helen Lackaye is the Light, and Harriet Sterling is Night. Dore Davidson appeared in the double rôle of Gaffer Tyl and Father Time. But Cecil Yapp is back again in his original rôle of the Cat, and Gwendolyn Valentine is the same drooping Water she was before.

Some slight changes have been made in the method of presenting the play, and the Christmas Tree scene and the scene in the Palace of the Luxuries have been cut out. Last night some difficulties were had with the lights, the scenery, and the music "cues," and in the Palace of Night scene smoke used in one of the effects drifted into the audience and started some of the people coughing. However, "The Blue Bird" was as delightful as ever, and the audience appeared to enjoy it.

MISS FARRAR CABLES FATHER

Singer Summons Him to Paris, Where Mrs. Farrar Is Operated Upon.

Sidney Farrar, the father of Geraldine Farrar, will sail for Paris to-day on the George Washington, in response to a cablegram from his daughter, in which he learned that Mrs. Farrar was operated upon for appendicitis Thursday. Miss Farrar and her mother were to have sailed for New York on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, which arrived on Tuesday, but at the last moment Mrs. Farrar was taken ill, and it was determined not to sail. At that time, however, her illness was not considered serious, and it was only late Thursday that Mr. Farrar received a cablegram telling him he had better come to Paris.

Mr. Farrar was spending a few weeks in the Adirondacks, expecting his daughter and wife to come to pass a week with him, when the cablegram arrived. He hurr'edly left for New York.

Geraldine Farrar and her mother are inseparable. Mrs. Farrar accompanies the singer on all her tours, and is in her dressing room every night she sings at the opera.

Miss Farrar intended to return to America early this year, because she has contracted to go on a concert tour and sing for a phonograph company before the opera season opens, in November.

DAMROSCH WRITES AN OPERA

Composer's Comic Work, "The Dove of Peace," with Book by Wallace Irwin.

Walter Damrosch, spending his first Summer in many years away from his orchestra, at Westport, on Lake Champlain, has composed a comic opera during the Summer to a book by Wallace Irwin. This news will be a great surprise to many who know of Mr. Damrosch as a composer only through his "Scarlet Letter" and "Danny Deever."

Mr. Damrosch describes the book as the best comic opera libretto he has seen since Gilbert's "The Mikado," but he is more reticent about his own music. It is known, however, that the score contains twenty-four musical numbers and that the composer has aimed at simplicity of form and melody. The title of the work is "The Dove of Peace" and the scene is laid in America and the Island of Guam during the late Spanish war.

Wallace Irwin is a well-known magazine writer, who has written many humorous lyrics, and is especially famous for the "Hashimura Togo Letters."

CHILDREN IN 'PINAFORE' AGAIN

Fay Templeton Acts Little Buttercup in Juvenile Performance for Fund.

The children repeated their performance of "Pinafore" at the Casino Theatre yesterday afternoon before a good audience that braved the rain. The cast was practically the same as that of last Spring, except that Fay Templeton played Little Buttercup and seemed to enjoy the experience very much. George Tobin was the dignified little Admiral he impersonated a few months ago, and Thomas Canrahan, Jr., appeared again as a curly haired Dick Deadeye.

The chorus, however, showed the result of the active theatrical season. It looked as if many of the crew and of the "sisters and cousins and aunts" had fallen overboard during the Summer, the ranks had been so depleted by the starting on tour of many of the stage children who took part before. The proceeds of this performance, as at the other juvenile production, will be devoted to the Stage Children's Fund.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

To the cast of Mrs. Fiske's comedy, "The New Marriage," Harrison Grey Fiske has added Douglas Paterson, J. T. Chaille, and T. Tamamoto.

Georgia Caine has been engaged by Fellner & Dreyfus to play the role of an actress in the new musical comedy, "The Three Romeos." The Romeos will be played by William Danforth, Fred Lennox, and Fred Walton. The first performance of the piece will be at the new National Theatre, Washington, on Oct. 2.

The Western company of "The Gamblers," headed by Paul Everton and Gertrude Dallas, began its season at Asbury Park, N. J., last night.

TELLS OF JUGGLING IN THE UNION BANK

E. E. Bogart, Former Director, Says He Got Fraudulent Mortgage for Note He Signed.

DECISION AGAINST GROUT

Justice Putnam Upholds Application for a Warrant to Produce Him as Witness—He Will Appeal.

Ellsworth E. Bogart, a former Director of the Mechanics and Traders' Bank, and Gilbert E. Elliott, a lawyer who was familiar with the bank's mortgage and bond business, were the witnesses at yesterday's investigation of the Brooklyn Union Bank before Deputy Bank Superintendent Edward Lane Dodge. Their testimony gave the investigators additional information on the financial methods of David A. Sullivan while President of the bank.

Bagort signed a note for $16,000 to accommodate Sullivan. He was sorry he did it twenty-four hours afterward and demanded it back. He was told he couldn't have it as it was an asset of the bank. At the time Bogart signed the note he did not receive any security for it. When he was informed that he would be out that much money in case the bank failed, he immediately set out to protect himself.

President Sullivan tried to reassure Bogart by telling him that he needn't worry as the bank was all right, and that it wouldn't fail. This was in November, 1907. Bogart threatened to see his lawyer, or go to the District Attorney if something were not done about the note. Something was done.

"Sullivan then offered me a mortgage as collateral," said the witness, "and I decided to take it. He called Gilbert Elliott downstairs from the latter's office on the tenth floor of the building, and Elliott snowed me a mortgage for $28,000 on property at Riverdale Avenue and Powell Street. I was told it was a first mortgage on property worth $40,000. I accepted it.

"They handed the bond to me, but the mortgage, they said, had not been returned from the Register's office, and I could not get it for several days."

Mr. Cropsey handed the witness the bond, and the latter identified it. It was made by the Camden Construction Company to the Essex & Lee Company. The name of Charles B. Molloy, who was a clerk in Elliott's office, was signed to the bond as President of the company. The assignment of the mortgage which Bogart said he received a few days later bore the signature of Gilbert Elliott.

Bogart said the bank tried to get this mortgage back from him. A joint suit was started against him for this purpose by the Essex & Lee Company and the bank.

"According to an affidavit made by Gilbert Elliott in the suit brought to recover the mortgage," he said, "the mortgage which he gave me was no good. He made an affidavit that it was fraudulent, and that it had not been authorized by the Directors of the company. Later on I heard that I had been deceived into believing that this was a first mortgage. There were other mortgages ahead of it. Mine covered only a small portion of the property."

Gilbert Elliott testified about the mortgage. He said that Major Ashley came to him and told him that there was a depositor downstairs that wanted his money, and wanted to know if there wasn't a mortgage for about $16,000 in the office. Elliott said he found the one for $28,000, that being the nearest amount to the one desired.

"If I had known the truth that Bogart was getting this mortgage because he had a note in the bank I would never have given it to him," said Elliott.

"Haven't you twice told us that you were taking orders, and doing what you were told?" asked Mr. Cropsey.

"I should have said," replied Elliott, "that I would not have given it to him if I had any sense."

Elliott testified that about $250,000 in mortgages were given out by him at Sullivan's request in November and December, 1907. The witness admitted in reply to some of Mr. Cropsey's questions that some of the mortgages were made out at Sullivan's dictation. Many of these mortgages were signed by dummy companies and dummy individuals doing business in Elliott's office.

Justice Putnam denied yesterday the motion of Edward M. Grout for a rehearing of the application of the Attorney General for a Sheriff's warrant to bring him before the Union Bank investigators. The court decided that there was no reason for a reargument, and declared that his decision of last Saturday, granting the application for the warrant, would hold.

The warrant for Grout will be issued to-day. Immediately afterwards a stay of execution will be granted, pending an appeal, which Mr. Grout will take to the higher courts.

FLOODED BY CLOUDBURST.

Twelve Feet of Water in Etna Streets, Trains Held Up, Factories Close.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Sept. 15.—Property loss approximating $500,000 was done to-day when the streets of Etna, Millvale, Sharpsburg, Turtle Creek, and other suburban towns were transformed into raging torrents by a storm thought to be due to a cloudburst. One life was lost. Scores of others were saved by firemen and volunteers.

The storm, which broke early in the day, reached its greatest intensity at Etna, where the streets were flooded to the depth of twelve feet, and the foundations of many houses were undermined. Lashing their ladders together the village firemen spanned the swirling flood, 150 feet, and saved twenty-five persons marooned in a block of houses. Two hundred steel workers at the Spang, Chalfant Company hung to rafters in one of the buildings for several hours until taken off in boats. Cars loaded with steel and coke were tossed about and railway tracks torn up.

The flood in the Turtle Creek Valley tore through some of the buildings of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and the Westinghouse Airbrake Company, compelling a suspension of work, while a number of factories at Glenshaw were shut down. Debris jammed against bridges caused the water to form lakes, creating a dangerous situation for hours. Telephone and telegraph communication was interrupted, and in some instances suspended, while railroads annulled trains and rerouted others. For the first time in the history of the local weather bureau, a flood warning was sent out in September, twenty-two feet of water being expected here to-morrow.

At Harmony, Penn., John Adams, an ash wheeler of Evans City, was thrown from a car of the Pittsburgh, Harmony, Butler & Newcastle Railroad when it plunged into a washout and was killed.

The precipitation at Pittsburgh from 10:30 o'clock Thursday night until 10:30 o'clock to-day was 2.08, while at Beaver Falls 4.60 was reported.

At Millvale scores of people were compelled to flee for their lives, and in the Turtle Creek Valley conditions early became dangerous. Water poured over a retaining wall and flooded the power plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, throwing several thousand men out of employment.

At Glenshaw a number of manufacturing plants were flooded, and at Sewickley a reservoir of the water works system broke, causing some damage. Many houses in Emsworth, near by, were also flooded. Six feet of débris blocked the tracks of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad at Bellevue, and there was six feet of water on the tracks of the Pittsburgh, Bessemer & Lake Erie Railroad at Greenville when the Shenango River overflowed and a reservoir went out. Sixteen trains were held up there for hours to-day. Telegraph and telephone service is badly crippled.

OHIO TOWNS FLOODED.

Bridges Washed Away and Crops Destroyed Near Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 15.—Rains that have fallen almost continuously for the past twenty-four hours have put small streams in Ohio out of their banks, submerged lowlands in towns and cities, washed away bridges, tieing up railroad traffic, and damaged and destroyed growing crops and other farm property, doing damage estimated at $1,500,000.

Many cities and towns were cut off from transportation, and perishable goods are a total loss. The Cleveland, Akron & Columbus Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad was out of commission at several points to-night, and the same was true of almost every railroad line entering and leaving Columbus.

In New Philadelphia and vicinity, bridges were washed away, barns struck by lightning and destroyed, and crops were carried away by the current.

At New Comerstown, the cupola at the Clow Plow Works, weakened by the rains, fell, and the cupola and building were wrecked.

Upward of $25,000 damage was done in Coshocton County alone by a cloudburst that filled small streams to overflowing, swept live stock away, denuded cornfields, and tore away five bridges. Many families were rescued in boats.

THE BOWERY LOSES ITS 'HONESTEST MAN'

Emil Brunner Drops Dead in Lodging House Where He Had Lived Many Years.

MADE ONLY 50 CENTS A DAY

But Saved $168, Which Will Save Him from Potter's Field—Called "The Oracle" by Some.

Emil Brunner, known to his acquaintances and fellow-lodgers—he seems to have had no intimates or relatives—as the "honestest man in the Bowery," died suddenly yesterday morning. He was coming out of his 20-cent room on the third floor of the Windsor Lodging House, at 208 Bowery, where he lived for several years with his books and newspaper clippings, when he fell suddenly to the floor unconscious. George Sheridan, one of the lodging house attendants, picked him up and tried to revive him, but was unable to do so. Brunner was dead of apoplexy.

Brunner, according to Bowery folk, came from Germany originally. Every one who visited his room was impressed by the well-filled bookcase, most of the contents of which were written in foreign tongues. There is probably not another bookcase in any 20-cent room in any of the Bowery's lodging houses. Because of this bookcase, the old man got a great reputation for learning. He was called "The Oracle" by some.

What every one admired him most for was his honesty. One night last Winter he shuffled over to the lodging house's wire-screened desk. He had a German book in one hand, as usual. In the other hand he held a pocketbook.

"I've just found this on the floor," he said in his low, rather halting voice to the astonished clerk. "Keep it until the owner claims it."

In the pocketbook was $47. In all the desk clerk's experience no resident of a 20-cent Bowery lodging house had ever before offered to return money picked up from the floor.

The clerk took the money and soon another guest—a transient—came running in. He was poorly dressed and far from well-to-do, like all other 20-cent lodging house patrons. Forty-seven dollars meant a lot to him.

"I've lost my pocketbook. Some one in your place must have stolen it," he said to the desk clerk.

"No one here stole it, but old Mr. Brunner found it," said the desk clerk.

The owner of the pocketbook was so delighted at getting it back that he went over to Brunner and tried to make him accept $2. But the old man wouldn't take it.

"No, no," he protested, very much embarrassed.

After he died yesterday it turned out that he had been working as a cleaner for 50 cents a day in a Sixth Avenue restaurant, and that all his lifetime's savings consisted of an account for $168 in the Bowery Savings Bank. This, his fellow-lodgers explained yesterday, would save the old man from Potter's Field, and they were glad because they all were fond of him.

Partly because he was so honest and partly because he was so well-educated and reserved, the Bowery has a legend that he came originally of a titled German family.

Frank B. Zdrubek.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Frank B. Zdrubek, Dean of the Bohemian journalists of Chicago, died yesterday. He had been striken with apoplexy Monday and had not regained consciousness. In 1875 he founded, as editor in chief, the first Bohemian daily newspaper in the United States, The Daily Svornost, with August Geringer as publisher. He was author of many scientific books.

GIANTS HAVE STRONG CHANCE FOR PENNANT

Odds So Great Against Chicago That Victory Seems Assured for New York.

Chicago failed again yesterday to gain on the Giants by dropping the first game of the double-header at Pittsburgh, while McGraw's men were enjoying an off day, and this morning finds the local pennant chasers one point nearer their coveted goal than they were twenty-four hours ago. With the Giants in first place and less than four weeks more of play the Cubs have their work cut out for them, and every day that they fail to take advantage of chances to gain on McGraw's men makes their task all the more severe. This morning finds the Giants' chances far brighter than at any other time during the exciting pennant chase now nearing its end, and their position is far more improved over that of yesterday than the slight drop of the Cubs in percentage figures would make it appear.

The Giants now have a lead of four full games over their rivals from the Windy City. What four full games mean at this stage of the race is far more cheering to the leader and far more discouraging to the runner-up than a lead of eight or ten games at mid-season. Reduced to cold figures it shows that the team in front has a large advantage to rest upon and the team in second place has a great handicap to overcome.

At the close of yesterday's play Chicago had played 129 games of the scheduled 154, Pittsburgh had played 137, and New York had played 127. This leaves 25 more games for the Cubs, 17 for the Pirates, and 27 for the Giants. The number of games yet to be played with weaker teams and whether these games are to be played on the home field or abroad enters largely into the discussion of each team's chances, but hardly enough to overshadow the other handicap caused by work already accomplished. Both Chicago and Pittsburgh play a greater part of their remaining games at home, the Cubs having only four scheduled for other fields, while the Pirates have three. On the other hand the Giants play twenty-two of their remaining twenty-seven games on other fields.

Starting with to-day's game the Giants play three games in this series at Pittsburgh, five at St. Louis, four at Cincinnati, four at Chicago, one more game at Pittsburgh, on their homeward journey, two at Philadelphia, and return home on Oct. 4. During the next few days they will play three games at Brooklyn and play Philadelphia twice, Brooklyn twice, and Boston once at the Polo Grounds.

Allowing the Giants eleven defeats in their remaining twenty-seven games, the sixteen victories added to the present string would make Chicago travel at a clip far above anything the Cubs have shown this year in order to beat out McGraw's men. The fact that both Chicago and Pittsburgh have lost so many more games than the Giants makes their work all the harder, as making up for defeats sizes up much more difficult than picking up victories when other things are equal.

Granting that the Giants win only sixteen of their remaining twenty-seven games and lose the other eleven they will finish the season with a record of ninety-seven victories and fifty-seven defeats. In order to beat out the Giants the Cubs will have to win twenty of their remaining twenty-five games. Such work would give Chance's men a record of ninety-eight victories and fifty-six defeats, and put them just one game ahead of the New Yorkers at the finish.

Pittsburgh still has an outside chance, but it is so remote that it is hardly worth consideration. On the supposition stated above regarding the Giants' sixteen victories in twenty-seven games, the Pirates could win every one of their remaining seventeen games and be only on even terms with McGraw's men. Pittsburgh's only chance, slim as it is, requires an exhibition of continuous winning that is next to impossible and a slump by the Giants that seems equally impossible. The fact that the Pirates have won one game less than the Giants means nothing at this stage of the race. The conditions are completely overbalanced by the fact that Clarke's men have lost eleven games more than the McGraw clan. Pittsburgh's only chance of getting near the front is to rush on at top speed and have the Giants travel backward at the same clip.

Winning sixteen more games does not seem a difficult task, even though the Giants will be away from home most of the time. Granting an even break in the four games at Chicago and the same record in four games at Pittsburgh, the Giants could lose two of their five games at St. Louis and one of their four games at Cincinnati. This would bring them back East and make it necessary for them to take two of their three games with Philadelphia, three out of five with Brooklyn, and their one game with Boston. In view of their past work on the road the Giants can reasonably expect to pick up at least ten out of seventeen games from the Western teams. Against the Eastern teams they can be expected to win six out of nine games, especially since five of these games are at the Polo Grounds and three more at Brooklyn, where the Giants have lost only one game this year.

Winning two games from Chicago would allow the Cubs a leeway of only three defeats in their twenty-one games with teams other than New York, and that even break would be a big help to New York's chances. Winning two from Pittsburgh would further eliminate the Pirates, who need only the gentlest kind of a push just now to be counted out. Viewed from every angle the race shapes up as a pennant breeze headed for New York.

The Cubs have yet to play four games with Brooklyn, six with Philadelphia, five with Boston, four with New York, three with St. Louis, and three with Pittsburgh. By losing a single game in each series they could not overtake the Giants if McGraw's men lose ten of their remaining games. An even break with New York in the four games at Chicago would require some remarkable playing to put Chance's men in front of the Giants. At the present time the Cub pitching staff is in a condition that indicates trouble for the Chance combination, and it will take wonderful pitching to pull the team through the crisis which now presents itself. Pittsburgh is well fixed as regards pitching talent, but unfortunately for the Pirates, perfect pitching now will not undo the record of the past and blot out those eleven extra defeats which Clarke's men must offset to win the pennant.

The Giants are stronger than the Cubs in pitching talent, though perhaps not as well off as the Pirates. However, they have only to continue along at a pace somewhat below their season's record in order to cross the finish line in front. Chicago must travel at a clip shown by no major league team this season, and Pittsburgh can only win by having the other two teams slump and fall backward at an almost impossible speed.

Each Club Wins a Game In Double-Header at Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 15.—Pittsburgh and Chicago to-day broke even in a double header, Pittsburgh winning the first game by a score of 3 to 2 and Chicago taking the second 4 to 2. The second game was called after the sixth inning on account of darkness. Hendrix pitched fine ball for the home team, and received errorless support. Reulbach was taken off the rubber after the third inning, and was succeeded by Richie, who made a good finish. In the second game Gardner and Cole were the respective pitchers. Gardner weakened in the sixth inning, when a single by Sheckard, a triple by Tinker, and a home run by Zimmerman netted three runs and the game. Scores:

Cardinals Take Two from Reds.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 15.—Cincinnati made its last appearance of the season on the local grounds to-day and was on the short end of a 3-to-2 score in both games of the double-header with St. Louis. The first game went to St. Louis in the tenth inning, when Bliss's long single scored Hauser with the winning run. Cincinnati started the scoring in the second game, gathering two runs in the first inning. The locals tied it in the third, and won out in the ninth. Score:

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

Two of the fastest bantams will furnish the stellar attraction at the show of the Sharkey A. C. to-night. Young Pierce, the colored bantam of Philadelphia, who is matched to box Digger Stanley in England, will oppose Johnny Lore of the west side. Pierce is making a strong bid for championship honors in this section, and is credited with a decision over Owen Moran and Patsy Kline, and on two occasions held his own against Abe Attell. Lore is a sturdy boxer, and has done some creditable work in the past few months which entitles him to much consideration.

Three well-matched bouts scheduled for ten rounds each are the programme for to-night's show of the Fairmont A. C. The final, which brings together Johnny Dundee and Kid Ghetto, both popular featherweights of this city, should furnish as good a contest as has been seen hereabout in many moons. Dundee has been gradually forging his way to the front in his class and always gives a good account of himself, no matter who he is pitted against, and his opponent to-night is a boy well known to local fight followers. The semi-final contest will be between Jimmy Flynn of Long Island City, who is sparring partner for Matt Wells, and Andy Cordes. The opening contest will find Johnny Herring of Alabama and Young Stanley, a local boy, doing the work, and although very little is known of the Southerner, he is conceded to be a clever and hard boxer.

Amateur and professional boxers will vie in the lengthy card of the Long Acre A. A. to-night. It is one of the longest programmes arranged by Manager Neuman this season, as the wrestling match which will open the entertainment will be followed by thirteen three-round bouts between amateurs and conclude with an exhibition between professional boxers. The Long Acre amateur contests have always proved successful and attracted attention on the west side in view of the fact that several well-known boys have graduated from these shows, and the patrons are always afforded an evening of good sport.

BOXING BOUTS CALLED OFF.

Alleged Violation of Building Laws Prevents Brighton Beach Contests.

Two city officials, Messrs. Kennedy and Spears, the former representing the Building Department and the latter from the Corporation Council's office, made known their presence last night at the Brighton Beach Athletic Club, Coney Island, as the crowd was about to enter the club for the regular boxing entertainment by serving the officials of the club with a complaint of having violated the building laws. They declared that the building was not in strict accordance with the building laws and that the additional bleachers recently constructed in anticipation of a Mardi Gras overflow was done without a permit from the proper authorities.

The management of the club contended that the building was much better equipped for fire emergencies than many other clubs, having the required number of exits all within easy reach of the entire seating portion of the building.

Not being able to reach a satisfactory agreement the club officials decided to call the boxing contests off, pending an examination, and they believe that by removing the additional bleacher seats they will again come within the building law requirements and expect to resume activities next week.

DIXIE IV. TRIUMPHS.

Burnham's Fast Motor Boat Wins Free-for-All Championship of America.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Dixie IV., Frederick K. Burnham's hydroplane, easily won the free-for-all championship of the United States and the Chamber of Commerce trophy in a thirty-mile race over the Motor Boat Club of Buffalo's course in the Niagara River to-day. Of the four other starters, the Reliance IV. was the only one to finish, and she was beaten by nearly four miles. The Reliance is a thirty-two-footer and looked like a cockleshell beside her victorious opponent. She was entered by John J. Ryan of Cincinnati.

The Disturber II., owned by James A. Pugh of Chicago, which had been regarded as the Dixie's most formidable rival, dropped out of the race at the end of the tenth mile, when flames began to shoot out of her funnels. The Courier III., entered by William J. Conners, and the Gretchen II., the property of John W. Hubbard of Pittsburgh, were withdrawn at the outset of the contest, covering only two miles.

The Dixie's time for the six five-mile laps was: 7:27, 7:33, 7:32, 7:30, 7:34, and 7:29.

McALEER IN BOSTON CLUB.

Washington Manager and Robert McRay Buy Half Interest in Red Sox.

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—The purchase of a half interest in the Boston American League baseball club by James R. McAleer of Washington and Robert B. McRoy of Chicago, secretary to Ban Johnson, was announced to-night. The following statement was given out at the headquarters of the Boston Club:

"Negotiations connected with the sale of an interest in the Boston American League Baseball Club have resulted in the purchase of a half interest by James R. McAleer of Washington and Robert B. McRoy of Chicago. As both of these gentlemen have been actively engaged elsewhere they will not be able to come to Boston until the beginning of the year 1912. At that time they will come to Boston to live and join in the active management of the Red Sox. Both are versed in baseball and have marked ability, and they ought to greatly strengthen the organization. Plans for a new ball park, which will be a credit to Boston, will now be formulated and the work pushed ahead at a rapid rate."

John I. Taylor of this city retains a half interest in the club.

It is said that Jake Stahl will manage the team next year and play first base. He played with the team in 1910 and is now engaged in the banking business in Chicago with his father-in-law.

FIREMAN JIM FLYNN WHIPS CARL MORRIS

Oklahoma Giant and "White Hope" Shows No Class in Garden Fight.

Carl Morris, in the rôle of a possible "white hope," passed into the class of disappointments at Madison Square Garden last night when he stood up for ten rounds against Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, and did nothing more than take punishment. In none of the ten rounds did the Oklahoma Giant show to advantage over his smaller rival, who was really a light heavyweight. Neither did he show anything at any stage of the battle that might cheer the most optimistic persons into believing that he possesesd an iota of championship calibre. Gameness was in evidence, but gameness cannot make a champion when every other necessary asset is lacking.

When the bout ended the right side of Morris's face was battered out of shape. His right eye was completely closed in the third round, and not even a bit of surgical work by one of his attendants, who lanced the swollen flesh beneath the eye, did anything to restore sight to the closed optic. As a result, Morris went through seven rounds without being able to see with that eye. His mouth was out of shape, too, due to the pounding and consequent swelling on the right side, and a huge bruise extended from the temple to the lower jaw. It is doubtful if any pugilist was ever battered out of shape more than was Morris last night. He bled continually from the second round to the finish as if an artery had been severed, and in the closing rounds both men had to have sponge baths from head to foot. Referee Charley White began his work in a white shirt, which was changed to a crimson at the finish. The canvas on the ring floor also changed color during the ten rounds.

Morris was lacking in all the rudiments expected of a fighter and was a big disappointment. He has had a year to learn at least a small part of the game and he has had plenty of time to prepare for this bout. The action of the Governor of Oklahoma in prohibiting the bout some time ago gave Morris plenty of chance for work, but he evidently could not improve. He showed nothing more than size and gameness. Even in condition he was sadly deficient and if last night's form was the best he could attain in the time he had had for the bout his chance of ever getting into real fighting trim is decidedly small.

Morris last night was fat. Rolls of flesh stood out on his stomach every time he bent over in the clinches and loose fat danced on his back every time Flynn landed a hard blow to the body. His face puffed easily from punches, he was slow on his feet, and lack of condition was apparent in his every move. He takes rank with Ed Dunkhorst, Mike Schreck, and so-called fighters of that calibre, rather than the real fighters who can be put into regular fighting trim. As an opponent for Johnson it would be a shame to think of what the black champion would do to him. With his year's preparation it is doubtful if he could stall through a single round.

The only blow that Morris showed last night was a left jab, and with this punch he managed to close Flynn's right eye. That was the only damage done to the Pueblo fireman. The giant Morris tried to weaken Flynn with punches to the stomach, but there was no force behind the blows. Morris simply leaned on Flynn for ten rounds, and what blows he landed were little short arm jabs that carried no weight. He seemed unable to stand back, measure his distance, and land a hard swing.

The smallness of the crowd early in the evening gave an inkling of what was to come. When the doors were opened at 6:45 there were few waiting, and during the next two hours there was no rush for the entrance, such as marked the recent Brown-Wells and Langford-Jeannette bouts at the Garden. The crowd never indicated it would be large, and the large number of extra attendants had no trouble taking care of those who cared to see the bout. At 9 o'clock the crowd inside the Garden was so small that nothing short of a general rush of thousands would fill the chairs, as the promoters had expected. On the main floor there were less than 600 people seated at 9 o'clock, the time for the show to start.

The biggest surprise was furnished by the scant attendance in the balconies and upper galleries. The prices of these seats were much smaller than the figures demanded for seats on the main floor, and it was generally expected that these would fill early, as is usually the case in big events at the Garden. The gallery seats on the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Street sides were well filled and the balcony chairs, just below, showed few vacant. But on the Fourth Avenue side the top gallery had only six occupants, and the two galleries below could number its crowd by only dozens instead of by the hundreds. The arena seats, just above the main floor, were about half filled when the first bout went on, and there was every indication that few additions could be expected. Around the ringside the same conditions prevailed. Many of the boxes were entirely vacant. Some held only two or three persons and few held their capacity.

At no time while the first preliminary bout was in progress was there any great influx of spectators. For the most part the latecomers entered one at a time or in pairs, and nothing like a rush was in evidence at the main doorway. Conditions simply emphasized the early indications that the crowd would prove a disappointment. Hardly 3,500 people were in the Garden when the contestants in the first preliminary climbed out of the ring.

As most of the seats sold brought the small prices, the affair was a failure financially. The fighters had been guaranteed $17,000 for their efforts, and it is very doubtful if the receipts reached that figure. Morris was guaranteed $10,000 for his share and Flynn $7,000. Patrick Powers, who promoted the bout, stated that he was strongly opposed to placing the prices to the high figure, but it had been made necessary by the demands of Frank B. Ufer, manager of Morris. The prices undoubtedly kept the crowd down to such scant proportions.

The upper gallery seats sold for $2, the balcony chairs brought $3 and $5, the arena seats and boxes $5 and $10, and the main floor $10 and $20. At prices which ruled at the Wells-Brown bout last night's bout would have packed the Garden to capacity, but New Yorkers have yet to accept a $2 to $20 scale when the contestants represent only a second or third rater on one side and a novice on the other.

There was practically no betting on the result. The inability to get any kind of a line on the ability of Morris was mainly responsible for this condition of affairs. Neither fighter had what might be called a following, as is generally the case in bouts of importance. It was a "turnout" for the simple purpose of gazing on the much-touted Oklahoma giant, to see what possibilities he possessed and to compare his chances of developing into a suitable opponent for Jack Johnson. As for the outcome, that was secondary. The main idea of the spectators last night was to size up the big "white hope."

Twenty rounds of good boxing were served up in the four preliminaries which preceded the main bout. Walter Braun outpointed Frankie Maher in four rounds, and Willie Samson repeated over Pat Conway in four rounds. Frankie Callahan gained the honors over Kid Herman in a six-round bout. Young Joe Gans defeated Jimmy Davidson in six rounds.

NO SCRAMBLE OUTSIDE.

Only Speculator on Street Swamped with Tickets He Could Not Sell.

Outside the Garden it was as tranquil as a rainy Autumn night could be expected. Inspector Leahy had probably 200 policemen stationed round the big building, these being disposed of in squads of threes on the sidewalks immediately surrounding the structure, while on the opposite sides of Madison Avenue, Fourth Avenue, Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Streets there was a "cop" stationed every fifty feet.

No one was prevented from entering the Madison Avenue foyer, in which all the tickets warranting holders with seats were sold. Admission tickets were only sold at the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Street gallery entrances.

The ability of every one who desired to get inside the foyer, at the Madison Avenue end, warranted the presence of a big crowd of would-be spectators, who were, however, without the necessary credentials for admission.

These were kept on the jump continually by the special policemen in an endeavor to provide a passageway for those who held tickets. So congested did this corridor become, with the special policemen unable to cope with the strong-arm men, who refused to move on, asserting that they were to be passed in by some one, that a few city policemen pushed them all into the street.

The management and the Athletic Commission will both find themselves short many dollars, due to the frequent "raising of the chain," which warranted free admission. These got in on their nerve or through being introduced.

Despite the vigilance of two policemen stationed at the entrance to the fire escape at the Twenty-seventh Street and Fourth Avenue end of the Garden, it was really remarkable to see the number of would-be spectators who made their way unchallenged past the guardians at this particular spot and up the long stairway outside the building to the roof, where, at one of the windows, they gained entrance, though no one seemed to know with whose help.

SHEVLIN'S FOOTBALL SCHEME

Old Yale Captain Comes from St. Paul to Show Elis New Style of Play.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 15.—Tom Shevlin, Yale's former football Captain, traveled 2,000 miles to give the Eli's a new football play which he insists will prove one of the best ground gainers of the season. He came from St. Paul, reaching here at noon and took hold of the squad to instruct it in the formation. He continued his coaching this afternoon and took the express back to New York. He will return to St. Paul immediately. His trip is said to be the longest ever undertaken to present a college with a method of play, although the Princeton coaches are said to have traveled further and at a faster rate to meet coach Yost of Michigan in an attempt to learn how to break up the play Shevlin gave Yale last Fall, which eventually defeated the Tigers.

The Yale eleven, which began practice with four hours' work yesterday, had five hours to-day, the morning drill lasting three hours at Yale Field. Rain prevented the squad leaving the gymnasium this afternoon, but they rehearsed formations in the gymnasium.

HILTON HAS GOLF TITLE NEARLY WON

British Champion Plays Herreshoff in Final To-day for National Honors.

After a lapse of seven years, Frederick Herreshoff of Westbrook, L. I., reached the finals of the National amateur championship of the United States Golf Association by defeating Charles Evans, Jr., of Chicago, by 3 up and 2 to play yesterday in the semi-final round at Apawamis. Herreshoff's opponent for the title will be Harold H. Hilton of the Royal Liverpool Golf Club, champion of great Britain, who earned his place in the decisive contest by vanquishing C. W. Inslee of Wykagyl by 8 up and 6 to play.

Rain had no terrors for the spectators, who numbered several hundred, among them being many women, who discarded umbrellas and were protected from the elements only by raincoats. The increase in the downpour in the afternoon made no difference. The enthusiasm of no one was dampened. Those in the gallery joked with one another and agreed that before the end of the day a call might have to be sent for boats to carry them through.

It is a matter of much speculation as to the winner of the final match. It seems to be agreed that Hilton, great golfer though he is, will have his hands full with the New Yorker, particularly if he shows the form he did yesterday afternoon against Evans, when, after finishing the morning round 3 down, he recovered in remarkable style and won out on the sixteenth green.

The games between Leonhardt and Perlis and Fahrni and Teichmann were adjourned.

The record to date: Schlechter, 14; Teichmann, Rotlewi, 13½ each; Rubinstein, 12; Vidmar, 10½; Alechine, Marshall, Spielmann, Duras, Niemzowitsch, Tartakower, 10 each; Suechting, 9½; Cohn, Leonhardt, Loewenfisch, 9 each; Perlis, 8½; Salwe, 8; Chotimirski, Kostic, Jaffe, Johner, 7½ each; Fahrni, Burn, Chajes, Rabinowitsch, 7 each; Alapin, 6½.

PEOPLE WANT BOXING.

So Says Gov. Dix, Who Blames Police for Trouble at Madison Square Garden.

"The people of the State want boxing," said Gov. Dix yesterday, while in the city for a short while. "There has been such a growing demand for the sport that the State was forced to make laws for the government of it. I am satisfied with the work of the commission which has the game in charge. There has been but one instance which called for complaint, and that was not the fault of the commission.

"It seems to me that the blame should attach to the police. A crowd of 20,000 people tried to get into a building made for 10,000, and there were not enough police to handle the situation.

"I am certain that Mr. Sullivan will reconsider his resignation, and I do not intend to consider any one for his place."

These were the sentiments expressed by the State's Chief Executive when pressed for some expressions relative to the condition of the boxing game, now in the control of a commission appointed by him, the appointed Chairman of which, James E. Sullivan, resigned because of ill-health.

The Governor denied having talked over the situation with Frank S. O'Neil, one of the two Commissioners who are wrestling with the situation, every phase of which, in its relation to the Madison Square A. C., has resulted in a deadlock.

"I have not yet talked over the matter with Mr. O'Neil," said the Governor, "though he has an appointment with me for some time next week to discuss some affairs in relation to the athletic commission."

The Governor's statement that he expects Mr. Sullivan to reconsider his resignation, confirmation of which was sent to the Governor two days ago, brings up the point advanced by Mr. Sullivan on Thursday, that he had not voted for the licensing of the Madison Square A. C., which has instigated a strong protest from Commissioner O'Neil and an opposite view from Major Dixon, his confrère in the commission.

Twice since, when the proposition for the rescinding of the license has been brought up at the solicitation of Mr. O'Neil, who asserted that the club did not have a bona fide lease, because the Madison Square Garden is to be torn down before March 1, 1912, the matter has resolved itself into a tie vote.

Commissioner O'Neil, however, expects to show the Governor at the conference next week that the commission's point is well taken, or at least that his point is, and anticipates that, as the Governor is for the full observance of the law to the letter, that the license will be rescinded.

Senior Championships To-day.

Records may fall at Celtic Park this afternoon, when all the crack athletes of this district compete in the senior championships of the Metropolitan Association. While the entry list is not large, it is the best ever received for a championship of this kind. The Metropolitan district boasts of having more champion athletes than any other city in the United States, and they have all been training hard. "Mel" Sheppard has been training as he never did before, and confidently expects to lower the world's record for the half-mile this afternoon. Abel Kiviat seems to have things his own way in the mile, with Bown and Noble of the New York A. C. finishing in the order named. The quarter-mile, with four 49-second men entered, should also prove to be a very exciting race. The New York A. C. will probably take first, second and third places in the running high jump and pole vault, and with McDonald out of the shot-put, Beatty, Klages and Kilpatrick may finish in the order named in this event.

White to Fly in Baby Biplane.

Claude Grahame-White, with his "Baby White" biplane, will be the feature at the Brighton Beach aviation meet to-day. Aviation enthusiasts will have an opportunity to see this new machine for the first time, as Grahame-White has been flying a Nieuport since he came to America. The birdman will fly from Nassau Boulevard to the Brighton Beach track early in the afternoon, and later will compete in the different events. Thomas Sopwith and Eugene Ely will also come to the Beach by way of the air line from Nassau. Harry N. Atwood and George Beatty, who have been doing daily stunts at the track since the first of the week, will also be on the programme of events to-day.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The disturbance over Manitoba Thursday night has advanced and Friday night its centre was north of Lake Ontario. This barometric depression has been attended by general and heavy rains in the Middle Atlantic and New England States and the Ohio Valley.

Much warmer weather prevails throughout the East and somewhat warmer weather is reported from the Northwest.

The weather is cooler over the Middle Mississippi Valley, where unseasonably high temperatures prevailed during the last several days.

There will be local rains Saturday in the New England and the Middle Atlantic States and the Ohio and middle Mississippi Valleys, followed by generally fair weather Sunday. In all other parts of the country the weather will be generally fair.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate south, shifting to west; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate south and southwest; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate, variable, except on the South Florida Coast.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have moderate to brisk south and southwest winds and overcast showery weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York—Cloudy and warmer Saturday, probably preceded by showers in south portion; Sunday probably fair; moderate southwest winds.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Cloudy and warmer Saturday, preceded by showers; Sunday probably fair; light to moderate south and southwest winds.

New England—Cloudy and warmer Saturday, probably preceded by showers; Sunday fair; moderate south, shifting to west winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 60; for the corresponding date last year it was 63; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 67.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 62; at 8 P. M. it was 63. Maximum temperature, 64 degrees at 6:50 P. M.; minimum, 56 degrees at 12:02 A. M. Humidity, 69 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 97 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The Ne'er-Do-Well

By Rex Beach

For rush of action, intensity of surprise and humor, Rex Beach has here outstripped himself. The Ne'er-Do-Well is a young American with a fight on his hands, and it isn't an easy fight to win. He goes to Panama. This new scene is even richer than Alaska. Through it all sweep the joy, the zest, the enthusiasm of youth in action. The conquest of the Isthmus by the canal engineers forms a moving background full of color.

Nobody's

By Virginia Demarest

"Bound to be read and thoroughly enjoyed," says The Chicago Tribune. "Told with delicacy and skill," says The Detroit Free Press. "Not an idle or a dull page in it," says The Tampa Times. "So clever and appealing that one will not lay it down until the last chapter," says The Pittsburgh Dispatch.

HONEYMOONING IN RUSSIA

THE MISSING FINGER

Translated from the French of ALBERT BOISSIERE.

By MARY J. SAFFORD.

A man's life, the fair name of his dead brother, his own and his wife's happiness depend upon one insignificant finger. For sheer cleverness of plot, shrewd unwinding of clues and startling and unexpected denouements, "The Missing Finger" will take a high place in detective fiction.

JOHN LANE CO. NEW YORK

TAFT BEGINS TRIP ON 54TH BIRTHDAY

Receives Greetings from King George and Friends in All Parts of the World.

AT SYRACUSE FAIR TO-DAY

Baron Rosen Crosses Atlantic to Pay His Respects and Will Intercept President at Albany.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 15.—President Taft closed his three weeks' vacation at Beverly to-night. He motored into Boston from Parramatta, and left at 7:35 on the Taft special, bound for Syracuse, N. Y., the first stopping place, on a trip which foots up 12,961 miles by railroad schedule, carries him to the Pacific Coast and then back to Washington, where he will arrive on Nov. 1.

When the President arose this morning he found another dull, rainy day. After breakfast he looked over a number of official papers, signed a batch of commissions, and finished other routine business necessary before starting on a forty-six-day trip, during which he will have little time to himself.

To-day was the President's fifty-fourth birthday. At breakfast he received the congratulations of Mrs. Taft, Miss Helen, and Charlie, and from that time on he was busy receiving messages from all over the world.

Cablegrams and telegrams arrived hourly. One was from King George and read as follows:

"I have great pleasure in sending you my most hearty congratulations on the anniversary of your birthday, and I trust that the friendly relations existing between our two countries may ever continue."

President Taft finished work on the Dr. Harvey Wiley decision yesterday, and it was typewritten last night. This morning it was taken down to the Summer White House by Acting Secretary Rudolph Forster and given out for publication.

The President motored to Myopia, where he played his last round of the eighteen-hole course, using some of the clubs which Andrew Carnegie sent him from Skibo Castle in Bonnie Scotland. Returning from Myopia, the President had Congressman Longworth as his luncheon guest, and in the afternoon received a few callers. C. H. Chadbourne of New York City spent a few minutes with the President, and Gov. Eugene N. Foss, with a party of friends, motored from Boston to pay his respects and congratulate him on his birthday.

When the Governor left the President put in a busy hour attending to details for his departure, and by 5 had everything finished and spent an hour with his family talking over the trip and plans for the stay of Mrs. Taft, who will be at Beverly through the month of October. The President and Major Butt left Parramatta at 5:55 and motored into Boston, the President making the trip in his car, with the Secret Service car trailing behind.

The Executive offices in the Board of Trade rooms were closed this afternoon with the departure of the President. Acting Secretary Rudolph Forster and the Executive office staff returned to Washington.

Mrs. Taft will have her sister, Mrs. Thomas McK. Laughlin of Pittsburgh and family for her guests.

The Parramatta cottage has been leased for another year for the Summer White House, and lively times are expected because Presidential politics will be in full swing.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 15.—President Taft left Boston at 7:35 to-night. His departure in the special train prepared for his party was signalized by an enthusiastic demonstration from several hundred persons gathered at the South Station to bid him godspeed.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald led the cheering. The Mayor had acted as spokesman a few minutes earlier for the United Charitable Irish Societies of Boston in extending to President Taft an invitation to address that body on the occasion of its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary on March 17 next. The President said he could not make any appointments so far ahead, but would keep the matter in mind.

A drizzle of rain fell during the President's motor trip from his Summer home, Parramatta, at Beverly, to this city. Midway on the road he was forced, with other occupants of his automobile, to alight, and got into the automobile of the Secret Service men, owing to a slight accident to his own machine.

When the special train, which was run as the first section of a regular over the Boston & Albany Railroad, left the South Station, the President's immediate party consisted of Secretary Charles D. Hilles, Major A. W. Butt, Military Aid, and Major Thomas L. Rhodes, U. S. A., the President's physician. There were present on the train also three men of the Secret Service Corps, C. E. Colony, representing the Boston & Albany Road, and nine newspaper men. The train is drawn by a 300,000-pound locomotive, and consists of a baggage car, a coach, the Pullman private car Ideal, to be occupied by the President and his immediate party: the Pullman compartment cars Texas and Florida, and a dining car. The coach is to go over the entire trip.

From the beginning to the end of the trip the train will carry Superintendents, Train Masters, and other operating officials on the various lines over which the train moves, and it is estimated that between 45,000 and 50,000 railroad men will be directly concerned and engaged in transporting the Presidential party.

President Taft has prepared a second speech which he will deliver at Erie, Penn., to-morrow night.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 15.—The President will be entertained at breakfast tomorrow by the Chamber of Commerce and will meet the representative business men of Syracuse and Central and Northern New York. Preceding the breakfast a reception will be held.

Mr. Taft will be escorted to the exposition by Cavalry Troop D of the National Guard. He will speak in Empire Court. After the address the President will be entertained at luncheon.

In anticipation of the visit the State Fair Commission has made preparations to handle a crowd of 75,000 persons. Prominent figures in the legislative branches of the National Government will be in attendance, including Vice President James Sherman, United States Senator Elihu Root, Congressmen Sereno E. Payne, John W. Dwight, Michael E. Driscoll, and Luther W. Mott, and many representatives of the State administration.

In addition to the President's visit the fair will be made notable to-morrow by a series of automobile races, in which many prominent drivers of the country will participate.

Baron Rosen, the retiring Russian Ambassador, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Baltic. His stay here will be short, and one reason for his coming is to say farewell to President Taft. He had expected to see the President before the latter started upon his 13,000-mile trip. As he will be back in Russia before the President returns to Washington, Baron Rosen said that he would start as soon as possible to intercept the President at Albany.

Baron Rosen on his return to St. Petersburg will take his place in the upper house of the Russian Parliament. The post in Washington will be filled by George Bakhmetieff, former Russian Ambassador to Japan, and once Secretary of Embassy at Washington.

Baron Rosen was greatly shocked by the news of the attempt on the life of Prime Minister Stolypin at Kiev. He said that the Minister was not an aggressive, overbearing man, and that he was gaining in popularity. The Baron was at a loss to account for the attempt upon his life. The assassin, he thought, must be a Nihilist.

"It is merely an example of what every man in public life is called upon to face," he said. "Minister Stolypin is not afraid of death by violence."

The Ambassador said that Russia is now enjoying a prosperity which was in evidence everywhere, and the people appeared to be contented. The Czar was enjoying good health. France and Germany, he thought, would arrange their differences amicably.

BELMONT'S LUNCH MOVES.

Members of Her Club Are Wrathful When Told They Must Go to 41st St.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's star was in eclipse yesterday and all the Belmont protégés were up in arms. There was almost a riot at the Belmont Fourteenth Assembly District Assembly Club lunchroom, 140 East Thirty-fourth Street, and at one time it looked as if Mary Donnelly, the Superintendent, might have to call for police protection.

The lunchroom was crowded when a big placard was put up announcing that the lunchroom and club would be moved to 15 East Forty-first Street.

Miss Donnelly, to whom the club members have paid their dues, was held responsible for the move, at which there was much outspoken disapproval. The women said they had joined the club for the benefit of the lunchroom. The men asked how a Fourteenth Assembly District Club could have its headquarters in another district.

"Mrs. Belmont could be sued for this," said Henry Cahn of the Hobson Homes Real Estate Company, at 137 East Thirty-fourth Street. "We don't mind the money, but it is unfair to take this action, which means dissolving the club, without asking us whether we like it or not."

James Check, a barber across the street, who has been one of its best patrons and a helpful member of the club, was not less outspoken.

"Miss Donnelly introduced me to Mrs. Belmont," he said, "and Mrs. Belmont shook hands with me and asked me if I wouldn't join the club in good faith. I did join the club in good faith and this is what has happened."

Other men said the club was a regular organization and no such action could be taken without a meeting of the club. All admitted the dues were small, but they thought they should have been consulted, as they were willing to pay more money, if it was needed.

Mrs. Belmont herself, speaking of the Forty-first Street house before she had heard of the trouble in Thirty-fourth Street, said:

"The Forty-first Street house is going to be very complete and convenient for all my clubs. I found that I must concentrate. I had one office at 505 Fifth Avenue, one in Forty-fourth Street, and twelve organizations outside. These were growing all the time and getting so large that they were beyond my control. It has been necessary for me to bring them together."

Mrs. Belmont denied emphatically the story that the members of her farm school at Hempstead, L. I., had been sent away. The denial was brought out by the statement of Leonora Brokaw in a newspaper yesterday that the school was a failure and the girls were ill-treated. Mrs. Belmont said:

"She is just a silly, arbitrary little girl, and she has given trouble ever since she has been at the farm. It was well enough until I went to Newport. I found when I returned that she had been driving my horses and lounging in the village. I was obliged to tell her that she must go. She told me that she wanted to come to New York and be in the Forty-first Street suffrage headquarters.

"I told her that the farm was entirely independent of the suffrage work, but that I had no place for her at Forty-first Street. As she absolutely refused to go, I sent her to the Westbury station instead of to Hempstead, so that she would not have the humiliation of being seen by any one who knew her.

"She is the only girl who has been sent away from the farm. I was afraid in the first place that it would be a difficult thing to bring together a large number of girls and have them live together harmoniously, but it has been delightful. There has never been any trouble except with this one girl. After leaving on Thursday she must have come directly to New York and had put in print her ill-feeling."

Miss Brokaw was in New York yesterday, but she coud not be found. But another ex-farmerette talked of the Belmont farm and spoke of Miss Brokaw as a "splendid girl." This was an English governess. She said she left the school because her resignation was demanded, and that other farmerettes had done so for the same reason.

"I was very anxious to learn agriculture thoroughly," she said, "and very hopeful. The regular instructor, Miss Williams, left soon after I entered, so I don't know what the curriculum might have been, but there was very little instruction, no poultry yard, and not much of what I had expected. There is nothing to say against the treatment there. Mrs. Belmont was very pleasant whenever I met her, and we did not have to do any drudgery.

"About five weeks ago—there were seventeen of us there then—we began to receive letters asking us to report at the Belmont office in New York and hand in our resignations. I came away immediately, and the others left in lots of two or three. The last six left on Thursday of this week.

"I inquired why we were treated in this way and was told that different arrangements were to be made, and that another larger farm school was to be started in March of next year."

FILES BRIEF AGAINST DOTY.

Accusing Lawyer Reviews Charges Against the Health Officer.

Charles Dushkind, the lawyer, representing complainants, who have been trying to get Dr. A. H. Doty ousted as Health Officer of the Port, turned in his brief reviewing the charges in the Quarantine investigation to Commissioner Bulger yesterday. The Commissioner already has the brief of Dr. Doty's lawyer, so the case is now all before him.

Mr. Dushkind charges, among other things, that conditions in the Children's Hospital were so bad that, since they were exposed at the investigation, Dr. Doty has closed the hospital and has been sending the sick detained immigrant children to the United States Marine Hospital at Ellis Island. Deputy Health Officer Rimer, who has had charge of Quarantine since Dr. Doty has been away in the Adirondacks, admitted last night that the Children's Hospital has been closed since last July.

"The charge about the closing of the hospital, like so many of Mr. Dushkind's charges, is partly true and partly untrue," said Dr. Rimer. "When the cholera ships began to come to this port early in July we decided to close the Children's Hospital, so that all our staff on Hoffman Island could be put to work looking after the detained immigrants, who were very numerous. The hospital is still closed, but there is nothing wrong with it, and it will be reopened as soon as there is no more chance of any cholera ships coming in."

Mr. Dushkind says in his brief that the steamship companies have testified in Dr. Doty's favor at the investigation, and want to see him retained because he has reduced the cost of treating the sick-detained immigrant children at Quarantine from $2 to $1.50, and the charges for maintaining the detained immigrants themselves from $1 a day to 60 cents a day, "although Dr. Doty has been unable to pay the butcher, the grocer, the milkman, and the baker for months because of the loss sustained in maintaining these passengers, so that he was compelled to apply the $25,000 cholera appropriation to pay these bills."

Mr. Dushkind says the testimony of President Polk of the Academy of Medicine, Dr. Abraham Jacobi, and the other eminent physicians who testified in Dr. Doty's favor at the investigation has little weight, because "upon cross-examination they all admitted that they had no personal knowledge as to the existing conditions," having visited Quarantine only once a year or less.

Dr. Doty, it was said at Quarantine last night, will return to Quarantine today.

HOME RULE IN TWO YEARS.

Sure to Come in That Time, Says Bishop Clancy, Here from Ireland.

Ireland will have home rule within two years, says the Right Rev. John Clancy, Bishop of Elphia, Roscommon County, Ireland, who arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Baltic. Bishop Clancy is an ardent home ruler.

"We in Ireland," he said, "have been talking of home rule for a great many years, but we were never so close to it as at this very minute. It is safe to say that it will be an accomplished fact within two years."

THE MAYOR ANSWERS YOUNG REPUBLICANS

Asks Them to Read Charter and Rapid Transit Act Covering His Franchise Powers.

UNCHANGED BY NEW CHARTER

Brooklyn Young Republican Club Urges Him to Have Legislature Submit New Charter to Popular Vote.

Replying to George R. Brennan, Chairman of the Committee on Municipal Politics of the Brooklyn Young Republican Club, Mayor Gaynor yesterday emphatically repeated his denial that the proposed new Charter gives him any additional power of veto over franchises. Of the Board of Education the Mayor said his preference was, first, for a small board of five or seven, with all of the members paid; second, a paid President, with twelve or fourteen unpaid associates, and, lastly, the present large board. He said he would not be content with a small unpaid board. This is his letter:

"Office of the Mayor,

"Dear Sir: I thank you very much for your letter of this date to me with regard to the Charter. You seem to be under a grave mistake in respect of one of the two things which you mention which are in the proposed new Charter. You do not seem to know that the present Charter requires the separate action of the Mayor to the granting of any franchise whatever, overhead, surface, or underground. Instead of this power being a new one in the proposed Charter, it has existed in our Charters for more than a generation.

"Will you be so good as to read Sections 74 and 242 of the present Charter? And then, if you turn to the Rapid Transit act, you will find that no route or plan of a subway can be adopted or consent for a franchise granted except with the separate approval of the Mayor. Why is it that some people persist in saying that these things are new in the proposed new Charter? Certainly it is time that all knew that that is not so. The Charter has now been in preparation for nearly seven years, instead of being prepared in a hurry, as you seem to think.

"The other thing you mention is (to quote your own words) 'establishing a paid board of seven members for the Board of Education instead of the present body.' There is no difference of opinion, as I understand it, that the present large board should be done away with, as recommended by the Ivins Commission, and then by the Hammond Commission, which succeeded it. The only question is whether the small board should be paid. My recommendation is that we retain the present large board unless we pay the members of the small board. The seven members of the small board would have to devote all of their time to the work, and I do not believe we could get seven competent men to do so unless they were paid.

"No one can make voluntary workers do more or work longer than they like. In the last few days there has been a recommendation that the President of the board be paid and required to devote all of his time to the work, and that fourteen unpaid associates be appointed with him. This does not seem to be a bad suggestion. My preference would be in this order, namely: First a small board of five or seven, with all of the members paid; second, a paid President, with twelve or fourteen unpaid associates; lastly, the present large board. I shall be content with any of these, but a small unpaid board I would not be content with. I regret that your association did not come forward sooner to help us, but, no doubt, you had other things on hand. Very truly yours, W. J. GAYNOR,
"Mayor."

"George R. Brennan, Esq., Chairman of the Committee on Municipal Politics of the Brooklyn Young Republican Club, Johnston Building, Brooklyn, N. Y."

The Brooklyn Young Republican Club, through George R. Brennan, Chairman of the Committee on Municipal Politics, had written to the Mayor urging him to use his influence to defer the passage of the proposed New York City Charter until 1912 or 1913, or, if the Charter bill is to be passed by the present Legislature, make it clear that he would veto it unless a referendum clause was inserted. The consensus of opinion in the Young Republican Club was that the Charter, if passed by the present Legislature, should be ratified either by the people in the election this Fall or by a new Legislature.

The Young Republican Club represents a rather influential element among the progressive Republicans in Brooklyn. In his letter to the Mayor Mr. Brennan points out that in the States of Missouri, California, Oregon, Washington, Minnesota, Michigan, Colorado, and Oklahoma there are laws that provide that the people of the larger cities shall vote upon charters proposed for them. In other States, as, for instance, Maryland, Vermont, Tennessee, Rhode Island, West Virginia, and Louisiana, it is the popular custom, in the absence of any law, to give the people of cities a right to vote on the charters that are to provide their form of government. In New York City the Charters framed by the Legislature in 1830 and later in 1849 were submitted to a popular vote before they went into effect. The New York Charter of 1830 was framed by a popular City Convention.

"Irrespective of what the merits of the proposed Charter till may be," wrote Chairman Brennan, "its framers and advocates, if they believe it to be an honest and statesmanlike document, can have no objection to having it reviewed by the people of New York City or by the next succeeding Legislature elected by the people, which will convene Jan. 1, 1913. This would afford an ample opportunity for every one to study and learn its merits or its defects. If it has been so much maligned and slandered by petty politicians, as you believe it has, give the people a chance to study and understand its real merits. If criticisms of it have not been well founded, it will not take the people long to find it out. Besides, it would be almost insuring a good Charter if another Legislature, elected upon pledges to the people to approve it or amend it, after mature deliberation and discussion, were given an opportunity to pass it.

"An attempt to finally adopt a Charter at the session of the Legislature convening Sept. 18 can only be construed by the people upon the ground that, for some reason known only to themselves, the framers of the Charter and its advocates fear to submit it to a vote of the people or to the review of their successors in the State Legislature."

Senator Cullen, Chairman of the Joint Charter Committee, said at the Hotel Knickerbocker last night that the proposed Charter, in its amended form, would be ready for introduction in the Legislature when that body convenes on Monday, or shortly afterward.

A mass meeting of citizens to make public protest against the passage by the Legislature of the proposed new City Charter as it is now drawn will be held this evening in the Brooklyn Academy of Music under the auspices of the Brooklyn League. Controller Prendergast, Borough President McAneny of Manhattan, ex-Public Service Commissioner Edward M. Bassett, Congressman William C. Redfield, the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, Maurice De Young, President of the Central Labor Union of Brooklyn, and Elwin S. Piper, President of the Allied Boards of Trade, have been invited to speak.

Violation of Cold Storage Law Charged

Officers of the State Department of Health were responsible for the appearance in the Court of Special sessions yesterday of Laurens P. Prior, President of the Greenwich Cold Storage Company, 402 Greenwich Street. The charge was a technical violation of the Brennan law, it being alleged that the Greenwich Company did not place the date of receipt for storage on some cases of sardines in its possession. The complaint follows an inspection of all the cold-storage houses in the State by the New York State Department of Health, begun in August. Assistant District Attorney Stryker asked for immediate trial, but Justic Duel put the case over until Sept. 26 at the request of the storage company.

THE NEW YORK CITY BOY IN COLLEGE, AND HIS QUEST

The Institutions He Attends Throughout the Country and the Kind of Education He Variously Seeks in Them.

Written Expressly for The New York Times

By JOHN H. FINLEY.

President of the College of the City of New York.

A POINT of view to which I have tried for years past to bring hundreds of boys graduating from preparatory schools and especially from public high schools of this city is that the very preparation puts upon them an obligation to take advantage of the opportunity for higher training when the circumstances of home and health and their capacities permit. The number who are so fitted is, after all, very, very small, relatively, and the obligation on the few is therefore the greater. For a vast commmunity needs many men of the highest training if it is to hold what the race has already acquired, and add something out of its own life to what it has received.

There are statistics which should invite the boy to a higher education if he were thinking of his own ultimate advantage—statistics which show how immensely better are the college man's chances of what is called success. But I do not put the appeal primarily on this ground. I am thinking rather of the possible benefit to the community, to society, to the city, to the Nation. A young man who has gone so far as to reach the gates that open upon the fields of the world's best treasures, and who has the keys to these outer gates, ought to think what the nearness to that wealth and what the possession of the keys—language, mathematics, history, which he cannot give to another, ask of him. And to that view his parents, his teachers, his friends, should help him.

I do not mean to say that these fields are reached only through these gate-guarded curricula. But these are the best ways that the experience and wisdom of the people have found. And there is often a great social and economic loss when a young man turns aside or throws away the keys he has been long in making, or tries to fashion them to other uses. If this is not so, it is simply because the higher training does not embody our best wisdom and follow our highest purpose.

I have in mind, however, not to make a defence of higher education, but merely to show in what numbers the New York City boy goes to college, (using that term, first, in its narrowest sense, and then more broadly, as the general name for the institution of higher learning,) where he goes, and for what sort of training.

I have not been able in the time of the school vacations to learn how many boys are fitted for college in the private and parochial preparatory schools. Superintendent Stevens of the Department of Education has, however, most kindly furnished me with a statement concerning the numbers graduated from the public high schools of this city, which are now with the Preparatory Department of the College of the City of New York, putting a secondary training within the reach of every aspiring boy. The high schools have had a remarkable growth in this city within the past few years. In 1909-1910 nearly sixteen thousand boys were in attendance. This included the students in the manual training and commercial high schools as well. The graduates in 1910 numbered 876. There were graduated from Townsend Harris Hall (the preparatory department of the City College) in the same year 443 out of a total attendance of 2,171. This makes a total of 1,319 from the public high and preparatory schools. Somewhat more than half that number entered college, technical, or professional schools last year, beside nearly a hundred who entered before securing the high school diploma.

This will indicate in a general way what the city itself is doing in preparing its boys for college and other institutions of higher training, though in most of the schools this is only an incidental purpose.

I turn now to the colleges themselves. One of my associates has made a canvass of the catalogues of the colleges and universities east of the Alleghanies in order to find exactly how many young men of New York City residence are actually registered in college; for beyond the Alleghanies there is hardly a New York City boy to be found in the colleges of liberal arts and science. For example, the University of Chicago, with its great cosmopolitan student body, gathered from all countries of the globe, has not, so far as the residence rolls for a recent year show, a single New York City boy. Knox College had one boy a few years ago, the son of a prominent graduate of that college now resident in New York, but since his graduation none. And these are fairly typical of Western institutions.

I have not been able in the short time of this compilation to get the residential statistics from every institution, but what I have is adequate, I think, to show the territory of distribution and the approximate number. This table includes only male students in the colleges of liberal arts and pure science, as shown by the most recent catalogue available:

Institution	New York City.	Total.
Amherst	59	494
Bates	..	478
Brown	24	656
Colgate	33	359
Cornell	137	814*
Columbia College	493	729
Dartmouth	47	1,144
De Pauw	1	..
Fordham	87	150
Hamilton	15	184
Harvard	156	2,217
Haverford	3	139
Hobart	3	92
Johns Hopkins	1	157
Lafayette	12	520
Leland Stanford University	3	1,758
University of Michigan	2	2,115
New York University	114	197
University of Pennsylvania	5	325
Pennsylvania State	7	1,348
Princeton	198	1,013
University of Rochester	3	273
Rutgers	18	238
St. Francis Xavier	68	80
Syracuse	25	1,370
Wesleyan	29	355
Williams	93	542
Yale	157	1,226

*Estimated.

These statistics showing a total of nearly 1,800 do not cover all colleges of liberal arts and science, but they give basis for the estimate of the probable number of New York City boys in all such colleges or collegiate departments as about two thousand.

To these are to be added nearly fifteen hundred students enrolled in the College of the City of New York, which invites attention to the fact that of the New York City boys and young men pursuing courses in the colleges of liberal arts and science more than 40 per cent. are in the city's own college, (and nearly 50 per cent. if the young men are counted who are taking collegiate courses at night.) This is even to me a surprising showing—one which gives intimation of what should relatively be expected of this college.

But the most rapid and marked development in institutions of higher education in recent years will be found to be in the technical schools or departments whose curricula run many of them from the doors of the high school toward very definite fields of vocational knowledge, skill, and labor. There are, for example, about the same number of New York boys in the Columbia School of Mines as in the Columbia College of Liberal Arts. New York University has more than five times as many New York City boys in its School of Commerce, Finance, and Accounts as in its College of Liberal Arts. There are twice as many New York City boys in Cornell Schools of Engineering, Agriculture, and Architecture as in its college itself. The reports of the State Department of Education show a strong and steady gain in such schools, while that in the colleges or schools of liberal arts is slight. And when it is realized that in some of the great universities, students in arts and pure science are leaving the collegiate curricula at the end of the sophomore year and receiving credit toward their baccalaureate degrees for work in the technical or professional schools, it will be appreciated that the number persisting in the old courses beyond the sophomore year will grow relatively less. The freshman and sophomore classes may increase, but the junior and senior will probably decrease; and even if the number of bachelors' degrees increases they will have a different significance and value.

The question fronting those who have to do with the higher education of the New York City boy is as to whether it shall encourage the broader or the narrower training. It is a tribute to the sacrifice and highmindedness of so many parents and sons that he is persisting in such numbers in the courses of wider view and humanistic discipline, but there can be no doubt as to the tendency in the direction of the more "practical" and more specifically purposed curricula. Such instruction is at present nearly all provided in the East by private enterprise or philanthropy except as the high school and baccalaureate courses of late increasingly look in that direction, but in the West not only the cultural but the technical and professional disciplines are offered by the State and the latter are the more conspicuous.

If the public provision for the city boy is to be more highly specialized, more definitely directed, as the private is undoubtedly becoming, the uppermost thought must be the welfare of the community and not the individual advantage—what will fit its graduates best to serve the city of to-morrow. President Wilson has emphasized a training for the service of the Nation. I think we should here keep first of all, certainly in the people's own colleges, the higher service to the city.

JOHN H. FINLEY.

To Learn a New Language is to Expand Your World

Try to imagine yourself unable to speak or write or understand any Language whatsoever! The idea seems, perhaps, too appalling for consideration. And it would be equally difficult for you to express, in terms of money, the Value to you of the Language you know and use.

If, then, your "Mother Tongue" is of such priceless worth to you, would not the ability to use, with almost equal facility, ANOTHER Language, or even a third or fourth, be an accomplishment "above price"?

For to learn ONE ADDITIONAL LANGUAGE only will be to enlarge your World—measurably, pleasantly, profitably. It will DOUBLE THE VALUE of Your Education—it will DOUBLE YOUR EFFICIENCY IN YOUR LIFE WORK—it will clear your mind of prejudices, and make the world a better place in which to live.

HOW you may learn another Language, without much cost of either time or money or trouble or vexation, will be made plain to you in a Brochure which we shall be glad to send you, if you ask for it, Free.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Irregular Closing Follows Reaction After Further Improvement in Early Trading.

GOOD BANK RETURN LIKELY

Circulation of Many Bear Rumors Arouses Sentiment in Favor of Investigation by Stock Exchange.

After making some progress in the early trading yesterday, prices fell off rather sharply, but did not go to the low level of the previous day. A second upward movement ensued, which was carried far enough to result in net gains in some of the leading issues, while in others the morning's losses were offset to within small fractions. Trading was much lighter than on Tuesday, due, it would seem, to a lessening of the operations of the professional element, which made vigorous attack on the market the previous day. More was heard of the rumors which were so widely circulated the previous day, but yesterday the stories took the shape of reports of help extended and of stocks being taken over in large blocks. Investigation proved some of the specific stories of the day to be without foundation, and it was perhaps a fair inference that all of the stories had similar origin. The manner in which names were used both yesterday and the day before really left no escape from the conclusion that the reports were being set afloat to help a bear position in the market. This much, at least, is true in respect to the trouble rumors of the past two days that an excellent opportunity is offered to the authorities of the Stock Exchange to investigate and to determine, if possible, the sources of the reports, which could only have originated, it would seem, in quarters where a desire existed to add to the uneasiness which stock market unsettlement has caused. The opinion was firmly voiced in conservative banking circles yesterday that the Stock Exchange is under obligation to go to the full length of its authority—and it is recognized that that authority is large—to discourage a repetition of the unprincipled efforts which have been made this week to help along the decline in prices by attacking the credit of many houses. The sources of such reports are necessarily obscure, but it is believed in the financial district that it is not beyond the ability of the Stock Exchange to unearth them, and, if they were found to lie in quarters subject to the authority of the Exchange, to administer proper punishment. The moral effect of such an investigation by the Stock Exchange would in any event be salutary, and there are many in the financial district who hope that the Exchange will not allow the matter to go by unnoticed.

Developments in the money markets abroad were calculated to keep attention centred upon the developments in the foreign situation, but it was hardly the Moroccan affair which supplied the motive for the most interesting of the European money movements yesterday. The very sharp drop which occurred in sterling exchange in Paris suggested an urgency in calling in funds from London which found no counterpart in the slight advance which occurred in the Berlin discount rate. It will be recalled that the requirements of the underwriters of the Argentine loan of $70,000,000 was said to have possibly as much to do with the early stages of the withdrawals of French money from Berlin as any fear regarding the outcome of the Moroccan negotiations, and it may be that payments falling due on this loan this week, taken in conjunction with Bourse requirements at Paris, are in no small degree responsible for the hardening of money in the Paris market and for the sharp decline which has taken place in sterling exchange in Paris.

Here at home the prospects were that to-day's bank statement would show an improvement in the reserve position of the Clearing House institutions, due partly to loan reductions by some banks and in part to a gain in cash. Preliminary estimates of the returns of a number of the large institutions indicated a gain by them of over $5,000,000 in cash and an increase in surplus in excess of $3,000,000. Unless offset by the operations of other institutions, these figures indicate a very satisfactory bank showing for this week. Some further expansion in retail trade is reported by commercial agencies, but if yesterday's forecast of to-day's bank statement proves correct it will be clear that money is lying idle in New York which under normal business conditions at this season would be employed in the interior. Similar suggestion is contained in the fact that New York exchange at Chicago is still at a premium, although a discount is usual at this date.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

At the close it was the general floor opinion on the Consolidated Stock Exchange that the result of the day's trading had been indecisive so far as forecasting the probable nearby major trend of the market. The tendency among a good-sized contingent of the trading element was to work for a further recovery, but a very large proportion of the short interest on the Exchange adhered steadfastly to its position. Business was active, but the day's total was well under Thursday's record. The list embraced forty-five different stocks, including Kansas City Southern, no sales of that stock being reported on the New York Stock Exchange.

Market Irregular, but Two New Low Records Are Made on Light Trading.

INTERCONTINENTAL AT 20½

Kerr Lake Also Goes to Low Point of the Year—Some Strength in Coppers, but Cobalt Issues Sag.

Curb trading was in small volume and irregular yesterday, and although there were some gains there were more declines, and two new low records were made. Intercontinental Rubber sold off from 21½ to 20½, on sales of 200. Kerr Lake also made a new low record at 3⅝, having sold off ⅛ from the opening at 3¾. The close was at the low figure after transactions of 1,500. La Rose and Nipissing were also heavy, the former selling off from 4⅛ to 4, and closing at 4 1-16, and the latter selling from 7⅞ to 7¾. Giroux gained 1-16 and Inspiration ⅛. Chicago Subway also rose ⅛.

HELP FOR MINORITY BONDS.

International Great Northern Holders Expect Aid from Gov. Colquitt.

Some of the third mortgage bondholders of the International & Great Northern, who refused to deposit their securities with the protective committee have been encouraged by the attitude of Gov. Colquitt of Texas to believe that he will hold up the proposed reorganization plan until some provision satisfactory to all of the third mortgage holders is made. The plan worked out by the committee called for an exchange of common stock for the third mortgage bonds, and a few of the holders of the latter were dissatisfied with this arrangement.

The reorganization of the failed Gould road has been worked out by the third mortgage bondholders, who bought in the property at the recent foreclosure sale for $12,645,000 over the $11,291,000 first mortgage bonds. The committee had previously bought the second mortgage bonds outstanding. Efforts have been made to have the State Railroad Commission place a valuation of $36,000,000 on the road, under which new securities could be issued, but the commission has so far refused to allow a valuation of more than $34,000,000.

It is said that all except about fifty third mortgage bondholders have assented to the exchange of stock for their securities. The minority interests want an exchange of bonds in the new company, and Gov. Colquitt, who was formerly a member of the Railroad Commission, has promised one of their representatives that he will do what he can to enable the payment of the third mortgage bonds.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

The trade situation maintains, in general, the conservative improvement recently noted, although there is much diversity in the reports from the different sections and different lines. The gain in the volume of bank clearings is one of the best evidences of this improvement; this week the gain amounts, outside of New York, to 10.1 per cent. over 1910, and to 1.2 per cent. over 1909, while in New York there is a gain of 19.2 over last year, but a loss of 26.5 compared with 1909. Railroad earnings in the first week of September showed a gain of 3.9 per cent. over 1909, but a loss of 1.1 per cent. compared with 1910. On the whole, the most favorable report comes from the dry goods trade, in which a wider and increased demand appears.

The feeling as regards American crops, and especially cotton, is more hopeful, and agricultural returns, expressed in values, promise well. Commodity prices generally range high. Business in groceries and provisions has improved. Mercantile and banking conditions are both sound.

Bradstreet's says:

Despite irregular weather conditions, cold or rainy weather North and West, and warm midsummer weather South and Southwest, general trade in Fall and Winter wearing apparel, staple cotton and woolen goods, shoes, hardware and groceries shows a further slight expansion. Buying has been and is conservative, and business as a whole lacks snap, but, nevertheless, certain lines of trade show a strengthening of demand which augurs fairly well for the future. Jobbing trade and commission business for Spring in cotton goods has been improved by price revisions of fancy cotton goods, made possible by the lower range of raw cotton prices. There is even said to be a moderate improvement in export trade in cottons, and the yarn markets show more confident buying. Repeat orders for Fall clothing are better, and the raw wool market is firm on better reports from the goods market. Best reports are had from the larger markets.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Yield on New Haven.

When the New Haven shares sold below 127 on Thursday a man who attended the company's last annual meeting recalled a remark made by President Mellen to his stockholders. "The day has passed," said Mr. Mellen, "when good railroad stocks can be bought to yield more than 4 per cent." At 127 New Haven stock, with its 8 per cent. dividend, returns 6.2 per cent. to the purchaser.

⁂

Supervising the Tobacco Companies.

It develops that the supervision of the three or more companies to be made out of the present American Tobacco Company by the Federal courts is to be no different than their supervision of any company or individual who has been enjoined from doing something. It was stated yesterday by an eminent lawyer who has been present at the conferences that the idea which the public had obtained that the reorganized Tobacco Company was to be on parole, as it were, is entirely wrong.

"In the Standard Oil decision," he pointed out, "the Supreme Court said that the verdict of the lower court, which it upheld, 'did not deprive the stockholders of the corporations, after the dissolution of the combination, of the power to make normal and lawful contracts or agreements, but as restraining them from any device whatever recreating the illegal combination which the decree dissolved.' In the case of the Tobacco Trust it was left to the Circuit Court to see that dissolution order obeyed. Beyond that, however, there is to be no supervision of the reorganized company's acts. So you see there is no ground for the reported dissatisfaction of the tobacco officials with the Government's desire to see that the court's mandate is carried out."

⁂

Low Records Fewer.

In face of the recoveries which were sufficient, in a large part of the list, to show gains at the close over Thursday's last prices, some new low records were made yesterday. Twelve of the less active issues were carried to their lowest levels this year. Among these were the Mackay Companies, American Hide and Leather preferred, Homestake, United Cigar preferred, Union Bag and Paper, and Brooklyn Union Gas.

⁂

Say "Soo" Is Buying Erie.

There are some who cling tenaciously to the belief that the Canadian Pacific is seeking a hold on the Erie, despite the plain denials on authority. In support of the belief, the new theory is current that the Canadian Pacific interests are carrying out the plan through the "Soo." It is pointed out that it was through the "Soo" that the Canadian road acquired its hold on Wisconsin Central and that, when this process was going on the Canadian Pacific officers were able to deny, as they do in the case of the Erie, that their road was buying the stock. This new theory, for all its plausibility, was not credited yesterday in quarters usually well informed on "Soo" affairs.

⁂

Stock Issues Scarce.

In a compilation of the principal bond and stock offerings during August, which as a matter of fact made one of the smallest totals in recent years, there appear new stock offerings to an aggregate of less than $10,000,000 against more than $43,000,000 of bonds in the same list. The Wall Street Journal, which made the compilation, points out that while August is at the best of times a bad month for security offerings, the small showing this year was influenced by the fact that during May and June and for the first two weeks in July an exceptionally heavy volume of new securities had been placed on the market.

⁂

How Last Big Rise in Sugar Collapsed.

The sharp rise in sugar in the last few months to prices not touched since 1889 makes interesting the recollection of what happened in that year when conditions, except for the closed organization of the foreign speculation in the previous rise, were somewhat parallel to the present. The Weekly Statistical Trade Journal explains that in 1889, when short crops began to be considered, a beet sugar syndicate was formed in Europe with the idea of forcing the American refiners to take the raw material from them at the high prices. Advance followed advance until raw sugar went to 8.06 cents per pound, and granulated to 9.06 cents per pound. "Then the syndicate discovered that the American refiners had been able on the rise to accumulate from all sources very heavy stocks, making them independent of Europe, and a collapse of the speculation came immediately. Beets declined in a two weeks' panic 2 1-16 cents a pound, and the slump was only checked by the banks giving the syndicate an extension for settlement until Sept. 15." Of the present situation it is said: "It would seem that the speculators in Europe have confidence in considerably higher quotations and little fear from a serious setback from the present level."

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

7,330. COTTON OIL, MEAT AND PORK PRODUCTS.—An American firm of customs brokers and forwarding agents writes that one of its correspondents in Italy desires to be put in touch with American exporters of cotton oil, lard, pork, and other meat products.

7,331. BIDS FOR RAILWAY AUTOMOBILES.—American Consul Alfred A. Winslow of Valparaiso reports that bids will be opened in the office of the Director General de Ferrocarriles del Estado, Santiago, Chile, Oct. 28, for three railway automobiles of not less than sixteen horse power, with a maximum speed of fifty miles an hour, and with accommodations for six persons.

7,332. WATER WORKS AND ELECTRIC POWER SYSTEM.—Supplementing a previous report, which was published in Daily Consular and Trade Reports, No. 166, for July 18, 1911, relative to a water system for Penticton, B. C., Consul General David F. Wilber of Vancouver has forwarded a report giving further details of the project, together with particulars regarding an electric power system, which is also contemplated.

7,333. MACHINERY OF VARIOUS KINDS.—An American Consular officer in South Africa reports that he has received requests for catalogues, with prices and discounts to dealers, on machines or appliances for cleaning and sorting raisins, for use by farmers when packing for market. Particulars are also desired for machines for affixing revenue stamps to cardboard cartons containing ten cigarettes.

7,334. CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.—A business man in Canada has written to an American Consul requesting the names of some fruit and vegetable canning companies in the United States which can compete with Canadian packers on transportation to the maritime provinces.

7,335. AMERICAN CARRIAGES.—A report from an American Consular officer in the Near East states that there is a constantly increasing demand for strong, light carriages in his district. American carriage manufacturers could easily obtain this market by careful advertising, exhibiting posters at favorable points and by the employment of an agent who is able to repair the carriages supplied by him. The Consular officer suggests a local business man as agent who already represents several American machine manufacturers and is, therefore, in a position, if supplied with the necessary parts, to have repairs made in his own shops.

7,336. BRICK-MAKING MACHINERY.—The Bureau of Manufactures is in receipt of a communication from a business concern in a South American city requesting to be put in touch with American manufacturers of brick-making machinery, especially firms manufacturing equipment for small plants. Catalogues in Spanish are preferred, and if possible they should be illustrated. Prices should be quoted free on board, New York, and time for delivery, terms of payment, &c., should be stated.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Better Tone Appears in Principal Trading Centres of Other Cities.

IMPROVEMENT IN BOSTON

Market In That City Developed a Fair Demand for Active Issues—Sears-Roebuck Again Active in Chicago.

Active trading in Sears-Roebuck and Swift & Co. shares was the feature in Chicago. The shares of the mail order concern weakened at the start under a continuation of the same sort of selling which has been in evidence for several days, but later it recovered in sympathy with the steadier tendency of the eastern market, short sales being covered. Swift's stock was steady on buying of an investment character. Bonds ruled steady and quiet.

The Boston market opened somewhat higher, and the undertone showed considerable improvement over that of the past few days. There appeared to be a fair demand for the active issues and there was little or no pressure to sell, all offerings being easily absorbed.

Although United States Steel and Reading fell back below yesterday's final figures in the afternoon, a firmer tone developed in Philadelphia after some early irregularity. For a time there was a disposition to hold aloof on the part of the traders until the trend in New York could be observed. The early dip in Reading and United States Steel exerted a depressing effect for the first half hour or so, but subsequently when these turned strong the aspect improved.

Buying was on a conservative scale in Baltimore, and with the absorptive power contracted it was not difficult to obtain fractional concessions.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out of town exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

President Fowler Says His Progressive Methods Saved the New Haven.

Thomas P. Fowler, President of the New York, Ontario & Western Railway, issued a statement yesterday in defense of Charles S. Mellen, President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. The New Haven controls the Ontario & Western through the ownership of slightly more than half of its common stock.

Mr. Fowler said:

"Charles S. Mellen has been severely criticised of late for acquiring electric lines and other railway properties, and for progressive measures undertaken since he was called to the Presidency of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company. So far as the purchase of the New York, Ontario & Western stock is concerned, it has not only thus far been a profitable investment for the New Haven Company, but has protected a rate situation which saves many thousands of dollars annually to the New Haven Company, as well as to coal consumers throughout the New England territory.

"The New Haven Road had for a long while been operated along the most narrow old colony lines, and would have failed utterly to meet modern requirements, or to serve properly the growing needs of the section of country in which its lines are located, had Mr. Mellen not had the ability and courage to do what he has done. In the end his stockholders will reap a benefit instead of meeting disaster, which would inevitably have followed, old and narrow methods, had they been persisted in.

"Within the last few years thousands of miles of railway lines have been constructed, and hundreds of millions expended in the development of Pacific Coast traffic, and in the construction and extension of transcontinental lines, while we in the East have been oblivious to the fact that the population of Westchester County and the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx far exceeds that of the entire Pacific slope.

"What will the value of the Westchester lines be in another decade? And suppose that Mr. Mellen had sat still and not developed his property, its connections, and the territory which it serves—then surely the press and the public would have had reason for criticism."

ROBIN BANKERS' SCHEDULES.

Liabilities of His Realty and Security Co. Are $1,223,511; Assets, $1,118,253.

Schedules in bankruptcy of the Bankers' Realty and Security Company, Broadway and Forty-second Street, which was supposed to represent the personal affairs of Joseph G. Robin, were filed yesterday by Frederick K. Morris, Secretary of the concern. They show liabilities of $1,223,511 and nominal assets of $1,188,253.

The liabilities are: Bills, $379,385; accounts, $342,025; mortgages, $344,250; debenture bonds, $116,000 and contracts, $41,851. Robin owes $538,160, and the Railway Traction Construction Company, which was interested in the construction of the South Shore Railway, $97,939.

Contingent assets include 1,000 shares of the Fidelity Development Company, the corporation concerned with a portion of the Morris Park tract, which are believed to be in the possession of the Northern Bank, subject to release on payment of a small claim by the bank; the rights to purchase for $106,247 South Shore Traction Company bonds of the face value of $115,000 from the Aetna Indemnity Company, and 3,967 shares of the Aetna Company from the company for $109,092.

Duryea Back on Stock Exchange.

F. W. Duryea, board member of the Stock Exchange house of F. W. Duryea & Co., who was suspended for three months on June 15, returned to the floor for business yesterday. He was sentenced by the Governing Committee because his firm had an account of a clerk employed by another Stock Exchange house. At the time of his trial Mr. Duryea explained that the account had been taken in the belief that the clerk was a Long Island real estate man.

Edison Stock Plans Postponed.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—A meeting of the Directors of the Commonwealth Edison, scheduled to be held to-day, was postponed owing to the lack of a quorum. It is current gossip that the company proposes an increase of 15 per cent. in its capital stock, which at present is $33,000,000. Present stockholders, it is said, will be given an opportunity to subscribe for the new stock at par.

Bronx Gas Co. Would Issue Bonds.

The Bronx Gas and Electricity Company wants to issue $80,000 bonds under its first and refunding mortgages of $1,500,000, to provide funds to enlarge and improve its plant. It has $797,000 bonds outstanding. The Public Service Commission will hold a meeting on the matter on Sept. 25.

United Cigar Pays Extra Dividend.

In addition to the regular dividend of $1.50 a share declared for the quarter yesterday on the shares of the United Cigar Stores, an extra dividend of 50 cents was announced. Both dividends are payable Oct. 16 to stockholders of record Oct. 2.

THE COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT—The market was of much the same character as on Thursday, with the tendency of values to sag practically from the opening to the close of the session. Rallying power displayed was feeble, and it was evident that sentiment had undergone some change, with more bearish opinions expressed. The tenor of the foreign news received was again decidedly in favor of sellers. Crop conditions in Argentina and India are good, while the freer Russian offerings suggest that conditions in that country are no worse. The weather in the American Northwest was also more settled, which condition will probably serve to check deterioration accounts coming to hand in the nature of sprouting grain, delayed thrashing, &c. Movement of Spring wheat, however, is only moderate, and while the quality shows a slight improvement, flour buyers generally claim that it will be necessary to purchase considerably more wheat this season to manufacture a barrel of flour than during the previous year.

At various times during the day selling was credited to prominent holders, while the best support was from shorts. The Modern Miller statement reiterated claims that the Winter wheat area next season will be larger, and that the soil is in excellent condition as a result of frequent showers. The recent reported large exports of wheat flour and improved milling demand at various centres was also confirmed by The Miller, but no buying enthusiasm was aroused. The foreign inquiry is not good at present, with business reported yesterday of only eleven loads of wheat at outports. Reciprocity continues a restrictive influence in the trading, and generally the opinion is that, pending the disposal of this measure, price movements will not be very large. Bradstreet's exports for the week were only 3,370,000 bushels, and since July 1 total 29,222,000 bushels, against 16,000,000 bushels last year and 22,000,000 in 1909. World's wheat export figures point to about 11,000,000 bushels, against 14,000,000 last year.

Cash No. 2 red quoted at 97c in elevator, export basis, and 98½c free on board, afloat, for export; No. 2 hard, $1.02⅜; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.10½, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.07⅜.

CORN—The undertone was easy during the entire session, with a less urgent demand from shorts. Weather conditions are good, and some authorities estimate that more than 50 per cent. of the Iowa crop is already immune from possibility of frost damage. The cash and export demand was of smaller proportions, and leading holders were among the principal sellers during the day. Bradstreet's exports for the week were 733,000 bushels, and since July 1 the total is 5,500,000 bushels, against 2,875,000 last year and 1,150,000 bushels in 1909. Cash No. 2 Western was quoted at 75¼c in elevator, domestic basis, and 75c free on board, afloat, for export. Exporters reported only five loads sold at outports.

OATS—Prices ruled below Thursday's close during practically the entire session, closing at the low point. Fluctuations in corn are having a decided sympathetic effect, so that the profit taking was natural. Cash inquiry was less urgent, but no indications of undue pressure in cash circles were observed. Standards quoted at 49½c; No. 2 white, 50c, and No. 3 white, 49c.

PROVISIONS.—There was decided weakness in the market for a time in sympathy with grain, with outside and foreign inquiry disappointing. Some rally occurred late in the session, however, on short covering, and on less pressure from outside packing interests.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Substantial advances were recorded in the list, but most conspicious was the strength of spot oil. Near positions were also relatively firm, reflecting smaller offerings of crude at the South again, and a general absence of pressure. Shorts were fair buyers of September, and demand for later months improved sympathetically. Export inquiries are in the market with business recently stated to be of fair proportions, although the advance has served to partly check business, at least temporarily. Crude oil for immediate shipment is quoted at 5@5.07c in the Southeast, and in the valley, and at 4.94@5.07c in Texas.

COTTON.

The demand from a scattered short interest proved sufficient during the greater part of yesterday's session to keep values about 5@10 points net higher, but near the close some of this gain was lost. Bulls who have recently been suporting the market on the small setbacks, and by this attitude induced much of the short covering, were offering more freely at the advance. Rather bearish week-end statistics were also a factor in the late reaction, while the general belief that the market lacks outside interest serves to bring about sensitive technical conditions.

The undertone to the market keeps very steady, and it is evident that the latent strength is discouraging to bears. Worm complaints from various sections of the belt are still in evidence, but these reports have surprisingly little effect as far as inspiring fresh speculative buying is concerned. President Taylor of the National Ginners' Association was credited with the statement that if the ravages of the army worm continue the Government report will show a condition under last year's, and the final crop very little larger than last year. Porter, a crop expert for a large commission house, estimated the Texas crop at 3,500,000 bales, with the possibility of its being increased to a maximum of 4,000,000 bales should there be no killing frost until Nov. 25. He placed the crop in Oklahoma at 900,000 bales. Rumors were also circulated that Miss Giles's report, due Monday, would be bullish.

Movement of cotton continues liberal, with port receipts yesterday 51,000 bales, against 28,000 bales last week, and 34,000 bales last year. It is obvious that hedge pressure at this time serves to limit the extent of the advances. There was some foreign buying early, and undoubtedly domestic spinners are taking cotton in a small way, but despite the agitation at the South for higher prices, and circulation of advices to hold cotton, futures are not being bought with any great alacrity or spot markets at the South displaying inordinate strength. Yesterday Southern spot markets were unchanged to 1-16c higher, with New York spot cotton quiet and unchanged; middling uplands, 11.80c.

The amount of cotton brought into sight for the week as reported by the local Exchange was 300,000 bales, against 182,000 last week, 227,000 last year, and 310,000 in 1909; since Sept. 1 the total is 510,000 bales, against 400,000 last year. The indicated visible of American cotton is 1,047,000 bales, against 857,000 last year. Spinners' takings of American cotton were 138,000 bales, against 159,000 last week, and 155,000 last year.

Prices here developed an easier tone later, closing at a net advance of 1 to 4 points. Rio was unchanged, and Santos declined 50 reis.

HAS HIS SUSPICIONS OF CABLE MERGER

Mr. Clapperton of the Commercial Fears Western Union Deal Is Not for Public Good.

DOUBTS THE LEGALITY OF IT

Also Charges That the Rival Company Has Shown Itself Against the Anti-Trust Act.

George Clapperton, Vice President of the Commercial Cable Company, after seeing the announcement that the Western Union Telegraph Company had finally got control of the five Atlantic submarine cables of the two English companies—the Anglo-American and the Direct—made this statement yesterday:

"The announcement is grossly erroneous in its statement that cables are utilized to the extent of only about 25 per cent. of their capacity. By working continuously day and night the cables might carry a third more matter than they do carry, but this does not allow for cables out of service because of injury or unfavorable electrical conditions or the interruption of terminal land lines. The cable service must be apportioned like any other service which has to deal with congested periods. Its facilities must be expansive enough to take care of its customers during the busy hours.

"The announcement does not disclose the essential feature of the transaction, and is made for the purpose of covering up the march of the vast Telephone-Telegraph-Cable combination to an illegal monopoly. In the last report of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company the stand was boldly taken that the cost of aggressive uncontrolled competition was eventually borne by the public and should be eliminated.

"It will be borne in mind that that company formerly gave a night message rate on its long-distance telephone lines, but after it had fully established itself it abolished these night message rates. That is what will happen in the telegraph and cable business if the combination ever succeeds in establishing a monopoly. The plan is not for the public good.

"There is very good reason for the Western Union trying to cover up this transaction by talking about reducing cable rates. Away back in 1882 those three companies formed a pooling agreement by which they divided in fixed proportions their entire Atlantic cable receipts. That pooling agreement was lived up to by all three of those companies until March, 1911. Then the Western Union suddenly notified the Anglo-American and Direct Cable Companies that that pooling agreement was in violation of the Anti-Trust Act of Congress of July 2, 1890.

"You will notice that for twenty-one years, namely, from 1890 (the date when the Anti-Trust act was passed) to 1911—down to the present year—the burning coal of illegality has been lying upon the tortoise back of the Western Union conscience. It quickened when the Western Union coveted the property of its two allies and friends. Accordingly the Western Union on March 1, 1911, threw out the Anglo-American and Direct from the eastbound Atlantic cable business, which the Western Union collected by its telegraph system throughout the United States, and which the Anglo and Direct Companies could not collect because they had no American land line telegraph system of their own. That action by the Western Union on March 1, 1911, was for the purpose of clubbing the two English companies into leasing their cables to the Western Union, and it accomplished that purpose.

"The pertinent question now is, how can this combination by lease be legal if the combination by pool was illegal? If the Anti-Trust act of Congress prohibited one why in the world does it not prohibit the other? If it is illegal to combine by pool it is equally illegal to combine by lease, and in fact it would seem much more so because the lease is to cover ninety-nine years, and gives control of the physical properties instead of merely dividing receipts. Their utter disregard of the law and public sentiment in regard to combinations beats anything I have seen lately.

"It remains to be seen what the Attorney General of the United States will do about it. The proof of the Attorney General is absolute, inasmuch as the notice of the Western Union to the Anglo and Direct Companies that the pooling agreement was illegal under the Anti-Trust act of Congress is an admission that that act of Congress prohibits the combination of those three cable companies in any form.

"Even the counsel of the combine has advised it that it is impossible in the present state of decisions to pronounce with certainty upon the validity of the agreement. I get this from the notices which were issued yesterday to the stockholders of the Anglo-American and Direct Companies.

"One thing is certain, and that is that the outrageous inconsistency of the whole proceeding on the part of the Western Union has not helped the standing of American business methods in London. So far as a reduction of cable rates is concerned, a reduction was arranged a long time ago with all of the cable companies, and will be put into effect as soon as the Postmaster General of Great Britain can bring some other Governments into line."

"What effect will this have on the Commercial Cable Company?" was asked.

"It will have a good effect," said Mr. Clapperton. "The public, both American and English, now know they must rely on the Commercial Cable Company for competition and fast service. Further, the Western Union has given hostages to fortune. In addition to its old, heavy financial burdens, it has now agreed to pay annually—mind you, annually—the enormous sum of $1,748,661 to the stockholders and treasury of the Anglo-American and the Direct Companies. If a war of rates should break out you can easily see what would happen to them. It would be simply a question of mathematics and a receiver."

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Two Large Apartments in Washington Heights Section Purchased by an Investor—Lippman Estate Sells Bronx Block Front—Syndicate Buys Acreage at Bensonhurst.

A sale of two large six-story apartment houses in the Washington Heights section enlivened an otherwise quiet realty market yesterday. The deal included the two structures completed over a year ago known as the Mauretania and the Lusitania, situated at 402 to 420 West 148th Street, between Convent and St. Nicholas Avenues. They were sold by Emanuel Krulewitch, who acquired the property in 1907 from the State Realty & Mortgage Company and built the houses soon after. They have been held at $475,000. The houses have been well rented and have been purchased by an investor. Each building covers a plot 100 by 99.11 feet.

Buys Bronx Block Front.

A large deal in the Bronx which evidently forecasts some early improvement has been made by Jacob Leitner, who has sold the entire block front on the north side of 180th Street, between Hughes and Belmont Avenues, for the Lippman estate to the Adams Realty Company, M. E. Oppenheimer, President. The plot has a frontage on 180th Street of 154.3 feet, with a depth of 70.10 feet on Belmont Avenue and 47 feet on Hughes Avenue.

Important Broadway Lease.

William Meyer & Co., embroidery dealers, who in December, 1910, leased the premises formerly occupied by W. & J. Sloane, at the southeast corner of Broadway and Nineteenth Street, have secured a lease of the adjoining nine-story store and loft building at 36 and 38 East Nineteenth Street, on plot 44 by 100, from the Messrs. Sloane. The Meyer firm will probably occupy the entire structure. The lease of the corner, which contains about 155,000 square feet of space, was made at an aggregate rental of over $1,000,000. With the structure just leased the rental will amount to $1,300,000 for the term. Julius Friend negotiated the leases.

This corporation holds a lease covering the Fulton-Chambers Building, 102 and 104 Fulton Street, which with a renewal privilege has about thirty-five years to run. The total aggregate rental paid for the ground and building under this lease is approximately $600,000.

The Charles F. Noyes Company will continue to act as agents of the building, which is entirely rented. The present purchaser of the leasehold estate will modernize the store fronts and entrance to the building, and it is stated that the taking over of this valuable leasehold by the purchaser is for investment purposes only.

Syndicate Buys in Bensonhurst.

Syndicate operations in the Bensonhurst district have been resumed with the purchase of 225 lots lying along Eighty-sixth Street close to the subway station at Twenty-fifth Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street, and of seventy-five lots in the Highlawn section adjoining Bensonhurst. The large parcel was purchased by Coney Island investors for subdivision and improvement, and the leveling of the ground has already begun.

It will have the advantage of two rapid transit stations in the station of the Sea Beach Line at Avenue U and the Twenty-fifth Avenue station of the other line. The property extends along Eighty-sixth Street from the Twenty-fifth Avenue subway station.

The Highlawn purchase was made by men who are active in transportation interests in Greater New York, and who expect quick results to follow the beginning of work on the new plans for South Brooklyn.

$75,000 Deal at Manhasset.

The Chester Hill Improvement Company has purchased at Manhasset, L. I., a tract of thirty acres situated on the Garden City and Mineola Road, and the Hempstead and Flushing Turnpike. The property formerly belonged to the Schenck estate and is known as Chester's Hill. It is directly opposite the handsome estate of Payne Whitney and adjoins the Philip Boyer and Louis Sherry estates.

It is the intention of the purchasers to develop this property by laying out wide avenues and fifty-foot streets with improvements, and sell same in plots for the erection of modern up-to-date houses and bungalows. The property sold for upward of $75,000 through C. D. Bellows.

A Riverside Drive Foreclosure.

Mrs. A. N. Woerreshoffer has brought foreclosure proceedings against Francis M. Applegate, affecting the property at the north corner of Riverside Drive and Eighty-second Street. The site, which is covered by a large dwelling, fronts 103 feet on the Drive, 13 feet on Eighty-second Street, and is 55 feet on its north line.

Last Fall Park Commissioner Stover ordered that part of the front be removed, as it overran the building line. The owners refused to comply with the order, and it was left to the Supreme Court to decide that it was valid and must be carried out.

The front wall was removed, but no steps were taken to replace it with a new one, and it now appears as though it must remain in its present state until the legal tangle has finely been adjusted. The property will be sold from the stand of Herbert A. Sherman some time during October.

Twenty years hence the population of Canada may be 20,000,000." (It is now 8,000,000.) Dr. Schurman's address sent free. Write for it. LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Cylindrical Iron Drums Are Held Free of Duty When "Unusual" Coverings.

Controversies regarding the dutiable value of iron drums continue to arise under the Tariff act of 1909. These articles are used as coverings for a variety of merchandise. As a rule, Collectors of Customs are returning all cylindrical metal vessels as "unusual" covering with duty at the rate of 30 per cent. ad valorem. At the same time, certain other metal coverings are being classified as either free or liable to specific duty along with their contents.

While the present Tariff act, that of 1909, was framed with the intention of doing away with the numerous controversies arising under the Dingley act of 1897, the legislation enacted by Congress does not appear to have been successful in eliminating litigation on this point. The Illinois Central Railroad Company, one of the many litigants, succeded in securing free entry for coverings used for the transportation of bleaching powder. At the same time, the board denied the company's contention for the free entry of iron drums used as coverings for peanut oil.

The board sustained claims filed by several importers regarding the classification of iron drums used in the transportation of various chemicals on the ground that the coverings are unfit for use after their contents have been removed. The drums in question cover a wide variety of goods. The importers receiving favorable action on their protests include J. R. Marble & Co., J. L. & D. S. Riker, the Healey-Seaver Company, T. G. Cooper & Co., Ferguson Brothers, O. G. Hempstead & Son, and C. H. Wyman & Co.

The board has taken unfavorable action on protests affecting iron drums imported by C. H. Wyman & Co., John L. Vandiver & Co., F. B. Vandergrift & Co., Read, Holliday & Co., William F. Jobbins, Inc., John H. Boden & Co., Inc., and others. Protests by George Nash & Co. and the Newman, Andrew Company, regarding the classification of drawplates and wortles were sustained, and a lower rate of duty granted. A protest relative to drawplates for wire drawers filed by R. H. Hart was decided in favor of the importer.

FASHION PROTESTS AGAINST STRIKE

Women Deluge the Boss Tailors with Letters, and Apparently with Telling Effect.

PEACE, PERHAPS, NEXT WEEK

Stumbling Block the Union's Desire to Level Up Wages at the Expense of High Paid Foreign "Artists."

Letters by the dozen—some manufacturers said by the score and even by the hundred—poured in yesterday upon the Fifth Avenue makers of tailored gowns and frocks from annoyed maids and puzzled matrons.

The letters were mostly from Summer watering places, which the writers said they were loath to leave without the assurance that orders for gowns could be received and filled immediately upon their arrival in the city. Some letters said that five days was a sufficient period in which to turn out a gown—the shop keepers had done it for the writers before—and would they please write by return mail (special delivery stamp inclosed) whether they were going to allow any stupid strike to upset their schedule for this season?

On the employers whose workmen are out on strike 8,000 strong, the letters had a telling effect. A manufacturer who came to a conference of conciliation and arbitration at the Hotel Victoria with his pockets stuffed with letters, said that they were to him an overpowering argument. Compared to the loss in trade that the breaking up of the season at its present most prosperous point would occasion, he could think of no considerations of pride or willingness to fight the issue out which would keep him from an early settlement.

For eight hours this employer, with a dozen others holding delegated power from the employers' association, debated the issues of the strike with four representatives of the union. They did not reach an agreement, but went far in that direction, and when they came out of their conference at 8 o'clock last night both sides freely said that New York's women of fashion held the balance of power in this particular strike and had been exerting it in behalf of their own comfort and pleasure in a manner to force a much earlier settlement than otherwise could have been expected.

There were many expressions of the hope that the strike would be all over by Monday and that the men and women tailors would be on duty by that time to get in a heavy week's work before the Jewish holidays of the following week.

In their various halls the strikers held conference last night at which their representatives brought to them reports on the progress of the negotiations. At Terrace Garden the members of the Merchants' Society, composed of about 600 employers, held a mass meeting at which they went over the situation and discussed future policies. At neither of these meetings was the consideration extended to the radical leaders, who wished to see a finish fight at this time, which was extended to them earlier in the week. On the part of the employes there was a distinct shift of confidence from the leaders thus far in control toward Meyer London.

"I can say to you," said Mr. London, "that the desire of the women of fashion to have their new frocks by the time they come back to their town houses from the country is an element of the situation of which the workmen realize that they must take advantage as fully as their employers. No more than the employers are the workmen ready for a protracted struggle. The pressure of the demand for gowns will operate to keep the workmen within bounds as fully as it will work to control their bosses. I look for an immediate settlement—whether it will be by Monday I cannot say, but it certainly should be reached some time next week."

At the conference in the Hotel Victoria there were, for the employers, A. E. Harrison, Chairman of the Arbitration Committee; P. J. Hickson, James B. Blaine, Morris Weingarten, A. L. Frank, and Philip Marguelies. Representing the employes were Meyer London, John A. Dyche, Jesse Greenberger, J. Pissmanoff, and Sol. Rosman, the latter being the union's organizer.

From the State Bureau of Arbitration Michael J. Reagan and John J. Bealin were present for a time. They were informed that it was the wish of both sides to settle their differences by direct conference, and that they would call in the State officials only in the event of a total failure to agree. Messrs. Reagan and Bealin waited for six hours in the hotel lobby, but were not sent for.

The conference will be resumed this morning and will probably continue in session all day, or until such time as terms of peace are agreed upon. The conference developed the fact that there are two decided factions in the organization of employers, one composed of men who have Fifth Avenue shops, and another composed of those who would profit if the business should for a time be diverted from Fifth Avenue into the hands of weaker rivals, who might be able to execute orders. The "outside shops" signed up in large numbers yesterday, while for the most part the Fifth Avenue shops, known as "Department B," joined in the movement looking to a general settlement of the question as a whole.

There were other factions, it appeared, growing out of the fact that some of the employers had themselves been employes in their earlier years. These men were accused by the others of being more severe upon those whose ranks they had left than were the most severe among those who had not come into the industry from cutting tables. That there are many former employes who are now bosses is due to the fact that one Samuel Haas, now dead, imported a group of French artist tailors to New York, when he opened up the first really "swagger" shop in this country. As Haas grew feeble and disinterested, his group of employes one by one broke away and became rivals. That was, it is said, how the business of smart tailoring had its origin in New York, and its growth has simply been a question of sending more and more frequently for the recognized artists of London and Paris and training American tailors to attain some measure of their skill.

To protect these imported artists—the employers refer to them by that name—a question arose at the conference which kept it in session all day and left it with a problem on its hands for this morning. The imported men have been brought over upon assurances amounting to guarantees that they will receive upward of $60 a week. These men—"the cream of the trade"—are about 300 in number, and they do the really fine designing, which is beginning to give New York a position comparable to the famous European cities as a fashion centre.

Under the union demands the "piece work" system by which these men are paid is to be done away with and the wages of the worst 300 men in the trade—the raw beginners—are to be raised $5 per week, or to a minimum of $26 per week. The employers insist that this will mean that they strip their really efficient men to pay their inefficient men. What they fear as a result of this is that the best men will find it advantageous to return to the cities from which they came to this country, carrying away with them the recently created prestige of New York as a dressmaking centre.

There was some talk last night of calling out the shirtwaistmakers, who were on strike two years ago, and the cloakmakers, who were on strike last year, in case the arbitration movement does not become successful to-day.

Gen. Baden-Powell Coming.

Lieut. Gen. Sir Robert Stephenson Smyth Baden-Powell, K. C. B., K. C. V. O., Inspector General of Cavalry, Chief Scout of the British Army, and founder of the "Boy Scout" organization, is coming to America for a six weeks' trip. He will deliver a few lectures in this country, and will sail from San Francisco for Australia. Gen. Baden-Powell achieved his greatest fame for holding Mafeking against the Boers, from a few days following the outbreak of the war in South Africa until May 16, 1900, the longest siege recorded in modern warfare. His first public appearance in New York will be at Carnegie Hall on Feb. 2, in a lecture on "Scouting in War and Peace."

ALLEGES A LATER WILL.

W. S. Van Rensselaer Cousin of Mrs. Maria L. Campbell to Contest.

William S. Van Rensselaer of 60 Broadway has served notice on the Surrogate that he will contest the will of Mrs. Maria L. Campbell, who was his distant cousin, on the ground that the one filed was not the last drawn, and that she was not of sound mind and so was incapable of making a proper will on Oct. 21, 1908, when it was dated. He charged that fraud and undue influence had been exercised by a person or persons unknown to him.

The will disposed of more than $10,000 worth of real and more than $10,000 of personal property, of which $5,000 was bequeathed to the Rev. W. R. Huntington, and similar amounts to Ellen and Patrick Shea, her "faithful servants." Annie Shrader and Margaret and Thomas Lynch, also servants, received $2,000 each.

The remainder of the estate was divided among Mrs. Campbell's four first cousins—Justine V. R. Townsend of 57 East Seventy-eighth Street, Harriet V. R. Crosby of Charlestown, W. Va., Eugene Van Rensselaer of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., and Catherine V. R. Berry. The latter died, however, prior to Mrs. Campbell, her share of the estate going to her children, Walter V. R. Berry of 32 Avenue de l'Opera, Paris, and Mathilde Boynton of Washington.

In addition to the three cousins, there are some thirty-nine relatives living. Among them, all more or less distant cousins, are Louisa R. Livingston, Cornelia Thayer Moltke of the Danish Legation, Washington; Alice Thayer, 61 Avenue Victor Hugo, Paris; R. Fulton Cutting, and Catherine G. V. R. Atterbury.

TO GO TO FIRES BY RAILROAD.

Queens Firemen Will Answer Suburban Calls on Flatcars.

To give better fire protection to the many new villages in Queens, Chief Kenlon has entered into an arrangement with the Long Island Railroad whereby firemen and machines may be shipped at a few minutes' notice to any point on the railroad.

A flat car will be kept on a siding in the railroad yard in Long Island City. This car has a runway to take aboard an engine, tender, hose cart, and men. No horses will be carried, but messages will be sent ahead to have teams waiting at the car's destination to haul the engine.

Battalion Chief Martin J. Smith will have charge of this new fire auxiliary, and a fire company from the Hunter's Point section of Long Island City has been practicing boarding the car. Direct telephone connection has also been made between Chief Smith's headquarters and the Chief Train Dispatcher of the railroad, so that no time will be lost.

In a test drill under the direction of Chief Kenlon, Deputy Chief Lally, and Commissioner Farley, Engine Company 158 had its entire apparatus aboard the flat car ready to start within seven minutes after the sounding of the alarm in its house, two blocks away.

HOUGH ACCEPTS RECEIVER.

Rules That Court Should Not Willingly Set Aside Appointments.

Judge Hough refused yesterday to appoint a Federal receiver for the Westchester County Brewery of Mount Vernon, as the Supreme Court of Westchester County had already appointed William Hobby, the President of the company. To Mr. Hobby there had been strenuous opposition, and Judge Hough had heard arguments against him for two days from the principal parties concerned.

The court stated that it ought not to interfere with a receiver already appointed by another authority, except in a case of great necessity, but he recognized the objections to Mr. Hobby.

In the Westchester Supreme Court the liabilities of the company were set at $629,368. Mr. Hobby contended, however, that the concern was really solvent, with assets of $395,568 and liabilities of only $322,569, showing a surplus of $72,999.

'MAGAZINE TRUST' ANSWERS.

Newsdealers and Subscription Agencies Not Middlemen, It Says.

Answers were filed yesterday by Harper & Brothers and the Periodical Clearing House to the suit brought by the Government in the United States Circuit Court against the alleged Magazine Trust under the Sherman Anti-Trust act. Harper & Brothers entered a general denial of the conspiracy to restrain the magazine trade, and declared that the newsdealers and subscription agencies mentioned in the complaint were not middlemen, but the agents of the publishers in the sale of single magazines and obtaining subscriptions.

The Periodical Clearing House contends that the contracts attacked were in accord with the statutory rights of the owners of copyrights, and were to the advantage of all magazines, whether owned by the defendants or not, the subscription agents, and the public.

PLAN GLASS WINTER GARDEN.

Carlton Terrace Auditorium in Upper Broadway Will Seat 400.

Plans for a Winter garden which is to have all the light and air of a Summer garden were announced yesterday by the management of the Carlton Terrace, Broadway and 100th Street. The plans call for a garden covered with glass and equipped with a heating apparatus. It will seat about 400.

Ten feet above the ground level will be a terrace, guarded by a balustrade, beneath which in a grape arbor glass grapes will throw out light. The garden, as well as the dining room, will be decorated in Japanese style.

Stars for Long Service.

The National Express Company has arranged to place on the uniform caps of drivers throughout the Eastern and Northern divisions a star for every five years of service. Samuel Maurer of New York City and George Whitney of Troy lead all others in length of service, Whitney having nine stars for forty-five years and Maurer six stars for thirty years. More than 158 men will get four and five stars each for twenty or twenty-five years' continuous service in the New York City division alone.

Dr. Julian P. Thomas Sued for Divorce.

A suit for divorce was started yesterday against Dr. Julian P. Thomas by Mrs. Hulda Eberhardt Thomas in the Supreme Court. Mrs. Thomas names no co-respondent in her complaint. The Thomases were married in Cincinnati on Feb. 7, 1898, and came here to live in 1900. They have two children, Odin, who was born in 1899, and Clanton, five years younger.

FOUND IGNITING BOMB IN A TENEMENT HALL

Italian Fights Desperately When Detectives Corner Him After a Chase Upstairs.

BLAZING FUSE STAMPED OUT

Police Say the Man Arrested in East 13th Street Had Just Set Off a Bomb in a House a Block Away.

Giovanni Rizzo of 217 First Avenue, a pale-faced Italian, 21 years old, was caught at 5 o'clock yesterday morning in the act of lighting the fuse of a bomb in the hallway of the five-story tenement house at 356 East Thirteenth Street. Four detectives, under command of Detective Charles Carrao, discovered Rizzo at work, and also found two witnesses who identified him as the man that was seen in the tenement at 314 East Twelfth Street, a short time before that place was wrecked by a bomb, four hours earlier in the morning.

Rizzo looks harmless. There is nothing about him to indicate he is a dangerous man, yet the police say he is one of the best bombmakers and exploders in the business. This is proved by the skill with which the police alleged he placed the bomb in the Twelfth Street tenement. When that bomb exploded twenty detectives were at work in the vicinity, among them the men who later captured Rizzo, yet the man got away, and would probably be at liberty yet had he been satisfied to call one bomb a night's work.

The arrest was the first in three years of a man caught in the act of lighting the fuse of a bomb. Rizzo, according to the detectives, was bending over the fuse with a match in his hand. Detectives Carrao, Dondero, Castano, Botti, Grottano, and De Giulio had seen him enter the house carrying two baskets containing bottles of milk. Carrao and his men thought him a milkman, but they decided to investigate, and it was lucky for the twenty odd families who live in the house that they did.

Carrao and his men had been searching the neighborhood since the midnight explosion. Just before 5 o'clock they were at the corner of First Avenue and Thirteenth Street, in the heart of a neighborhood that has been shaken by four bomb explosions within the last three weeks, and decided to separate and meet again an hour later.

Carrao, Dondero, and Castano started east in Thirteenth Street, while the others tarried on the corner, but they did not think it suspicious when they saw a poorly dressed Italian, not much more than a boy, go up the three steps to the door of the tenement at 356 East Thirteenth Street. As they passed the house, however, Carrao looked though the glass in the door, and saw the man leaning over something on the floor. Carrao and his companions watched the man and saw something sputter.

As Carrao, Dondero, and Castano dashed into the hall, Botti and De Giulio came up, and all saw the man with the milk baskets run up the stairs. Carrao took care of the bomb, and ordered the others to keep after the man. The bomb was in the rear of the hall, and the fuse was burning fast when Carrao stamped it out. Then, with danger of its explosion obviated, Carrao picked up the bomb and joined in the chase up the stairs.

Dondero and Castano were at the heels of Rizzo, and shouted to him to halt. The Italian paid no attention to them, so they fired their pistols into the air. At the third floor Rizzo backed into a corner and, despite the odds, fought desperately. It required the combined strength of the detectives to overpower him. The tenants heard the shots, the noise of the chase, and the fight, and rushed into the hall screaming. When finally Rizzo gave in all of the detectives were struggling with him except Carrao, who had to keep out of the scuffle because he was incumbered with the bomb.

At Police Headquarters Rizzo said he was no relation of the man whose bank in Twelfth Street was blown up last week. The prisoner was sulky, and refused to answer questions about his business, his relatives, or his history, nor could any record be found to connect him with any previous crime.

Rizzo's bomb was oval-shaped and about six inches high. The fuse was fifteen inches long, which would have delayed the explosion long enough for Rizzo to escape had Carrao and his men not appeared. Between two and three inches of the fuse had burned away when Carrao stamped out the fire. The bomb was wound round with cord and waxed paper, and is believed to contain dynamite, but this will not be known until it is examined at the Bureau of Combustibles. The official who has this work in hand was not in town yesterday, so the examination of the bomb probably will not be made before Monday.

Rizzo refused to say a word to aid the police, and nothing was found on him that would indicate any connection with a Black Hand or any other blackmailing organization. The police looked him over with great care, but none could remember having seen him before.

The only other Italian caught in the act of setting off a bomb in this city was Penzola Bonzolaventura, who is now serving a seven-year term in Sing Sing for lighting the fuse of a bomb in a tenement at 314 East Eleventh Street, on July 14, 1908. Lieut. Petrosino, who was murdered in Italy, where he was trying to find out the leaders of the Black Hand, and Detective Carrao arrested Bonzolaventura.

It was Rizzo who set off the bomb that did so much damage in the tenement house at 314 East Twelfth Street, shortly after midnight yesterday morning, Inspector Hughes said, after Magistrate Murphy in the Tombs Court had held Rizzo in $7,500 bail for examination today. Inspector Hughes had a dozen Italians from that house taken to Police Headquarters, and one of them, Mrs. Riego Siraguso, who knows Rizzo well, said that she had seen him and another man in the hallway a short time before the explosion. Her husband, also, said that he saw Rizzo leave the house a few minutes after midnight. Both Siraguso and his wife said they had hardly returned to their beds when the explosion occurred.

Siraguso is one of two brothers in the milk business at 337 East Twelfth Street. Both have received blackmailing letters recently, but did not pay any attention to them. Two months ago their place of business was partially wrecked by an explosion, and an attack was made on one of their milk wagons a few weeks later. On another occasion, Commissioner Dougherty said, a small bomb was placed in one of their wagons on a Lackawanna ferryboat. The bomb exploded, but no one was hurt.

Siraguso said Rizzo had been employed by him up to a year ago as a wagon driver, and both he and his wife said they were certain Rizo was one of the men they saw in the hallway before the explosion yesterday morning. They had been awakened, they said, by the noise of men walking about in the hall. Mrs. Siraguso said she looked out and saw Rizzo and another.

"I have been making a close study of the Black Hand situation," Commissioner Dougherty said yesterday, "and I have found out that business jealousy as well as blackmail figures in the business. The detectives are doing splendid work, and we have every angle of the situation covered. With patience and perseverance I believe we will get at the bottom of the business and eventually put all of these Italian criminals out of business."

Commissioner Waldo was just as much pleased as Mr. Dougherty over the capture of Rizzo, which he considers one of the most important made by the police in years, second only to that of Costabile, the alleged Black Hand Chief, who was arrested with a bomb in his possession a few weeks ago. Costabile is now in the Tombs waiting trial, having been indicted for violating the Sullivan Dangerous Weapon law.

Warrant the Actor Has Been Dodging for Not Paying Alimony Is Stayed.

Byron Douglas, the actor, who, his counsel says, has spent the last few days in dodging a Deputy Sheriff armed with an order for his arrest, may come out in the open again. The warrant was issued by Supreme Court Justice Bischoff on the representations of Mrs. Marie Booth Douglas, who says her husband is more than $8,000 in arrears in her alimony.

Incidentally Mr. Douglas may now attend rehearsals of the company in which he is to play this season. His lawyer says he missed a rehearsal on Thursday because he didn't dare risk arrest, but yesterday Supreme Court Justice Pendleton granted a stay in the proceedings while he considered a motion to have Justice Bischoff's order vacated.

Mr. Douglas's counsel denied that the actor owed so much back alimony. He said Douglas was penniless, practically, and that recently, in Montreal, he had stripped himself of every penny to satisfy his wife's claims, and had been compelled to borrow money to get back to town.

School No. 2 to Celebrate Centenary.

Preparations are being made at Public School 2, at 116 Henry Street, to celebrate in the early part of November the one hundredth anniversary of the school's founding. A Committee of Arrangements has been appointed, consisting of Jasper Preyer of the Class of 1860; William Poillon, '58; Frederick H. Wight, '57 and District Superintendent Julia Richman and Edward Poillon, '64. The alumni association of the school is sending out a call to all former pupils, graduates, and teachers of the school to join in the celebration. All who wish to participate should write Dr. Gabriel R. Mason, 1,341 Clinton Avenue, the Bronx.
